Latins Cheer Rebel Cause; Crowd Large

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A crowd estimated at 15,000 turned out Saturday in the rebel held portion of downtown Santo Domingo and gave a noisy demonstration of support for Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel leader. There were anti-U.S. overtones.

Long-time residents said it was the biggest crowd they had seen in the city since ex-President Juan Bosch returned from a European junket after his election in 1962.

Anti-Yankee Yells

Speakers, including Caamano, were frequently interrupted with shouts of "Yankees out." Among the many placards critical of U.S. intervention was one in English that read, "A Warning to Bunker and Company — The People of the Dominican Republic Will Never Accept Political and Military Interference in Our International Affairs."

Ellsworth Bunker is U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States and a member of a new three-nation mediating team helping the OAS find a possible solution to the Dominican conflict.

Bunker and the other members of the mission, Ambassadors Ramon de Clairmont Duenas of El Salvador and Ilmar Penha Marinho of Brazil now have received a first-hand glimpse at the political chasm that separates the contending factions.

The mediators met with the rebels Friday and the civil-military junta Saturday. They also have conferred with the papal nuncio, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emanuele Clarizio, one of the prominent early mediators, and with representatives of the United States and OAS here.

Rains Hamper Hunt For Killer In Bank Holdup

BIG SPRINGS, Neb. (AP) — The search for a gunman who killed three bank employes in cold blood bogged down Saturday in roads left awash by continuing rains.

But a fourth man who survived the killer's attack rallied in a Denver hospital raising hopes he could shed some light on the slayings.

The killer, apparently concealing a 22'caliber automatic pistol in a briefcase, walked brazenly into the little Farmers State Bank just before noon Friday.

He ordered the four employes to lie on their stomachs, scooped about $1,500 from the cash drawers, and then fired point-blank shots into their backs. Three were killed instantly.

With a polite, "Good morning," to a customer who brushed by him as he left, the gunman walked to his late-model car parked beside the red brick bank and drove off. Twenty-four hours later officers could find no trace of him.

Wallace Speaks In Area Today

Wallace will be introduced by Gov. John J. McKeithen of Louisiana, while U. S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of Monroe will act as master of ceremonies.

Downs is being honored for his Masonic achievements and for his community and civic endeavors.

The program will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Farmerville High School gymnasium, which has a seating capacity of about 4,500.

Downs is Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana. He is also scheduled to speak on the program.

Marines Tackle Guerrillas Twice In Da Nang Area

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines clashed twice Saturday with Communist guerrillas near the sprawling Da Nang air base, 380 miles north of Saigon. One Marine was killed and five were wounded.

The Marines repelled a Viet Cong attack six miles southwest of Da Nang with heavy artillery fire, killing three guerrillas and wounding three, a U.S. spokesman said. The Communists attempted to infiltrate a Marine infantry position.

The leathernecks opened fire and, supported by Vietnamese planes, turned back the enemy in a 70-minute battle.

Minor Run In

Another Viet Cong band made contact with U.S. Marines eight miles southwest of the base but withdrew before any serious fighting.

A U.S. spokesman said a mine explosion killed the Marine. He was the 402nd American serviceman to die in combat in Viet Nam since December, 1961, according to an unofficial count.

The Communists meanwhile launched a mortar barrage on the district headquarters of Dak Sut, 50 miles southwest of Quang Ngai, scene earlier this week of one of the bloodiest actions of the Vietnamese war.

A U.S. military spokesman said pilots reported they hit an offshore wharf with missiles and damaged a coal yard and warehouses. A direct bomb hit was scored on an antiaircraft site.

In other strikes, trucks and bridges were destroyed.

North Viet Nam claimed its armed forces downed three American planes over Vinh City Friday and one U.S. F105 in the Quang Trach district Thursday.

The claim, broadcast by the New China News Agency, said "Waves of U.S. planes" bombed and strafed Vinh City and communications lines and rivers in Nghe An and Thanh Hoa provinces Friday.

The agency said that besides shooting down three planes, initial reports announced in Hanoi at noon Saturday were that "many other U.S. planes were damaged" in other areas of Nghe An and Thanh Hoa Friday.

A U.S. military spokesman said two Vietnamese soldiers had been killed and three others injured as the Viet Cong's 81mm mortar shells blasted the headquarters.

Jes Ramblin'

Graduating

One of six students from Louisiana who will be receiving degrees from the University of Notre Dame in its 120th annual commencement program today is Leo J. McStravick, 610 Hilton St., Monroe.

He will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree.

Polaris Subs Silently Eye Red Shores

WASHINGTON (AP) — American missile submarines now have been on firing stations off the Red Chinese and eastern Russian coasts for six months — apparently undetected by the Communists.

It was learned Saturday that none of the four Polaris submarines presently in the western Pacific force has reported any approach by antisubmarine ships, submarines or aircraft which might be seeking to plot positions for use in event of hostilities.

Tracing Activities

The obvious procedure in a hunt for the American missile subs would be to lay off the approaches to Guam — where a Polaris submarine tender provides a forwarding operating base — and then seek to follow a submarine as it clears the harbor.

The U.S. Navy has its own antisubmarine forces, including nuclear-powered attack submarines, deployed in the western Pacific. One of their missions is to warn of the presence of foreign submarines or ships.

Soviet craft and planes are seen in the Sea of Japan on occasions when U.S. ships operate in those waters, but the Russian ships and planes appear to be engaged in surface and air scrutiny rather than actual antisubmarine activities.

In the tubes of the four Polaris boats already deployed are 64 missiles with a destructive power of more than six million tons of TNT. The range of their missiles reaches deep into Russian Siberia and covers all major targets in Red China.

The four submarines now deployed are the Daniel Boone, Tecumseh, Ulysses S. Grant and Stonewall Jackson. Sometime later this year or early in 1966 the two remaining subs of the western Polaris force will joint the other four. The two are expected to be the Kamehameha and Mariano G. Vallejo.

The deployment of the four missile submarines has facilitated assignment of the attack carriers of the 7th Fleet to the tactical bombing missions against North Vietnamese targets.

Before the arrival of the Polaris boats in the western Pacific, one of the responsibilities of the carriers was to be ready for the launching of strategic attacks in event of full-scale war with Russia and Red China. That responsibility now has been passed to the strategic warfare submarines, which are under command of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington.

Amateur Snapshot Competition Begins

An eight-week amateur photo contest offering a total of $250 in cash prizes locally, plus a chance at several thousand dollars in prizes and expense paid trips in the national phase of competition, gets under way today under sponsorship of The Monroe Morning World and News-Star.

Open to black and white photos taken after July 1, 1964 on any subject of interest, the contest is known as the annual Newspaper National Snapshot Awards. Deadline for entries to be considered in the first week's competition is Thursday noon. Winners of the first round will be announced Sunday, June 13 in the Morning World.

Four weekly cash prizes will be given for the most interesting photographs. They will be $10 for first place, $7.50, second; $5, third, and $2.50, fourth. At the end of the local phase of the contest, four grand prize winners will be selected for $12.50 awards each. These four photos will then be entered in the national competition where five-expense paid trips and 100 Special Merit Awards of $100 each are at stake.

The top five national prizes include: First place, 30-day trip around the world for two plus $1,000 in spending money. Second prize, 21-day European tour for two plus $500 cash. Third, 14-day trip to Mexico for two plus $250 cash. Fourth place, seven-day trip to Hawaii for two plus $100 cash. Fifth place, seven-day trip to West Indies for two plus $100 cash.

Photo contest rules, which are published frequently should be followed in submitting entries. The following information should be printed on the back of each print: Name and mailing address of photographer, state if negative is available if requested for use in national competition, and if releases are available on any recognizable persons in photographs.

Address entries to Photo Contest Editor, News-Star—World, Monroe, La. Photos may feature any subject of interest, children, general activities, scenery, animals. There are no specified classifications. The competition will run through the week of July 25.

McKeithen Sets Reward For Slayers

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI) — Louisiana Gov. John J. McKeithen offered a $25,000 reward Saturday for information leading to the arrest of the killer or killers of Negro Deputy Sheriff O'Neal Moore.

Moore died, and his patrol car companion, Deputy Creed Rogers, was wounded Wednesday night in a nightrider ambush on Louisiana 21 near Varnado, a rural community seven miles north of here.

New Night Strike

Another band of nightriders fired shots at the home of Doyle Holliday, chief criminal deputy of Washington Parish (County), Friday night. Holliday's wife and two of his children were in the house at the time but no one was hit.

The governor flew into this racially troubled southeast Louisiana papermill town Saturday specifically to offer the reward.

"On Thursday night," the governor said Saturday, "after the murder of Deputy Sheriff Moore and the attempted murder of his associate, I proclaimed that our state would not be a haven for murderers and cowards.

"Yesterday evening, those with the same murderous intent made an attempt on the life of yet another officer of the law, his wife and his children while they were resting in the sanctity of their home."

McKeithen said the reward for the arrest and conviction of the nightriders would be paid in cash and the identity of informants would be kept secret "so long as it is possible to do so without materially affecting the successful prosecution of the guilty parties."

The governor left town immediately upon issuing his statement from city hall.

Sheriff Dorman Crowe said Moore's widow said she does not want any parades or cavalcades in her husband's funeral services.

Moore will be buried at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Varnado.

The sheriff said Mrs. Moore told him she had no connection with the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) or any other civil rights group before her husband's death and she does not want a connection now.

Youth Drowns In D'Arbonne Swim Mishap

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Ronnie Kennimer, 17, of Rt. 2, Choudrant, drowned Saturday afternoon at Lake D'Arbonne near here, according to the Union Parish Sheriff's department.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Eck Kennimer and one of 12 children, he would have been a senior at Choudrant High School this fall.

Officials reported the accident occurred at about 5 p.m. at an area of the lake near the Farmerville-Ruston highway bridge just outside Farmerville.

The body was recovered at 7 p.m. by Union Parish Sheriff's rescue team after dragging the lake about two hours. They were joined in dragging operations by members of the Lincoln Parish Sheriff's department. The body was found above the bridge.

Young Kennimer was reported to have been swimming with a brother and cousins when he suddenly called for help. A cousin, and later the brother, attempted to hold him out of the water but their efforts failed. It was reported he went under just before a boat arrived which had been hastily dispatched to the scene of the tragedy.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Monday at the New Hope Baptist Church of Choudrant with the Rev. H. E. Henderson officiating.

Burial will be in New Hope Cemetery by Kilpatrick Funeral Home of Ruston.

The body will be at the funeral home until time of services.

Besides his parents, he is survived by five brothers, Donnie of Choudrant, Roland and Eugene of Ruston, Raymond of Arlington, Tex., and Leland of San Diego, Cal.; one half-brother, Hut of Shreveport; six sisters, Mrs. Hazel Everett and Miss Pauline Kennimer, both of Monroe; Mrs. Shirley Whitehead, Mrs. Eugenia Welch and Mrs. Claudine Upshaw, all of Choudrant and Mrs. Christine Magee of Greenville, S. C.; a half-sister, Lois Shell of West Monroe and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Pearl Brewster of West Monroe.

Record Space Time Won't Be Attempted

GOV. JOHN J. McKeithen of Louisiana Saturday night offered a $25,000 cash reward to anyone giving information leading to the arrest of persons responsible for the recent slaying of a Washington Parish Negro deputy sheriff. The governor was in a grim mood as he made the announcement at a Bogalusa press conference. (AP Wirephoto)

Sudan Nips Coup; Several Arrested

CAIRO (AP) — A broadcast from the Sudan said Saturday the government had adverted a coup by seizing a quantity of arms and arresting a number of suspects in the alleged plot.

The announcement by the Omdurman radio broke several hours of silence between Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, and the outside world, which had raised concern of a possible political crisis in the Sudan.

Earlier, informed Egyptian sources in contact with the Sudanese capital said a general strike had been called for undisclosed reasons this morning. Other signs also pointed to political trouble.

Gatherings Banned

The Omdurman radio broadcast, picked up in Cairo, said: "The Interior Ministry is investigating, with all suspects arrested, the arms seized in the capital."

The broadcast added that all public gatherings had been banned but gave no further details.

Other reports reaching Cairo said four Sudanese army officers, including a general, had been arrested.

The broadcast came after all telephone communications between Cairo and Khartoum had been broken earlier in the day. The last previous broadcast said without elaboration, "The Cabinet has a scheduled meeting tonight to discuss the demands put up by the workers."

Cairo Airport said it had lost radio communications with Khartoum's airport. A flight to Cairo by the Sudan Airways was canceled and no reason was given.

Without explanation, a dispatch from Khartoum Friday said Premier Sir el Khatim el Khalifa had resigned to make way for a new government.

The Supreme Council of five members, which acts as head of state in Sudan, asked Khalifa to remain on until Tuesday, when the country's first constituent assembly meets.

At that time, two right-wing parties, the Umma — Nation — and the National United, were expected to form a coalition government.

These two parties, with the Moslem Brothers party, balked an attempt last February by Khalifa to give leftists and Communists more seats in the government.

The crisis was settled with three, instead of four, Communists in the Cabinet, and with fewer other leftists among the ministers. The Umma party and the National United each had three seats and the Moslem Brothers one in the 18-member Cabinet that resigned Friday.

The three right-wing parties were denounced as "allies of imperialism" by the Soviet Communist party paper Pravda at the time they took their stand against Khalifa.

It was not apparent whether the current crisis in Khartoum has anything to do with the Negro question.

Area Showers Possible Today

Partly cloudy skies, with chances of afternoon thundershowers, are on the weather menu for Twin Cities residents today.

The weatherman says thundershowers will spread over about 40 per cent of the area mainly in the afternoon both today and Monday.

WARM

Not much change in temperatures is forecast, with the highs ranging between 86 and 92 and the lows between 66 and 72.

The high Saturday was 87 and the low was 66, with no rainfall recorded by FAA at Selman Field.

Winds will be southerly five to 15 miles per hour.

NASA Puts Stop On Extra Orbits

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II neared the two-thirds mark of their long journey in space today with no chance at cracking the Russian-held endurance record.

A top official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said at a news conference that no extra orbits would be made.

"I can say quite flatly there will not," said William C. Schneider when asked if there would be orbits beyond the planned 62 revolutions.

Still Four Days

Schneider added: "We still are calling for a four-day mission, and there are no plans to review this to see if we should extend the mission."

Schneider is deputy director of the Gemini program, Office of Space Flight, NASA headquarters.

Speculation on extending the flight plan had arisen after an afternoon news conference with mission director Chris Kraft.

The Soviet and world record was set by Lt. Col. Valery Bykovsky, who flew a one-man spacecraft for 119 hours and 6 minutes, June 14, 1963.

On the 35th orbit shortly after 5 p.m. EST, the astronauts were given a go-ahead for 48 orbits.

Earlier — in space — the two astronauts showed some signs of transient wear and tear, and then got some gently chiding orders from their wives by radio from Gemini Control.

"Have a drink of water, both of you," ordered Patricia McDivitt, wife of command pilot James A. McDivitt. "And no static on that."

"Jim, disconnect your headset communications at the neck ring (or your helmet) from now on at the start of your sleep period. No static on that either," she said in a sharp, businesslike voice.

After a little bit, she came back on and ordered again, "Drink some water."

"Do I sound a little hoarse?" asked her orbiting husband.

"Yes, you do sound hoarse. Now drink some water," she insisted.

McDivitt's voice was a little lower than its normal tenor quality — but still a contrast with the baritone of pilot Edward H. White II. White's wife, Patricia, came on first taking over from the capsule communicator, Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom. She passed on the information that the second-stage booster had re - entered the earth's atmosphere and burned.

"A big improvement over Gus. I'll tell you that," said White's cheerful voice.

The wives were waiting at Gemini control as were White's two children, Eddie, 11, and Bonnie Lynn, 9 — awaiting the spacecraft's passage over the North American continent.

Without any introduction, the wives took over the capsule communicators chores, relaying instructions from flight officials, to their husbands above. Listeners could sense the surprise of the two astronauts.

Both astronauts were told they would have some 18 hours of inactivity and radio silence — and they were both expected to disconnect their radios to get some undisturbed rest.

"Now have a drink of water," Pat White said.

"Roger," White said obediently, "standing by for a drink of water. You sound pretty good to me."

"I'm great," she answered.

"Right," said White.

"This is fabulous," said Pat White. And they returned to the business of the flight until just before she turned over the microphone to Patricia McDivitt, when she said: "We separated the spacecraft from the booster on the Gemini 4 cake yesterday."

"Ah," said White. "That's very good."

The wives were much more nonchalant and relaxed than they were Friday when they talked by radio with their husbands for the first time since the Thursday launching.

As the families came out of the Gemini Mission Control Center, young Eddie White was asked if he wanted to talk to his father — and he answered promptly, "Yes sir."

"Do you always order your husband around like that?" Mrs. McDivitt was asked.

She smiled and said, "No."

The two astronauts passed the halfway mark of their four-day mission at 11:15 a.m. EST on Saturday as their spacecraft piled up 48 hours and 58 minutes of flight on its 32nd orbit high over the United States.

Hamburg Youth Is Shot Fatally

HAMBURG, Ark. (Special) — Dennis Pennington, 18, of Hamburg was fatally shot about 4 p.m. Saturday by Dan Stell, 18, also of Hamburg, according to Ashley County Sheriff B. A. Courson.

According to the sheriff, the boys were "fooling around with a .38 pistol" when the gun accidentally went off. The bullet entered the Pennington youth's right side. He was rushed to the Crossett Health Center, where he later died.

Stell and three other witnesses told the sheriff it was an accident.

Space Exploration Edges Out Farmer

HOUSTON, Texas (AP) — "There's getting to be too much civilization around here," said a bearded farmer as he pushed an old rifle back on his arm.

"I only shot one wolf today, two jackrabbits and a possum. Too many people for the wolves. They leave when humans move in. I aim to leave too."

A scene in the Alaskan wilds? No, a spot just 30 miles southwest of Houston only four years ago. It's the same place where the multimillion-dollar Manned Spacecraft Center now sits and from where the four-day flight of Gemini 4 is being controlled.

If the civilization-hating loner could see his wolf hunting ground now he would think he was in the middle of all the people in the world.

A four-lane highway carries thousands of vehicles a day. Whereas, four years ago a winding, rut-pocked, country lane was ample for the few who negotiated its sharp curves and narrow lanes.

A few ramshackle sheds, where cows and some lazy armadillos sought shade, have been replaced with gleaming, plush motels, supper clubs, and National Aeronautics and Space Administration buildings holding some of the world's most sophisticated scientific equipment.

Some of the natives groan and close their eyes when they pass the center, not because it is ugly, but because:

"I could have bought all that land for a dollar an acre five years ago." Now, an acre costs close to $75,000.

Motels are sprouting up all along NASA Rd. 1, which used to be farm-to-market Rd. 528. Service stations and apartment houses are sprinkled between the motels.

The swift pace was pushed to the supersonic with the rush to get ready for the first flight controlled by the $150-million Mission Control Center, now shepherding astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II.

Space Venture Not Real Stroll

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The trouble with calling Air Force Maj. Edward H. White II's solo excursion into space either a stroll or walk is that there just isn't anything to stroll or walk on up there.

And, in fact, the back and forth walking motion of his legs — had he tried to walk — might have generated some torque and given him a tumbling motion.

He had a much better way of getting around anyway. He carried a space gun not too unlike the kind that cartoon-strop spacemen used to get around when space travel was still a fiction.

Humphrey Getting More Work Now

Humphrey disclosed some of the details of this relationship in an interview in which he said he believes that if he ever should be projected into the presidency he would be fully informed on every aspect of national policy.

"I think the people of America have the right to expect of their vice president that he be fully informed, that there be no surprises that can come to him or any information that he didn't know about," Humphrey said. "I try to fulfill that obligation."

The vice president said Johnson designated members of the Cabinet to keep him informed on foreign and national security matters. He added he has had "wholehearted cooperation" on that score.

He said Johnson designated him as coordinator on legislative measures and notified Cabinet members to work through the vice president.

This goes beyond the role Johnson himself filled as a vice president. Johnson said in an April, 1963 interview that he participated in legislative matters "only to the extent that the President requests me to, and that the leaders may desire me to."

In this job, Humphrey said he prepares a weekly written report for the President on the status of every piece of administration legislation. This sets forth the number of hearings held, who has testified on the particular measure, what the trend of the testimony was and "Who do I need to talk to to get it out of the full committee, if there's any delay."

Q.—What part do you actually play in pushing the Johnson "Great Society" program through Congress?

A.—I sit with the President and the leadership in the House and the Senate, regularly. We discuss all the legislation. Prior to that I was privy to many of the programs before they were sent to the Congress, having looked over messages, having examined some of the proposed legislation and having offered my comments to White House staff members and to the President.

I work very closely with the speaker of the House (John W. McCormack, D-Mass.) with Carl Albert (D-Okla), the majority leader; and Hale Boggs (D-La.), the majority whip. I talk to them many, many times a week on the telephone. I do the same with Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) and with Russell Long (D-La.). and George Smathers (D-Fla.).

I've met with all the committee chairmen, the subcommittee chairmen. I've met with all the staff directors of the committees and the subcommittees of both the House and the Senate.

I think maybe I've put more time into becoming closely associated with and fully acquainted with the whole working apparatus of the entire Congress than anything I have done in my public career. I feel closer to the committee structure than even when I was the majority whip.

Plane Will Take Burned Boy To Shrine Hospital

A West Monroe child will be flown today to Galveston, Tex. by the Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club to enter the Shrine Hospital for Burned Children.

Edward Kirk Knowles, three-and-one-half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. H. Knowles of 2602 Jersy St., West Monroe, is making the trip in an Olin-Mathieson plane, which will depart Selman Field at 8 p.m.

Edward was burned over 35 per cent of his body with second and third degree burns on May 22. He was standing near a barbecue pit when it was lit and the flames flared up.

He is the second child from Northeast Louisiana to be sent to the Galveston hospital for treatment by the area Shrine Club.

Space Wives Again Speak To Husbands

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Patricia White and Patricia McDivitt talked to their astronaut husbands again Saturday and in wifely, no nonsense tones gave them some instructions to drink more water and get enough rest.

As they did Friday, the wives spoke to command pilot James A. McDivitt and pilot Edward H. White II as they spun around the earth in Gemini 4. The wives were in Mission Control Center at Houston and the astronauts were in their 34th orbit.

Mrs. White: "Gemini 4, this is Houston Cap-Com. Do you read?"

White: "Hello, this is Gemini 4."

Mrs. White: "Your booster reentered over the Cape at 1729 Zulu. Radars were tracking and watched breakup on their boresight TV."

Mrs. White: "I'm great."

White: "Right."

Mrs. White: "This is fabulous."

White: "The batteries are up and the oxygen supply is in good."

Mrs. White: "You sound good. Turn quantity retrick."

White: "I did it. The quantity retrick is going off at this time."

Mrs. White: "We separated the spacecraft from the booster on the Gemini 4 cake yesterday. Do you read?"

White: "Say that one again."

Mrs. White: "We separated the spacecraft from the booster yesterday on the Gemini 4 cake."

White: "Ah, that's very good. Understand. Got the message."

Mrs. White: "See you next week."

Mrs. McDivitt: "Gemini 4."

McDivitt: ". . . Houston."

Mrs. McDivitt, emphatically: "Hey, have a drink of water. Both of you."

Mrs. McDivitt: "No static on that."

McDivitt: "Pardon?"

Mrs. McDivitt: "No static on that."

McDivitt: Garbled.

Mrs. McDivitt: "Jim, disconnect your headset communications at the neck ring from now on at the start of your sleep period. No static on that."

McDivitt: Garbled.

Mrs. McDivitt: "Chris (Kraft, mission director) says that's what he wants you to do."

McDivitt: A faint reply inaudible.

Mrs. McDivitt: "You read me?"

McDivitt: Garbled.

Flight official injects. "We're reading you weakly."

Mrs. McDivitt: "Do you read, Jim?"

McDivitt: Garbled.

Mrs. McDivitt: "Did you get the message on disconnect your headset?"

McDivitt: "I sure did."

Mrs. McDivitt: "You gonna drink some water?"

McDivitt: "Yes, I will."

Mrs. McDivitt: "And your left eye's looking good."

McDivitt: "What was that?"

Mrs. McDivitt: "Your left eye is looking good."

Mrs. McDivitt: "I said your left eye is looking good."

NOT DE GAULLE

PARIS (UPI) — The official Communist daily newspaper L'Humanite told its readers Saturday that American astronaut James McDivitt saw "an object with long arms" in space.

"Having made inquiries," it added, "we find that Gen. de Gaulle is not traveling in that part of the world. It must have been a satellite with aerials."

DAVIS BINGHAM

Bingham Named Miss Louisiana Pageant Emcee

Davis Bingham, Associate Professor of Music at Northeast Louisiana State, has been named master of ceremonies for the Miss Louisiana Pageant to be held at Neville Auditorium on June 30 and July 1, 2 and 3, James C. "Jake" Ussery, pageant general chairman, announced Saturday.

Bingham, who is a voice teacher and director of choral activities at NLSC, has served as emcee for several local pageants including the Cotton Festival Beauty Pageant in Bastrop and the Miss Northeast Louisiana State Pageant in Monroe.

"We are very proud to have someone with Mr. Bingham's talent and experience working with us on this year's Miss Louisiana Pageant," Ussery said. "In addition to his fine ability as an emcee, he has one of the best singing voices in our area." He will be a fine addition to this year's Miss Louisiana Pageant."

A native of Delano, Tenn., Bingham has been at Northeast College since 1959. He is a graduate of Washington College Academy, and received his B.M. degree from the University of Chattanooga and an M.S.M. degree from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has completed his residence work for his Ph. D. from George Peabody College.

Bingham has had wide experience as a solist with the Chattanooga Opera Association, Kentucky Opera Association, Shreveport Opera Association, Nashville Summer Opera, Louisville Symphony, the Baptist Hour (where he was a national winner) and he was an area winner of the Metropolitan auditions in 1960-61.

While serving in the U. S. Army, Bingham organized and directed the Eighth Army Choir in the Far East which became an honor wnining group and appeared on national television.

Eight Flights Still To Come In Space Plan

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — As astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II whirl around and round the world, National Aeronautics and Space Administration planners are busy preparing for other flights in the ambitious Gemini program.

Eight more flights are scheduled at about two-month intervals to practice maneuvers that eventually will take men to the moon.

The frst two launchings were unmanned. Here is the complete list of manned Gemini missions, including those flown:

Gemini 3—Air Force Maj. Virgil I. Grissom and Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young made a three-orbit flight on March 23, 1965, to test spacecraft systems. They were the first to maneuver a manned spacecraft in orbit.

Gemini 4—Air Force Majs. James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II, launched June 3, 1965, on intended four-day mission to gather medical, spacecraft and scientific data during prolonged exposure to space environment. White floated outside the orbiting spacecraft for 20 minutes in the first exercise of this type for a U.S. astronaut.

Gemini 5—Air Force Maj L. Gordon Cooper and Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr., seven-day-flight scheduled Aug. 22 to gather medical, spacecraft and scientific data. Astronauts are to perform rendezvous exercises by ejecting a small spherical satellite from the capsule.

Gemini 6—Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr., and Air Force Maj. Tom P. Stafford, two-day flight rocket is to hurl Agena stage into orbit. Gemini is to be launched later and attempt to link up with the Agena. Stafford is to emerge from capsule in orbit.

Pilots have not been named for the remaining flights.

Gemini 8—Two days, rendezvous and docking, January, 1966. Spacecraft is to link up with Agena and fire the Agena propulsion system for maneuverability. One crewman is to leave the spacecraft to retrieve experiment packages and evaluate his ability to use tools in space.

Target months are not available for remaining flights.

Gemini 9—Two days, rendezvous and docking similar to Gemini 8. One crewman is to leave spacecraft and test a rocket-powered maneuvering pack strapped to his back.

Gemini 10—Two days, rendezvous and docking. Gemini spacecraft is to be launched after one Agena orbit—102 minutes—and attempt a direct-ascent docking maneuver, joining as quickly as possible with the target. One astronaut is to leave craft to conduct experiments.

Gemini 11—Two days, to simulate the docking maneuver Apollo astronauts will have to perform when launching themselves from the moon to rendezvous with their mother ship in lunar orbit. Agena will be used. One astronaut is to conduct experiments outside the craft.

Gemini 12 — Two days, to simulate a docking maneuver the Apollo astronauts would have to make if they separated from their mother ship and then decided not to land on the moon after approaching the lunar surface. Agena will be used. One astronaut is to experiment outside the capsule.

Officer Scores Firing Of Shots Into House

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — Chief Deputy Doyle Holliday, a barrel-chested veteran law officer, said Saturday the firing of six shots at his home was "uncalled for, silly and pathetic."

Holliday is the chief criminal investigator for this racially troubled area, and Washington Parish. He said he and his wife were sitting in their den when a car roared down his gravel driveway Friday night and six shots were fired.

Holliday said he ran from his house with a 357-magnum service revolver and fired six rounds at the fleeing car.

No one was injured in the house. Two of Holliday's three sons were asleep. The small-caliber bullets slammed into a window air-conditioning unit, the side of the wood-frame house and the carport.

Holliday told newsmen, "I don't know who did it, but they aren't going to scare me out of my duty. But I am concerned when they start messing with a man's home and family."

Holliday had spent most of the day helping direct the investigation of the ambush slaying of O'Neal Moore, one of the first two Negro deputies in the parish.

Moore and Creed Rogers, the other Negro deputy, were shot from a pickup truck as they drove a squad car near Bogalusa Wednesday night.

Moore was shot in the head with a high-powered rifle. Rogers was wounded by a buckshot blast.

One white man, Ernest R. McElveen, 41, Bogalusa, has been charged with murder. He was arrested a short time after the shooting near Tylertown, Miss., about 40 miles northeast of Bogalusa.

Officers said it was believed that at least three men were involved in the attack.

Angola Warden Reports Trusties Back In Prison

ANGOLA, La. (AP)—Warden Wayne Allgood said all four trusty prisoners who escaped from the state penitentiary were back in custody Saturday.

Allgood said H. R. Black Jr., 28, of Bienville Parish, and Ralph Vallee, 43, were caught Saturday afternoon.

Donald Brown Norris, 26, was nabbed after being shot by a guard early Saturday. His condition was not serious.

Cliff Hanger In Paris '44

IS PARIS BURNING? By Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre. Simon — Schuster. $6.95.

The fact that Paris was freed before it could become a smouldering pile of rubble in the late summer of 1944 resulted from such an incredible series of flukey breaks, hair-breadth adventures and misadventures, bluffs, gambles and near - miracles that this nerve-popping chronicle of the city's liberation makes spy fiction seem like a cold cup of tea.

The Allies were straining all resources of men and supplies — especially gasoline — to chase the Germans toward the Rhine, and wanted to bypass the city. Hitler shrieked at his generals to hold Paris or leave it in ruins. De Gaulle was determined to enter the city first and set up his own political regime, even at the risk of breaking up the Allied command. The Parisian communists wanted to stir up a revolt that would leave their own brand of political chaos, even if it cost 200,000 lives.

The authors tell their story entirely through individuals, on a day-to-day hour-by-hour basis, as though they were flipping a camera eye from one scene to another, mostly in close-ups.

The result is a racy, at times bewildering, but always vivid thriller. Among the principal participants are a German general who commanded the occupation forces; an obscure Resistance figure who at the very last hour convinced Eisenhower to change his mind; the Swedish diplomat Raoul Nordling, who rescued several thousand political prisoners from massacre and later negotiated a cease-fire which gave the city's Gaullists the time they desperately needed; De Gaulle himself; and a double agent in the German headquarters.

War's fears, ironies, braveries, tragedies, chaos and stubborn hope are all portrayed in this book's graphically personalized, high-speed narrative of a wild chapter of history.

A Study Of 9 In United States In 'America'

PIONEERS AND CARETAKERS, a Study of Nine American Women Novelists. By Louis Auchincloss. U. of Minnesota Press. $4.95.

The nine are Sarah Orne Jewett, Edith Wharton, Ellen Glasgow, Willa Cather, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Katherine Anne Porter, Jean Stafford, Carson McCullers and Mary McCarthy.

Auchincloss's choice of a title is explained in his opening paragraphs. His viewpoint is that women, as preservers of the household gods, "have always been the true conservatives, the caretakers of the culture. But because in our nation we have to go back so few decades to get to the Indians, the functions of the caretaker and of the pioneer have become curiously blended." And he observes that our women writers "have struck a more affirmative note than the men."

He acknowledges that more recently our women writers have "penetrated more deeply into the ailments of our time," but argues that "The caretakers, for all their cleaning out, still preserve."

His argument does seem to need a little stretching, in the cases of Miss McCullers and Miss McCarthy, but he manages to make his point. In many ways his most interesting essays are those on Miss Wharton and Miss Cather. Some readers may not wholly share his regard for Miss Porter's "Ship of Fools," yet he makes a good case for it.

Romping Up The Nouveau Art Ladder

If someone were to write a journalistic indictment of the looney fads that grip the world of contemporary art together with the almost incredible lobbying in the realm of art politics, the general public wouldn't believe, and the author probably would be swamped with lawsuits.

But there is a safer, much more deadly and far more amusing way of arriving at the same point. The author simply writes a novel full of grotesque satire and farce on this subject. The effect, instead of being controversial, is hilarious. Full of literary heightening, of course, but all the more devastating. This is what Baird has done.

His story is about a crisis in the guiding committee of an all-powerful something that Baird calls "The Museum of Twentieth Century Art" in Manhattan. Because a pompous billionaire expects to depart for an ambassadorship, his place on the committee has to be filled.

Collection Of Nine Stories By Southerner

EVERY THING THAT RISES MUST CONVERGE. By Flannery O'Connor. Farrar. Straus. $4.95.

Miss O'Coonor's talent was focused on a comparatively narrow aspect of life, but its focus was microscopically sharp and clear. This book of nine stories was her last effort before she died in 1964.

She was a Southern writer and once said that "it does seem evident that the Southern writer is particularly adept at recognizing the grotesque; and to recognize the grotesque, you have to have some notion of what is not grotesque and why."

She wrote on regional themes, and although some were black, it was only part of the time that race was a factor in her stories. She was concerned with death, and particularly with the deaths of pitiable people. She valued humor, but it was a scalding type of satire that she used.

Hopes For Human Dignity Expressed

Hammer's novel is a wonderful blend of innocence and sophistication, giggles and tears, adventure and comedy, spun together with honest compassion. Don't miss it.

The story begins with Wesley (Wes) Wingfield Scott, 16, returning to New York from a summer vacation, spent with his grandparents in a pastoral haven in the Blue Ridge Mountains. He learns that his father Joe has been fired and has gone on a binge.

So Wes spends a very long Saturday on a wild Manhattan odyssey, searching his father's haunts and always just missing him by a few minutes. Wes is no neurotic adolescent mooning over his own emotional problems. He is a young man in search of his father's real image, and determined to help him.

Wes's journey turns into a nightmare. Because he is such an obliging soul, he is distracted and delayed by a nutty shoplifter, a lost boy and a lost dog. He wanders in and out of bars, talks with the cleaning woman in Joe's office, visits a tough neighborhood in Spanish Harlem; he rescues a sophisticated lady at the Plaza and talks to a drummer in a jazz spot.

Gradually you learn what Joe was like. Why did he crack up? Because he is a Good Guy who "has been carrying on an unrequited love affair with the world," and in the big city good guys have a hard time. Wes finds that everywhere his father has been, a life has been illuminated. Even the guy who had to fire Joe wants to help.

Of course this is a story about Wes, too, and Meredith, the warmly human stepmother whom the youngster loves. The reader gets to know three people surprisingly well in this book.

Novel Posits Presidential 'Insanity'

NIGHT OF CAMP DAVID. By Fletcher Knebel. Harper. $4.95.

In hot-line fiction, Knebel points up the question of a glaring loophole in current arrangements for the Presidential succession. Who could tell the President that he is insane? What could anyone do about such a dilemma?

Knebel was co-author, with Charles W. Bailey, of a very popular novel in a related vein, "Seven Days in May," a fictional examination of the chance that a military clique might capture the government.

This time he has set up a situation, not too distant in time from now, in which a young junior senator, Jim MacVeagh, is tapped by President Mark Hollenbach as his favored choice for the vice presidency when Hollenbach runs for his second term.

But MacVeagh is greatly disturbed when he realizes that Hollenbach is acting strangely at times. He becomes convinced that the President is a paranoid personality — with a persecution complex, and delusions of grandeur.

New Breed Of Spies Discussed

THE MAN WHO SOLD DEATH. By James Munro. Knopf. $4.95.

As a war-hardened young man, John Craig had made a lot of money smuggling arms to the Arabs in Tangiers. Later he had taken a more respectable job in London as manager of a line of tramp steamers.

So when the narrative opens, there is an attempt to assassinate him because of his Algerian background, by a fascistic, super - patriot outfit from France. He escapes to become a long wolf.

Conveniently, it happens that the British secret service has a mopping-up section that wants very much to get the French fascists wiped out. Who else but Craig would be a good man for the job? As a marksman, judo expert and spy-type, he is a natural for the job.

But Craig has gone underground, and the first step is for the British agents to find him. The second step is to talk him into the assignment of blotting out a nutty old gent named St. Briac who runs the murderous fascists.

Well, there are plenty of episodes of violence, and the customary interludes of sex, that go with all the trappings of the espionage novel. This one is pretty close to the formula, but it warms up as it goes along.

Vast Contrasts In Rural China

The author, a Swedish anthropologist (son of Gunnar Myrdal, who wrote the famous work "An American Dilemma") presents here a unique documentary account, fascinating in its cummulative effect, of one segment of contemporary China.

He and his wife, after visiting in China for four months, were given permission to live in a small village and talk with its people, for one month, from mid-August to mid-September of 1962.

He chose Liu Ling, in China's heartland of northern Shensi, where the peasants prefer to cut their cave - like houses into the hillsides and a village of 50 households and 212 persons.

Myrdal operates as a sociologist compiling the first-person narratives of many individuals, letting the reader draw his own conclusions.

MARINA OSWALD, left, as she arrived at Parkland Hospital following the shooting of her husband, Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of Pres. J. F. Kennedy, in 1963. Story Of Marina Oswald's Ups And Downs, Marriage

(EDITOR'S NOTE — If any woman suffered heartbreak, Marina Oswald did. Somehow, through the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the murder of her husband and the travail that followed, she retained a dignity beyond her years. Perhaps this week she at last found happiness.

By ROBERT E. FORD

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Russian girl's introduction to America appeared bleak friendless. Her husband had no money, mistreated her, was a misfit in the country of his birth.

Then came two epic tragedies for Marina Nicholaevna Oswald.

Lee Harvey Oswald, the man she loved, assassinated President John F. Kennedy, a man she admired, on Friday.

Lost Faith

But Marina never lost faith in America, her adopted country.

And last week she may have found happiness.

Marina was married Tuesday to Kenneth J. Porter, an electronics technician, after a whirlwind courtship.

Porter is a drag racer and a fishing and boating enthusiast for whom his neighbors and fellow workers have high praise.

Marina Oswald Porter, now 23, is not the same woman she was Nov. 22, 1963 when her husband assassinated Kennedy with a telescope-equipped rifle during a Dallas parade and then murdered policeman J. D. Tippit.

She borrowed clothes to attend her husband's funeral. Persons who knew her then tell of the blank stare in her eyes, the stringy hair, her inability to speak English.

Today her hair is expertly done. She speaks English well, although with an accent. She dresses smartly, and has been seen at night clubs and concerts. She is a moderately well-to-do woman.

How did this come about?

The outlook for happiness and security at the time of President Kennedy's assassination was slim.

She and Oswald married in the summer of 1961 in the Soviet Union, where she hoped to find Utopia and where he renounced the United States.

But he was no happier there, and he returned in June 1962, bringing Marina with him.

Back in the States, Oswald could not keep a job and those he got paid little.

It was Marina who made friends. People found Lee distant and difficult, too proud to accept help but unable to make a home for his family. People liked Marina.

Mrs. Michael R. Paine of Irving, a Dallas suburb, took Marina and June Lee, a toddler, into her home. Oswald lived in Dallas and visited his wife and child once a week. Marina bore a second child, Rachel, shortly before Kennedy and Oswald died.

Oswald objected violently to attempts she made to learn English. Marina told the Warren Commission investigating the assassination that her husband beat her. He objected to the baptism of their elder child and a private ceremony was held without his knowledge.

Then in the two days of killings, Marina seemingly lost even her little chance for happiness.

But the nation thought differently.

It sympathized with the young foreigner, penniless and with two small children to support.

Other church groups and individuals sent money until at one time she had more than $70,000 from contributions and sale of a photograph.

Her Actions

These were some of her actions that America appeared to approve:

Refusal to be critical of her dead husband although convinced of his guilt. "Yes, I love Lee and I am sorry for him. I don't want to believe — but I have too much facts, and facts tell me Lee shot Kennedy." She said he changed after their marriage, became moody and unhappy.

She repeatedly expressed love for America and Americans. "American people have very big hearts. I want to live in Texas. I don't want to go back to Russia and I want to be an American citizen."

She cried when contributions of $7,700 were give her shortly after the assassination. "I didn't believe the people in America, the people anywhere, could be this nice."

She cooperated with authorities. It was she who told officers that Oswald came home the night of April 10, 1963, white and shaken and related to her that he attempted to assassinate Edwin A. Walker, retired Army major general of Dallas. She told them about a rug in Mrs. Paine's garage with which Oswald apparently covered the assassination rifle. She did these things in a manner that did not seem disloyal to her dead husband but only seemed an effort to set the record straight for history.

She seemed composed at all public appearances, perhaps at first from the shock and later because it is her nature.

She appeared to be in seclusion shortly after the slayings but granted a few interviews.

Lately, on the advice of a publishing representative who is helping her write a book, she has said very little.

Porter, 27, earns $600 a month at Texas Instruments, Inc., where he has worked for five or six years. It is his third marriage. One was a brief teen-age romance. He has two children by his second wife. The second marriage ended in divorce in January 1964.

He was residing in a room at the home of Mrs. Bill Clark, who lives two doors from Marina. Porter and Mrs. Clark's son, Joe, are friends and both work at Texas Instruments.

On Horse

Marina was drinking coffee on the Clark patio when Porter rode up on a horse for their first meeting.

Porter introduced Marina to fishing and boating and much of their courting was on such outings.

Marina was gay Tuesday night when she and the bridegroom returned briefly to her home in Richardson, a Dallas suburb, after a race with reporters in two states to get their blood tests, the license and to be married by a justice of the peace.

"I feel wonderful," she told reporters.

"I met him right back there," she said, pointing to the patio two doors away. But she would say little more.

Porter said he proposed two weeks before their marriage.

Gov. Wallace

With Jimmy Hatten

We wonder how long it will be before a major TV network again invites Alabama Gov. George Wallace to appear to be questioned on a news panel show.

Maybe anytime soon, but we doubt it. Gov. Wallace, who will speak today at Farmerville in ceremonies honoring Woodrow Downs, has the ability to parry questions which are put to him with the intention, it would seem, to embarrass.

Perhaps in this instance, parry is not the right word, maybe it should be sidestep. Whichever it is, he always comes back with a thrust. We've seen him on two network shows of this type. Whenever the shows come to an end, normally the camera focuses on each newsman and the target of the newsmen's questions.

Gov. Wallace hasn't left the newsmen smiling either time.

There are many views of Gov. Wallace, but whatever one's personal opinion of the man, there is one quality about him that cannot be detracted from.

He knows how to handle himself, he is a man of firm convictions, and he has the widest following in the nation for a man who has had the "racist" label applied time and again.

Too, if he is not the man who is best to speak for the South on a national level, he is certainly one who has the ability to get his message across as well as any politician around.

This very trait, perhaps, is the reason that his name arouses emotion. There's no soft-pedaling, for whatever the public says, there are so many of us who say aloud that a firm stand should be taken on this or that, while hoping privately that the thing will just be soothed over and let die.

He has been called a paradox. Well, the paradox, who is the epitome of "Southern resistance" to millions, and the "dying gasp" of a lost cause to other millions, will be in our midst today.

That's at Farmerville, 1:30 p.m., and the event is open to the public.

Dedication Set For Pineville Shrine Today

A group from the Monroe area will travel by special bus to Pineville today to observe dedication ceremonies for a Way of the Cross Shrine recently completed at Maryhill retreat.

Mrs. L. F. Rolleigh of Calhoun, chairman of the shrine project, who spearheaded the personal solicitations for funds totalling between $8,000 and $10,000, said a bus will leave from St. Matthew's Catholic Church parking lot at 2 p.m. and will return around 8 p.m.

Dedication of the shrine, which was constructed over a five - year period, will be at 4:30 p.m. by Bishop Charles P. Greco of the Diocese of Alexandria. The shrine contains three life size statues of white carrara marble, a figure of Christ on a redwood cross, St. Francis of Assassi in a posture of adoration, the Risen Christ, and 14 stations, each with a hand - carved plaque affixed to a redwood cross.

10 Playgrounds For Children Open Monday

The Monroe Recreation Department will open 10 playgrounds Monday morning for supervised summer programs for children six through 15 years of age.

The playground programs will be conducted from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Softball, Zel ball, box hockey, and a variety of other games, contests, handicraft and other special activities will be held each week. Every Friday will be a special event day.

All playgrounds will have a supervisor and an assistant. The supervised program will be in operation for eight weeks and parents are urged to send children to the nearest playgrounds.

The playgrounds are located throughout the city, Linda Benton, Barkdull Faulf, Clara Hall, Georgia Tucker, Lexington and Sherrouse for white children, and Lincoln, Clark and Carver elementary schools and Johnson's Recreation Center for colored children.

THIS IS A REAL OLD picture and it shows the Monroe Volunteer Fire Department members of about 70 years ago according to M. J. Renaud of 615 Avoyelles Street who brought it in. Of course, the vehicle in those days was called a fire wagon and was pulled by mules or horses, and the animals in this case were named Bob and Jim. Some of the volunteers in the picture when it was made include Charlie Schultz, Frank Moore, Willie Sadd, Ike Coon, Ralph Meyer, George Hebles, Paul Hilton, Willie Schultz, Paul Newdney, Marcel Renaud, Adolph Renaud, and A. Renaud. If you have a picture of an old Twin Cities scene bring or send it in to us along with all of the information you have. We'd like to have it for publication.

Busy Governor Makes Gains

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The fiscal legislature which ends Tuesday granted Gov. John McKeithen the state's first billion dollar budget, plus $140 million in bonds and a strong push toward a second straight term.

The young chief executive lost sleep fighting racial outbreaks at Bogalusa, but continued to exercise firm legislative control and received a legislative nod for a $52.5 million state spending increase.

His $911 million general appropriations bill climbed $8 million in moving through the 30-day session. It is the backbone of the record $1.04 billion state budget for next fiscal year starting July 1.

The legislature returns Monday to act on 34 Senate bills in the House and 10 House proposals in the Senate.

The House goes to work at 11 a.m. the Senate at 5 p.m., in what may be the final honeymoon session. In Louisiana politics, the love feast of governor and legislature usually begins breaking up in midterm.

The McKeithen administration had to quietly block millions of dollars in special money bills by individual lawmakers, and floor leaders warned tax raises may lie ahead.

Since the people will vote in November, 1966, on whether to let governors serve two consecutive terms—a political dream McKeithen intends to make come true—his next headache is now to solve future revenue demands in the face of that coming public vote.

Some legislators already are restless about lack of legislative strength, after the administration helped in turning aside several proposals this time to trim a governor's powers.

But McKeithen has a new bond program which is practically a blank check for him, and this is a future power lever.

Just as President Johnson is credited with being highly effective in Congress because he was once a leader in its halls, Gov. John McKeithen is the first Louisiana governor in 29 years who served earlier in the legislature. And he was House floor leader, so he possesses know-how.

It was no surprise when the two-term proposal by Sen. Austin Fontenot of Opelousas swept through both houses in landslide votes.

McKeithen once again is looking into Louisiana's never ending search for federal-state accord on an offshore boundary. Another strategy session will be held at the mansion Sunday.

More than $750 million is held in escrow by the federal government from oil and gas revenues in the disputed boundary territory.

There has been behind-the-scenes mention about a possible partial agreement which could bring the state $60 million to $70 million.

Negotiations continue in Washington through a special state assistant attorney general, Austin Lewis of New Orleans.

The governor long has expressed hope that what Louisiana might gain eventually is some form of tax concession—for state revenue always is his problem.

Any tidelands accord might mean a chance to avoid prospects of having to consider new tax measures in the coming year.

The fiscal session was marked by hard work of members, although their anger was plain at the confusion and time-killing process of deciding whether bills were fiscal or not.

This wasn't the fault of lawmakers and under that burden they stuck to their desks for long, long hours without a break for lunch.

Apartment Fire Leaves Families Here Homeless

Nine families were left homeless in the wake of a fire Friday that did extensive damage to a 10-unit apartment house at 3511 Madison Avenue in Monroe.

Three firemen were said to have received slight injuries in fighting the blaze but none of the occupants were reported injured.

A Monroe fire department spokesman said the fire started in a kitchen in an upstairs unit of the two-story structure and spread to three other apartments through the attic. Three units of the fire department, answering the call at 8:20 a.m., characterized the blaze as under control at 9:15 a.m.

James W. Beaver, owner of the building, said nine of the 10 apartments were occupied at the time of the fire. Beaver declined to estimate the extent of the loss until conclusion of investigations.

Crewmen Avoid Burning Aircraft

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — An Air National Guard tanker plane, returning from a routine training flight, ran off the runway and burned Saturday. The 11 persons aboard escaped without injury.

The plane was a KC97G used for refueling other planes. It has four engines.

Sources said two of the four engines were reversed to brake the plane's forward progress but two failed to reverse, causing the airplane to ground loop.

Starts Tradition

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Freshmen at the University of California's new San Diego campus wanted to establish some traditions, so —

They elected Friday a "watermelon queen" — Elisabeth Heller, 19, of Pasadena, Calif.

Then they escorted her to the roof of a seven-story classroom building and handed her a 20-pound melon.

Dogpatch Style Winners Named

"Dogpatch style" was the theme for costumes worn by more than 50 employees at a sidewalk sale held Saturday by the merchants of Eastgate Shopping Center.

Selected by judges as the three top winners were Peggy Whitlock of S. H. Kress and Company, first place; Hazel Benford of Field's, second place; and Walter Brooks of Gordon's Jewelers, third. Cash prizes were awarded to the winners.

NO KARATE HERE

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's Interior Minister Jan de Klerk threatens to cancel a tour by Japanese karate experts if they get any publicity and a legislator in Cape Town proposes government control over karate and judo instruction books.

South African karate impresario Sebastian Hawkins commented: "What do you think would happen if 20,000 Bantu (Africans) learned karate? They could have this country in chaos overnight."

Completions High In Monroe Field

Monroe Gas Field in Union Parish led the way in number of completions listed in the Monroe Oil and Gas District weekly report issued by Duncan S. Cook, director. Nine completions were logged.

This same field was also among the high in number of new locations with a total of five.

The total of 36 applications for permit to drill for the week ending June 3 was the highest recorded thus far this year. It topped last week's number by one.

The fourteen completions tallied during the week were four more than the previous week.

A re-completion was recorded in Olla Field of LaSalle Parish, Cities Service Oil Company's E. B. Nugent No. B 1, recompleted 4-8-65-guaged 5-13-65, 16 barrels of oil per day, open ch-P. 2193-97 feet, BS&W-97 per cent, Gr33 degrees, 2235 feet.

Business Briefs

Jack E. Meadows, manager of paper operations for the Crossett Division of Georgia-Pacific, said employees at the mill would be called back to work beginning at 7 a.m. The mill has been closed since May 15 as a result of a May 12 explosion in a recovery boiler. With the recovery boiler out of service, pulpmaking capacity at the G-P paper mills here was reduced, making it necessary to close the foodboard mill.

HOMER PROMOTIONS

HOMER (Special) — Promotions and new assignments have been announced by officials of the Ludlow Corporation and the Marvellum Company.

J. Elford Nash, formerly plant manager at the Homer plant of Ludlow's Plastic Division, has been appointed manufacturing manager of both the Marvellum Company and the plastic division. He will make his headquarters at Holyoke, Mass.

Daniel B. Seger has been appointed plant manager at Homer, and will report to Nash.

The announcements were made by Robert D. Smith, personnel director of the Ludlow Corporation at Homer, and Robert Hano, president of Marvellum, to whom Nash reports in his new post.

OFFICIAL RETIRING

ST. LOUIS (Special) — Charles D. Peet, vice president-finance of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, will retire July 1 after 49 years of railroad service, 45 of which were with MoPac.

City Building Permits Soar

May was an unusually busy month for issuing building permits in Monroe, according to Dale B. Martha, coordinator.

There were a total of 107 permits issued totaling $807,603. It was the largest number of permissions to build in the city thus far this year - obtained from the Monroe Building Inspector's Office.

The month of June was ushered in with a flurry of activity also. For the week ending June 4, Martha reported a total of 24 permits at a cost of $145,050.

Types of permits and costs issued in May were 21 one-family dwellings, $303,200; one auto sales and service, $360,463; one store building, $26,000; one office, $18,000; and one auto repair service, $14,000.

In May there were also 54 residence alterations and additions, $51,990, and 11 non-resident alterations and additions, $33,950. Two buildings were moved inside the city, three moved outside the city, and 12 buildings were demolished.

Permits obtained from the Building Inspector's Office the first week of June went to W. P. Allen, erection of brick veneer building for beauty salon at 2001 Tower Drive, $15,000; W. C. Stocks Register Fourth Straight Weekly Decline

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week had one of its worst losses of the year and extended its weekly series of declines to four straight.

As the week ended, Wall Street analysts were citing the level of around 900 in the Dow Jones industrial average as a support line that could provide a springboard for a traditional summer rally — if the support really holds.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 17.17 to 900.87, its worst loss since the week ended May 22 when it fell 17.61.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 7.4 to 328.4. This was its sharpest decline since the week ended Nov. 23, 1963, when it fell 9.8 in reaction to the assassination of President Kennedy.

The market was a broad one, with 1,536 issues traded, of which 1,097 declined and 294 advanced.

Volume for the four-day trading week, cut short by the observance of the Memorial Day holiday on Monday, was 21,941,830 shares compared with 24,867,331 for the full five-day week preceeding.

Cannon Hired

OAK GROVE (Special) — Ed Cannon Jr., of the West Carroll Parish Hospital, has been hired by the local hospital board as a permanent salaried administrator.

Cannon has been medical technologist with Biggs and Golson clinic for the past 18 years.

According to Cannon the completion date for the hospital is in September, but it will probably take two and a half months to equip and stock the twenty - five bed unit.

Cities In Kansas Swept By Floods Caused By Rain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floods born of torrential rains surged into Kansas cities Saturday, driving hundreds from their homes as a large part of the Midwest was alerted for tornadoes, more rain and hail.

At least 13 persons died in storm-related accidents.

The National Guard also helped evacuate 100 residents at Eldorado, farther north on the Walnut.

Streams in the eastern and central part of the state flooded numerous smaller cities and farmlands.

At 7 o'clock Saturday night, little additional rain had fallen in Kansas and neighboring Missouri, soaked over overnight downpours of up to eight inches.

A tornado hit 15 miles south of Minneapolis-St. Paul where several farm buildings were reported destroyed at Rosemount and Lakeville, Minn. And portions of Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and South Dakota, were alerted by the Weather Bureau for probable tornadoes, hail and rain.

A dike break at Augusta, a city of some 7,000, threatened to knock out the power plant. Seventy teen-age volunteers had built a protective dirt bank around the plant but it gave way. The National Guard trucked in dirt to rebuild the wall. Sandbags were used until the supply ran out. Water also poured over a 15-foot dike in the south side of town, where workers frantically tried to repair the breaks.

"Those kids did a wonderful job," said Mayor Lee Bennett.

Augusta was getting the crest of the Walnut's waters that had hit Eldorado some 12 hours earlier. The flood receded somewhat after guardsmen had helped evacuate a part of Eldorado, a city of 12,500.

Marble bathrooms are becoming suburban status symbols.

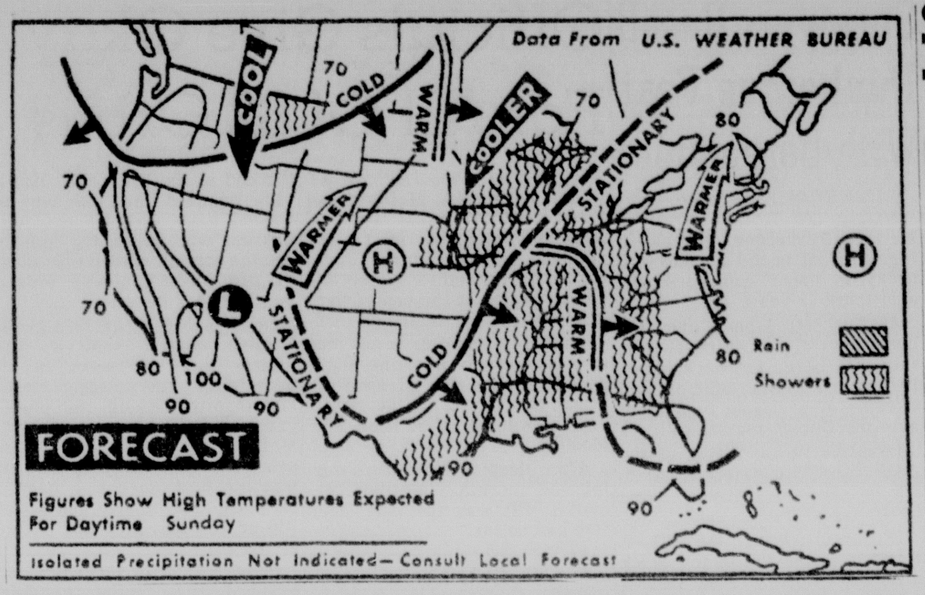
Who Can Lose A Hippopotamus?

INDIANA, Pa. (AP) — It's easy to forget to take along small things on a trip — but a hippopotamus?

The Sells & Gray Circus folded its tents in this western Pennsylvania town Wednesday night and moved on to Wimber, 40 miles away, leaving behind a 6,833-pound hippo.

The animal was found unattended in a trailer truck. Clearly marked on the outside was "hippopotamus."



SHOWERS AND thundershowers are expected today from the Gulf coast to upper lakes and Mississippi valley. There will be occasional rain in the mid-Mississippi valley and showers in the northern Rockies. It will be warmer along the east coast and from the southern plateau northward; cooler from the upper lakes to the central plains, and the northern Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Viet Air Raids Alter Conflict Very Little

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Those who predicted that U.S. air strikes in North Viet Nam would bring a decision in the Vietnamese war have had four months to prove their point.

About the most they can claim is that the air strikes have helped advance the day when some solution can be sighted and it is not even easy to back that contention.

The bombings began Feb. 7. Hundreds of sorties have blasted the northern area ruled by Ho Chi Minh. The announcements tell of scores of bridges and other targets damaged or wiped out.

The real story of the effect has not been told, for several reasons.

No Western reporters are in North Viet Nam nor are any taken along on the raids, as was done in World War II. The returning pilots are normally not available for newsmen's questioning and what they could tell of observable results is questionable anyway.

U.S. officials depict the bombings as heavily oriented in the direction of psychological warfare as a means of convincing the powers that rule from Hanoi and their Chinese backers that theirs is a losing game, that they are likely to suffer greater damage unless they do their part to call off their help to the Viet Cong forces fighting on the ground in South Viet Nam.

On the evidence available they have not been convinced. There would be a lot of surprised officials in Saigon if Ho Chi Minh waved a white flag tomorrow.

The war that seems likely to bring the payoff—the ground war—continues by bits and pieces across the miles of fruitful fields and wide jungle areas that make up South Viet Nam's countryside.

The idea that the Saigon government's forces are fighting this war against the Viet Cong with an occasional U.S. adviser standing by still is promoted.

Slipping Ground Tearing Houses On West Coast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Slippage and cracking of land on a bluff above Pacific Coast Highway suddenly accelerated Saturday, rending and shifting expensive houses and apartments and threatening a deluxe 36-unit motel below.

"Three houses are gradually cracking," said police Sgt. L. C. Allomong. "You can hear the windows popping and the lumber snapping and see gaping cracks in the sides of buildings as they tilt and twist."

Allomong gave this description after a survey:

A large apartment house on Los Liones Drive caving in and falling away — one-fourth of it severed by workemen in an effort to keep the rest of the building from sliding. An adjoining apartment building also giving way.

Fifth to sixty families evacuated from the motel, apartments and $60,000-$70,000 homes.

One house has dropped 20 feet below street level.

Japanese Fishers Detained By U.S.

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Japanese vessel fishing for salmon in waters closed to Japan under a 1953 treaty was stopped by a Coast Guard cutter Saturday and ordered to accompany the cutter to Adak in the Aleutian Islands, the Coast Guard said.

The 17th District Coast Guard headquarters here said the 80-foot boat Wakashio Maru No. 8 was stopped about 16 miles east of the line prescribed in the treaty.

The Coast Guard said it was contacting Japanese officials in Washington to determine disposition of the Japanese fishing boat and its crew. It was not known how many men were aboard.

The Coast Guard said the Wakashio Maru was recovering nets containing sockeye — red — salmon when it was intercepted by the cutter Wachusett. The cutter reported that the Japanese boat had about two tons on board after it completed recovery of the nets.

The district Coast Guard headquarters said its action was approved by Coast Guard headquarters in Washington.

Under the North Pacific salmon fisheries treaty, a signatory nation which sights a boat of another in closed waters is authorized to seize and detain the vessel and crew. Arrangements are then made between the two nations involved for disposition of the vessel and crew. The penalty can be prescribed by the nation whose boat is in violation.

Rear Adm. George Synon, commander of the Coast Guard district, said three vessels were sighted 70 miles east of the line, two 28 miles east of it and six from three to four miles east of it Friday. The line is 175 degrees west longitude. Synon said all 11 had returned to the Japanese side of the line prior to Saturday's incident. Five were sighted Thursday at locations varying from 28 to 70 miles east of the line.

The line was drawn as a conservation measure to reduce the taking on the high seas of salmon which spawn in Alaskan waters. The Japanese contend they take few such salmon.

The Wakaship Maru was intercepted about 125 miles southwest of Adak and was not expected to reach the naval station there until early this morning.

The location of the interception was described by the Coast Guard as 50 degrees, 41 minutes of north latitude and 174 degrees, 36 minutes of west longitude.

Door Still Open To Asian Peace, Secretary Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday repeated President Johnson's offer of unconditional discussions on Viet Nam, but warned that the United States will not yield to aggression.

"The doors, as far as we are concerned, are always open for a peaceful settlement" of the Viet Nam conflict, Rusk told the closing session of the congress of the International Publishers Association.

"But aggression cannot succeed, because successful aggression breeds new aggressions," Rusk added.

"In our exploding world the publishers have a critical mission," the message said.

"Understanding is a necessity for survival," it added, and urged the publishers to create "a world in which men are free to read and free to exchange ideas, in which literate men are the majority, not the minority."

Mankind, Rusk said, is living in a "world of astonishing changes" and peoples of the world must accommodate themselves to the inevitability of the changes.

PRESIDENT CHARLES DE GAULLE

DeGaulle: France Must Become First

EDITOR'S NOTE — Charles de Gaulle still sees France over his shoulder, back in the days of glory, and everything he does is directed toward the return of that era. Frankreich Uber Alles — France First of All — is the motto, and the goal is a base for a world role.

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — Under President Charles de Gaulle, it has been said—and only half in jest—that French foreign policy can be summed up in a single phrase: Frankreich Uber Alles.

This is a paraphrase of the old German slogan and can be translated roughly as "France First of All."

This is De Gaulle's creed and it shows in every move the French Foreign Ministry makes. A devotion to the nation-state has long been a hallmark of De Gaulle's character, and in France today foreign policy is strictly a one-man show with De Gaulle in all the roles.

A deeply mystical faith in his nation is the impelling force in De Gaulle's determination to re-establish France as one of the world's great powers.

The Favorite

The notion of France as heaven's favorite shines through the pages of De Gaulle's war memoirs. "France cannot be France without greatness," he declares. In the same passage he confesses that he thinks of France "like the princess in the fairy tales or the Madonna in the frescoes, as dedicated to an exalted and exceptional destiny. Instinctively I have the feeling that Providence has created her either for complete success or for exemplary misfortunes."

In a recent television address De Gaulle waxed almost lyrical in praise of the nation-state as a vehicle for human progress. Many challenge this idea as having died with the 19th century, and even De Gaulle compromises a bit to conform with 20th century realities. But once his basic premise is accepted, De Gaulle's policy and purposes become at least understandable.

They are not very original. On the contrary, they are what might be expected from someone born in the last century and deeply steeped in his country's history, perhaps unduly attached to the glorious pages of that story and endowed with a sense of personal historic mission.

De Gaulle is simply following the footsteps of Richelieu, Louis XIV, Napoleon and Napoleon III in a drive to dominate the continent and then utilize this as his base for a big power role on the world stage. In this thinking, Paris would not merely be a member of the Allied team, but rather a separate power center to be reckoned with in Washington and Moscow.

For this reason De Gaulle has insisted on conducting an independent policy toward Red China, Viet Nam, the Middle East, South America, etc., in an effort to build or restore French influence in all parts of the globe. Hence, too, De Gaulle's insistence on having his own nuclear force which could be invoked without anyone else's permission.

And De Gaulle steadfastly opposes anything which can be construed as an infringement on France's full, complete sovereignty.

Distinction

As to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, De Gaulle makes a distinction between the alliance as such and the organization which administers or implements it. He opposes the integrated command system established by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower — now headed by U.S. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer — at a time when the West really feared a Russian invasion, because this interferes with complete control of France's own forces.

But De Gaulle has always approved the idea of an alliance with America as well he might. For one thing, it would be indispensable in case of actual conflict. This is probably why De Gaulle pledged full support to the United States in the Cuban missile crisis.

In a nuclear stalemate, however, the alliance serves another purpose: protection. NATO means, among other things, that the United States will maintain troops in Germany, and as long as Germany is protected France is protected as well. Thus, De Gaulle can take an independent line in world affairs knowing full well that the United States will protect France regardless of what France does in diplomacy. De Gaulle can enjoy the best of both worlds, whether Washington likes it or not.

He doesn't want to destroy NATO, only to utilize it for his own nationalistic purposes.

In the nuclear age, such a diplomacy has its limits. France is smaller than Texas and has less than 50 million people. A hydrogen bomb attack could literally destroy the country. Experts say only a nation with continental elbow room, such as the United States or Russia, can hope to absorb surprise attack and still be able to reply in kind.

This is the so-called "second strike capability," and in the 20th century a nation must have it for its nuclear deterrent to be really effective and credible.

De Gaulle's concession to this situation has been what might be called a policy of concentric circles, with Paris, of course, at the center, and the Common Market as the medium.

Thus, De Gaulle kept Britain out of the Common Market to prevent British competition for leadership and to insure that France would be the most powerful member, the only one with a nuclear arsenal. De Gaulle signed the friendship treaty with West Germany to form an entity overshadowing the Common Market, with the Germans in the role of junior partner. After all, West Germany is still only half a country and is likely to remain that way for a long time. Italy and the Benelux countries are almost forced to go along with whatever the French-German combine wishes.

At least, all that has been the theory. This is a sort of extension of the nation-state concept to Western Europe, with France very much in the driver's seat.

With control of Western Europe, France could then push its influence out to Scandinavia, the Iberian Peninsula, Central Europe, and, who knows? Eventually the Balkans. But the big question is whether De Gaulle can really keep the Germans and the Italians and Benelux in hand. Thus far, he hasn't had too much success.

De Gaulle also seems to look to some future dialogue with Moscow in which France, as the custodian of most of the continent, would have the stronger voice.

His Concept

This appears to be his concept of a Europe "from the Atlantic to the Urals," which constantly crops up in his speeches.

This concept runs afoul of the Atlantic Community ideal. The Atlantic Community concept means the American presence, and in such a framework the United States naturally overshadows France — the French would no longer be the dominating factor and this may well explain De Gaulle's scorn for "Atlanticism."

This also helps explain De Gaulle's veto of Britain as not being "truly European." De Gaulle regards Britain as doomed to become an American satellite and thus, as his spokesmen have repeatedly said, an American "Trojan horse" in the European organization.

To enhance French power on the continent De Gaulle shed the nation's various colonies in Africa, apparently regarding them, especially Algeria, as a drain on the country's resources. During the war, in exile in London and Brazzaville, De Gaulle was struck by the way the various British dominions had come to the mother country's' aid, and he began advocating a similar sort of "French Commonwealth" for the postwar era.

Algeria was a special case which was deeply dividing the French population itself, and which was greatly harming French relations with the Arab world.

For along with a campaign to spread French influence on the continent, De Gaulle has labored to build it elsewhere in the world. One way of doing this is to take potshots at the Americans, and thus to attract those who would like to indulge in the present-day version of twisting the lion's tail — tugging at Uncle Sam's whiskers.

And all the time De Gaulle knows that the Americans, for their own safety, are bound to protect western Europe, including France.

The president's ideas of French grandeur are hardly surprising in view of De-Gaulle's background and age. He was born into a patriotic family of northern France in 1890, just 20 years after the great humiliation of 1870 at the hands of Bismark's Prussia, and he came of age in the years when all France was concentrating on revenge for the losses of 1870.

Survivors Recall Dunkerque Feat With Ceremonies

DUNKERQUE, France (AP) —Nearly 300 British survivors of the Dunkerque evacuation marched out to the beaches Saturday to honor comrades who died there 25 years ago.

As low tide lapped over the last traces of a little evacuation ship that never got back home, British and French officials laid wreaths at a simple monument atop the Dunkerque seawall.

Buglers echoed the "Last Post" over the soft dunes which absorbed much of the furious German bombardment during the nine days that the 350,000-man British force struggled between land and sea.

Several hundred yards away, some of the surviving ships of the campaign moved past. A wreath was tossed onto the waves. A few shellfish gatherers scarcely looked up.

The sun came through a high overcast and an old Shackleton bomber of the Royal Air Force rumbled past at low altitude to drop flowers, it made one more swoop then turned toward England.

Officials Give Okay For All Of 62 Orbits

Gemini 4 officials said they saw no reason why the flight should not go the planned 62-orbits thus bringing the spacecraft down just after noon EST Monday.

After sleeping four hours during the morning, McDivitt declared: "It was the best sleep I've had so far."

As the spacemen continued to follow the flight plan of experiments, photographic missions and routine medical checks, flight officers announced: "There is absolutely no decrease in their alertness. They are in excellent condition."

Orbit No. 30 — 8:08 a.m. — While talking to the Carnarvon, Australia, tracking station, McDivitt reported that the craft was "in good shape up here." Carnarvon told McDivitt he looked good from the ground. Mission Control Center — reported that communications with Gemini 4 continued to improve as the mission wore on.

Orbit NO. 31 — 9:42 a.m. — Gemini 4 reached the midpoint in its planned four-day flight at the end of the 31st orbit. McDivitt reported he thought he needed more exercise and permission was given for him to use the stretch cord more often. "I just haven't moved around very much," he said.

Orbit No. 32 — 11:15 a.m. — Mission control said it was "fairly well convinced, in all probability" the satellite McDivitt reported seeing and photographing Friday was Pegasus 2. McDivitt said he slept four hours Saturday morning and "it was the best sleep I've had so far." He said he also had about "10 or 15 gulps of water" after he awoke.

Orbit No. 33 — 12:49 p.m. — followed the gemini 4 flight plan. The spacecraft passed over Cuba.

Orbit No. 34 — 2:23 p.m. — McDivitt and White conversed with their wives via the command network. Paul Haney, NASA flight commentator, introduced the wives as "two new capsule communicators." Each wife was emphatic in ordering her husband to "drink some water." The astronauts were also told to get several hours sleep. White was the first to go to sleep.

Orbit No. 35 — 3:58 p.m. — Only small amount of activity and voice communication. The astronauts were told to get plenty of rest.

Orbit No. 36 — 5:35 p.m. — Gemini tracking stations confined their activities to reading radio signals of spacecraft and flight crew environmental systems. White slept at one point and Mission Control Center said it was possible that McDivitt also was asleep.

Orbit No. 37 — 7:09 p.m. — Mission Control Center reported: "In approximately one hour, our Gemini 4 flight crew will have rolled up an accumulative total of space flight time equal to that achieved in all previous American space flights." The United States had nearly 65 man-hours in space prior to the Gemini flight.

Orbit No. 38 (8:44 p.m.)— While talking with the Hawaii tracking station, McDivitt reported having seen another satellite over the Pacific. He said he was at a much greater distance from Gemini 4 than one sighted Friday but that he did take a picture.

Area Crossing Crash Is Fatal

WINNFIELD (Special) — A 37 - year - old Negro pulpwood contractor of Jonesboro was killed instantly at 10:30 p.m. Friday in a car - train crash three miles east of Winnfield at Joyce on Highway 84.

According to state police, Huey Pugh driving a late model car west drove under a flat car being switched across the highway by an Illinois Central freight crew. The car was demolished.

Witnesses said red lights and bells were in full operation at the crossing.

Angola Convicts Given Isolation For Not Working

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — Sixty-five state convicts were placed in isolation Saturday when they refused to help harvest the state penitentiary vegetable crop, Warden J. W. Allgood said.

There was no violence involved at the 18,000-acre prison farm by the Mississippi River.

Prison guards armed with tear gas were sent to the fields, but the gas was not used.

The warden said the convicts had griped mostly about having to do the work on Saturday. The day usually is spent in recreation or rehabilitation classes.

Allgood said prisoners normally do not work on Saturdays except when there is need. He said the 65 prisoners, mostly white, just refused to work.

Some 200 Negro convicts, and a few whites, decided to go to work after spokesmen with the striking prisoners talked over their grievance with the warden.

The 63 white and two Negro striking prisoners were placed in an old cell block used for prisoners who defy authority.

Allgood said when he talked with spokesmen for the defiant prisoners, one of the gripes involved use of inmate guards.

People's Homestead & Savings Association

A home is one of the truly important purchases for a young family. And yet, it is not nearly as difficult to own a home as you may think. In most cases you will need a down payment, so naturally you are saving for it. Then, you'll need a mortgage loan – a loan that you can handle on your present income. Give People's Homestead a chance to approve your mortgage loan. That would make you happy, wouldn't it?

Ark-La-Miss Briefs

Car Crash Fatal

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Jerry Wilson, 17, of St. Bernard Parish died in a hospital here Saturday of injuries received when his car ran off the highway and smashed into a tree near his home earlier in the day.

Pledge Support

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — A total of 81 Crossett area business and professional men have pledged their support of the newly - formed "Crossett Industrial Committee."

Firms and individuals signing up for the Industrial Committee pledged $100 per year over the next three - year period as a means of raising money which will be used solely for industrial purposes and to try to attract new industrial jobs and payrolls to the Crossett area.

Fatalities Reach 6

ABBEVILLE, La. (AP) Funeral services were held Saturday for Carl Sonnier, 17, whose death marked the sixth fatality in a May 30 auto crash near here.

Sonnier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Sonnier of Abbeville, died of injuries in a hospital Friday night.

All six youthful victims were in the same car. It was the worst fatal traffic crash in Vermilion Parish history, investigators said.

Rellis Laviolette, 38, Erath, driver of the other vehicle, remained in critical condition in the Abbeville hospital.

Officers said he was charged earlier this week with five counts of negligent homicide.

Tour Of U.N.

HOMER (Special) — Six area students from Claiborne parish left Saturday for a tour of the United Nations, to take part in the 16th annual United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth as observers at U. N. headquarters. The students were chosen by Friendship Rebekah Lodge of Homer, with three adult counselors.

In the group are James W. Moreland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Moreland of Homer; Robert E. O'Rear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott O'Rear of Homer; George L. Anderson, son of Mrs. Elnora Anderson and L. R. Anderson, Homer; Mary Virginia Bibby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bibby of Minden; Jimmy H. May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert May of Homer; and Charles Phillip Hollenshead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hollenshead of Homer. They will observe at UN headquarters, representatives of member nations will be interviewed, and a tour of various places on return trip.

Motorist Killed

Boatsman Drowns

Director Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — William E. Noonan Jr., Louisiana state supervisor for health, physical education and recreation, was named director of the Lifetime Sports Education project Saturday.

The project, a national effort aimed at improving the quality of instruction of individual sports skills, was established last week by a grant from the Life-Time Sports Foundation to the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Noonan, 39, has been granted a leave of absence from his Louisiana post to head the national program. His headquarters will be in Washington.

Brush and Palette

by Jan Bank

Though many people think of photography as a means to record pleasant family experiences or to advertise in picture form, a particular product, the vast artistic areas covered by photography are probably more numerous and engaged in by more people than the commercial ventures.

With the contributions made to art, in the phototraphic media, in mind, the last show of the season at The Masur Museum of Art has been turned over to the members of The Photographic Society of America (henceforth known as P. S. A.) The local club has obtained from Henry Rush of Shreveport, coordinator for pictorial instruction exhibits for P. S. A., an exciting collection of prints from nationally known exhibitors. There is a special group of prints by Bruce Vaughan of Arkansas and a large representation of works by area members of the society. There are 90 prints in all that compose this exciting show that will open today and be on view until June 27.

For those of our readers familiar with the organization, such camera artists as A. Aubrey Bodine of Baltimore, Md., Wellington Lee of New York, Colonel Fayette Hall of St. Petersburg, Fla., Earl Brown of Detroit, Mich. and Paul Yarrows of The Kodak Co. will be enough to draw fans to the show. Mr. Brown has something of a startling record with 2,200 prints in salons the world over and Mr. Yarrows is only one of the five-star exhibitors, the ultimate award of merit for members.

Local participants in the show are Roscoe Jones, Jack Tarver, Jimmy King, Bob Frazier, Earl Baines, Lloyd Henderson, Sylvester Breard and Lee Estes.

Approximately 90 prints will be on display. The show should be incentive to camera fans of all ages as there is no line drawn between amateur and professional photographers in The Photographic Society of America.

Prints such as these on exhibit can be a valuable contribution to contemporary history, provide informative glimpses into a special way of life and in a series provide pictorial essays.

Auxiliary Memos

Hostesses this week at the Museum, 1400 South Grand in Monroe, will be: Sunday, June 6, Mrs. William Bendel and Mrs. H. Touchstone; Tuesday, June 8, Mrs. Guy Campbell and Mrs. Ralph Marioneaux; Wednesday, June 9, Mrs. W. O. Webb and Mrs. Lloyd Ritter; Thursday, June 10, Mrs. Leonard Russo and Mrs. Alan Sugar and Mrs. C. Don Walker, Mrs. Jack Masur. Friday, June 11, Mrs. Leonard Russo, Mrs. Richard Gunn and Mrs. Earl Grasser Saturday, June 12, Mrs. Viron Burge.

The museum is open daily between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. except Mondays.

Here And There

HERE: Something very special has been accorded Art Center Inc. members, Mary Anita Lennon, Bess James and Ed Schutz. Le Gallerie, a newly formed Shreveport gallery headed by E. G. Rouse has chosen our talented artists for a three-man show that will tour the major cities of the south this summer. Mr. Rouse formerly of New York and Chicago will hold a gala press party in Shreveport this coming Monday night with the show opening to the public at a yet unannounced date later in the week.

THERE: Since we always print the various competitions open to artists of the area and we hope that maybe the column will not include photography buffs, it seems only fair to tell of major competitions we have been informed of open to photographers. The deadline for the fifth annual "Best of Anscochrome" color transparency contest is July 1, according to an announcement by Robert E. Mayer, supervisor of Ansoco Ansco Camera Clubs Services. The top prize is $1,000. For further details write Mr. Mayer at The General Analine and Film Corporation, 140 West 51 St., N. Y. N. Y.

Neshoba Lawyer Wants To Know COFO Finances

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)— Attorneys of Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey filed action in federal court Saturday seeking assurance the Council of Federated Organizations is financially able to pay for litigation if the court rules against them.

In a companion motion, the Citizens Council of America said it would ask at a requested hearing that the suit by COFO be dismissed.

The suit in question is one COFO filed against Rainey, the Council and others seeking relief from what it termed unlawful activity.

COFO filed a suit shortly after the three civil rights workers were killed last year near Philadelphia, and named Rainey, the Council, the Ku Klux Klan and several others and "John Doe and Paul Smith" as defendants.

U.S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize had tossed out the suit on grounds it failed "to state a claim upon which relief should be granted."

The suit had been called a "scattergun" suit which hinted of a conspiracy by lawmen, clandestine groups, county vote registrars and others designed to hinder the rights of COFO and others.

The 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals in New Orleans ordered Mize, who recently died, to hear the suit on its merits.

Because of the death of Mize, the complicated suit is now in the jurisdiction of U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox.

The motion file by the state asked COFO "give security of costs within 60 days" should the court rule in favor of the defendants.

A brief companion motion by the Citizens' Council said if the hearing is set for June 11, it would ask for dismissal of the original far-reaching suit.

Homer Murder Trial Date Set

HOMER (Special)—The trial of Jerry Elmore of Libson, charged with murder in the fatal shooting of his wife and stepson, Raymond, on March 27, has been set for June 28.

A list of 50 petit jurors has been drawn by the parish jury commission.

Governor Sets Commencement Speech At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Commencement exercises for 629 Louisiana Tech candidates for degrees will be held in Memorial Gymnasium here at 4 p.m. today, with the principal address scheduled to be given by Gov. John J. McKeithen.

The graduation program has been announced as follows:

Processional, "Crown Imperial," played by Dr. Marshall E. Bretz, head of the music department; "The Star-Spangled Banner," led by Jerlynne Lott of Jackson, Miss.; invocation, the Rev. Douglas McGuire, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Ruston; "Trumpet Voluntary," played by Wilbur Thames of Mangham, trumpet, and Dinah Chesson of Kinder, organ.

Introduction of distinguished guests by Dr. F. Jay Taylor, Tech president; address by Governor McKeithen; presentation of the candidates for degrees by deans of the schools; conferring of degrees by President Taylor, assisted by Miss Mabel May, registrar.

Presentation of the graduating class gift to Tech by David R. Hruska of Minden; acceptance of the gift by the Tech president; U. S. Air Force ROTC commissioning and U. S. Marine Corps commissioning by Lt. Col. Jack A. Murphy, head of the department of Air Force Aerospace Studies.

Singing of the Tech "Alma Mater," led by Wilbur Thames of Mangham; benediction, the Rev. H. E. Henderson, pastor of the Southside Baptist Church, Ruston; recessional, "Marche Religieuse," played by Dr. Bretz.

Student ushers for the commencement program will be Mary Payne Allen, Lynda Brooks, Patricia Campbell, Betty Corley, Sarah Duggan, Sandra Grigsby, Nelda Henderson, Kathleen Higgs, Donna Kaspar, Mary McCorkle, Eileen Petrus, Nelda Sizemore, Fran Stephenson, Carol Turner, Vicky Van Hooser and Bonita Worsham.

An informal reception will be held in the Student Center immediately after the commencement exercises for the graduates, their relatives, friends and members of the faculty.

AID TO AFRICA

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)— The European Common Market and President David Dacko of the Central African Republic have signed a $3-million aid agreement for production of cotton and coffee and cattle raising.

Good Morning Everybody

(This is K. Able Signal again)

I am not going to apologize for the outcome of the fight the other evening, although I do feel embarrassed that so many people turned out to see it at the various places and were not given at least 5 minutes of fight entertainment. Apart from the cost (which ran well into four figures) very much effort went into the planning and I feel we should have received more results.

One good thing did emerge though, we were able to expose our picture quality to many people and we received considerable comment on how very much improved the pictures are in our new constructed areas. South Monroe is progressing and we hope to have it completed in about 4 to 5 weeks.

REMEMBER NOW IS THE TIME TO CALL FOR A CONNECTION TO SAVE YOURSELF $10.00. INSTALLATION. THE COST WILL GO TO $19.95 WHEN CONSTRUCTION IS COMPLETE.

We hope soon to start construction in West Monroe and North Monroe where the old system is and of course to extend the new cable to cover all accessible residential areas.

I think what I will do if they offer me the title fight on closed circuit again, is to counter offer — $1.00 for the first round, $10.00 for the second, and so on with the total maximum asking price payable only after the 8th round! What do you think?

'til next week then . . .

Richard Enwright

For some reason, there's always something wonderfully special about coming to New York on a summer Sunday afternoon. It's a rather quiet time and everybody takes it easy. To be sure, there's action on the greens and fairways up at Old Lyme; the crowds are out at the Fair and along the shore at East Hampton. Down at Seabright, small boats dot the blue horizon. Beaches at Fire Island and Montauk are crowded, and out of towners have much of the city to themselves. Even the cabs are lethargic and seem not to be in a hurry.

It's a qiet time, and a goom time to leave the Blackstone and Lou Kreiger's warm hospitality for a little while and stroll on 58th Street over to Fifth Avenue. F.A.O. Schwartz has a new antique toy window display which seems fairyland. The venerable Plaza stands as a monument to the Grand Manner, and the ancient horse and buggies patiently wait at their stands.

It's Fifth Avenue — Fifth Avenue, our Champs Elysses of North America, a beautiful tree-lined avenue which never changes. Bergdorf Goodman, DePinna, Sac's, and Mark Cross are still there; and so are the strollers. Arm in arm, they meander, quietly walking; and maybe now and then, they pause to gaze wistfully at a gaily decorated window. Flags move in a soft breaze, and the beech leaves rustle overhead. Friendly pigeons amble along with the happy parade.

The sun sinks and the beautiful rays enshrine St. Patrick's. About this time over at Rock Center, the flags start coming down. The big gold fountain splashes on and on, and at the French Cafe, you can sit under an umbrella while a whole world seems to pause and pass before your eyes.

For wonderful New York never changes. A whole civilization may crash around his shoulders, but the kind and friendly face of a New York cop will undoubtedly remain. Oceans may rise and fall, but surely, Empire State will rise as a beacon of strength and vitality. Little Caesars strut upon the great stage of life, but the beauty of Central Park must always be there — boys, girls, toy sailboats, and all.

This summer, of course, there is something special, the Fair; but even that with all its glory seems not to affect the average New Yorker who knows it's but a part of his vast, different, and fascinating world. To outsiders, he might seem callous, indifferent, and maybe even unfriendly; but under this crazy facade is something warm and kindly; and most likely he won't admit it, but he's probably glad you're here. If you tell him you like his city, likely as not he'll shrug his shoulders and say, "It's OK;" but start him, and you couldn't get him to stop telling you about it even if you tried. Over on Madison, you can still get a first class steak dinner for less than $2.50, and Hamburger Heaven does a land-office business.

About now, the lights come twinkling on, and down in the subway, the shiny new red cars of the Lexington Avenue - IRT Local come clattering into 59th Street and Bloomingdales. For fifteen cents, you can still ride all over New York — from Pelham Bay Park on one end to Coney Island on the other. Broadway is booming with superb new shows, and splendid hotel doormen are vainly, it seems, forever trying to whistle in the cab which fleets around a nearby corner. Grand Central Terminal now shares a place in the early night with the awe inspiring new Pan Am building, and the contrast of classic and future is something seen, not described. Friends still meet at the big gold clock in the lobby of the Waldorf.

Perhaps the feel of the power, the majesty, and wonder of New York, this magic city, is best captured from the deck of the Circle Line sightseeing boat as it cruises by Battery Park and Wall Street. Trinity Church is still there, ageless and a symbol in the midst of towering financial power. The boat continues by the high Verrazano - Narrows Bridge, which is not only a tribute to Robert Moses who had it built, but to man's vision not only to reach out and touch the stars, and then to stay on earth and create wonder worlds such as this which glides before your eyes. New York is the ever changing, changeless, matchless city.

On the East River, first rays of the sun come up; and over the Hudson, awaken the Statue of Liberty. It's another day, and the flags are going up at Rock Center.

Guide To Good Reading

Book Collection Reaches Standard

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

At long last we are happy to report that the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library has reached the minimum standard of one book per capita. On June 1 the book collection consisted of 101,675 books. We have been working for years to reach this standard and we still need many more books to fill the requests of our patrons, who are doing a great deal of reading. The summer reading club for the children on the Parish began last Monday and the response has been tremendous. We are delighted that the parents of the children realize that a love of reading in one of the most important gifts they can make to their children and that reading is the only way to develop this love.

There are many new books for adult readers this week and we hope that you will find one which interests you. "The Night at Camp David" by Fletcher Knebel has had much advance publicity. It is an exciting story of American politics and will be very popular. Ric Hardman is the author of "The Chaplains Raid", a humorous novel about life in the Marine corps, written by an ex-marine. Mr. Harman writes with the ring of authenticity and this book will interest men who know this marine Corps Life. "Visa For Avalon," written by Winifred Bryher McPhearson is a beautiful allegory of the search for happiness. Those who have read her other books, will surely want to read this one. "The Present From Peking" by David Lampard is an exciting novel of life in Communist China today and of the efforts of a young American businessman to rescue the girl he loves, from the clutches of a Communist War lord. "The Customer is Always" by Lewis Meyer is an account of life in a most unusual bookstore. It is a very funny book and one which many readers will enjoy.

Robert Neill has maintained his usual high level of readibility in his latest historical novel, "The Shocking Miss Anstey." The setting is Regency England and although the times were not delicate, this novel is delicately handled. It is a highly recommended. For mystery readers there are several new titles: "The Lure of the Bush" by Arthur W. Upfield, "The House on K Street" written by Lionel White, "The Turret Room" at Charlotte Armstrong and "The Whispering Cannon" by Nelson Wolford.

Amateur and professional writers will want to see "The Writing And Selling Of Fiction" written by Paul R. Reynolds. It contains much good advice. "Why People Act That Way" is a very fine book of psychology by Lucy Freeman. "The Lord's Prayers" is another of the deep spiritual books written by David Elton Trueblood.

There are some interesting additions to the fine arts collection this week. "Creative Gardens" by James C. Rose will be eagerly ready by landscape gardeners. "Perspective Drawing Handbook" by Joseph D'Amelio should be most useful to students and artists. "Treasure At Home" by John Mebane is a good book for the antique collector. "A Williamsburg Songbook" by John Edmonds contains the words and music to many of the lovely old songs of Williamsburg.

Biographies are popular many readers and there is a great variety in this classification. "Albert, Prince Consort" by Hector Holitho is a revised edition of the defenitive account of the life of the husband of Queen Victoria. "Fred Allen's Letters" edited by Joe McCarthey is a very funny book, which will be widely read and enjoyed. "House With A Hundred Gates" written by April Oursler Armstrong is an account of the life of her father Fulton Oursler and of his conversion to Catholicism. Werner Richter has given us a new biography of "Bismark" the military genius who had such an impace on German history. "Max" by David Cecil is an affectionate biography of Max Beerbohm. "Be All My Sins Remembered" is the spirited biography of Viscount Alexander Spencer Churchill. "A Life in My Hands" is the autobiography of Jacob W. Ehrlich in which he discusses his attitude toward the practice of law. "Notes of A Pianist" by Louis M. Gottschalk is the autobiography of the famous pianist, a native of Louisiana.

There are other interesting biographies "The Available Man" by Andrew Sinclair is a biography of Warren Harding. John Bowle has given us a new interpretation of the life of "Henry VIII". "Humphrey" by Winthrop Griffith is a biography of our Vice President. "Journal of A Soul" is the autobiography of Pope John XXIII and is a beautifully written book. "The Life of Lenin" by Louis Fischer sheds much new light on the Russian Revolution. "The Banners and The Glory" written by the editors of the Army Times is a new biography of General Douglas MacArthur. Wrener Picht has produced a most significant book in "The Life And Thought Of Albert Schweitzer."

There are several very useful additions to the Reference Collection. "A Dictionary of the Social Sciences by Julius Gold, will be widely used and there is a copy in each branch library. "The New City Directory for Monroe and West Monroe is also to be found at each branch of the Library.

DETECTION of an ENEMY

A continuous search for a respiratory ailment that strikes often in the area is being carried on through the Regional Chest Clinic program which serves 12 parishes. Through this program many services are offered to victims of tuberculosis when the disease is detected.

By CAROL BRAXTON
Staff Writer

Tuberculosis is on the increase again with 51,000 persons across the nation in 1964 contracting the disease and 136 persons in Ouachita Parish in the same period also contracting the disease.

These victims of the respiratory ailment are under active supervision at the current time. Since Jan. 1 of this year a total of 25 new cases of active tuberculosis in the parish were placed in the various tuberculosis sanatoriums in the state.

Dr. W. Carroll Summer, director of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, said that tuberculosis "is still the most prevalent communicable disease that we deal with in Ouachita Parish."

Hospital Treatment

He went on to say, "The only adequate place to treat TB is at a hospital. Home treatment is just not effective."

Today with intensive care and rest and proper medication these people can be cured. However, more important possibly than the rest and diet of a patient with tuberculosis is the actual finding and diagnosing of the disease.

What are we doing in this area to find and help these tubercular persons?

In the Twin Cities, residents have available almost at their doorsteps a program called the Regional Chest Clinic which is held twice weekly — Monday and Wednesday — at the health unit.

There, a trained staff of specialists is on hand to help persons suspected of having the disease in every way possible.

The majority of persons attending the clinic for tuberculosis examinations do so after being referred there through private physicians and hospitals. Quite often public health nurses suspect a person they see in the field of having the disease, and they ask him to attend the clinic for an examination.

Dr. James D. Kelly of Monroe, a private physician, who serves as the tuberculosis consultant at the clinic, said that the services offered to the tubercular victim are far more extensive than what can be done by most private physicians. Doctors do not ordinarily have enough time to do all the necessary periodic tests, fill out all the required forms on each patient and keep up the records necessary for each tubercular patient. Kelly said that doctors do not have at their disposal the services of a varied field of staff members such as those at the health unit who are especially trained in tuberculosis control.

Area Served

The clinic encompasses and serves an area which includes Ouachita, Jackson, Lincoln, Union, Caldwell, East and West Carroll, Richland, Madison, Franklin, Tensas, and Morehouse.

The preliminary step taken in checking persons at the clinic for possibilities of the disease is the traditional x-ray. Byron Bayne, technician, handles this portion of the clinic. It is his job to take pictures of the patient's chest and then develop the film which is read by Dr. C. M. Lobrano, radiologist. Bayne is the regular technician at the clinic and does all Ouachita Parish Health Unit x-rays in addition to the clinic. Miss Fannye Wasson, regional area technician, takes x-rays in the other parishes in the area and sends them to the clinic here for the reading.

Dr. Lobrano checks the film for any disease of the chest, particularly looking for signs of tuberculosis infection. Often he will find a person with unsuspected heart disease or cancer after reading the films. He then describes the type of tuberculosis or other disease present for the tuberculosis consultant.

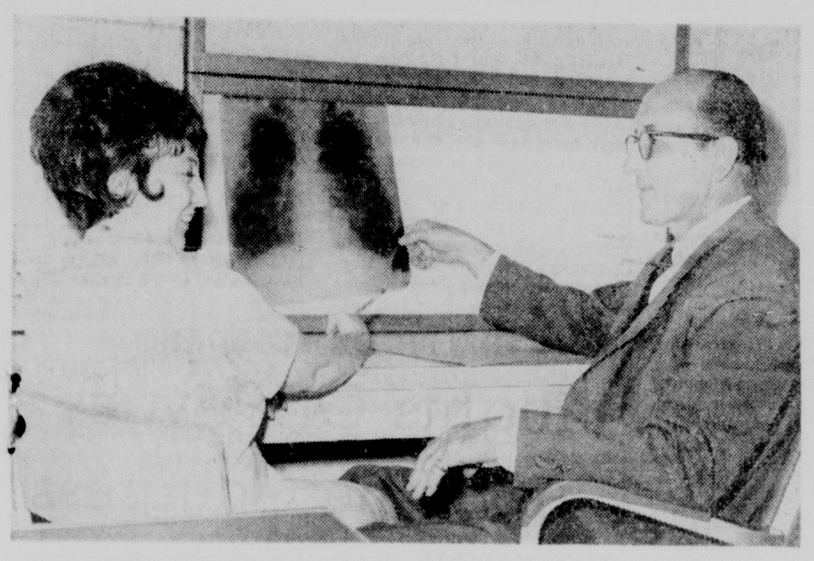
Other Tests Made

Although the films sometimes show no signs of disease, other tests are made to leave no room for doubt. These tests include the stern-needle skin test and the tuberculin skin intradermal test. A test of the sputum is also done by the Monroe Regional Laboratory which is housed next door to the health unit.

Most of the x-rays taken are of the small film type (70mm) which means that a person is x-rayed fully clothed. Dr. Lobrano may request a large film (14x17) made which means that Bayne takes a picture of the patient's chest unhindered by clothing. This gives Lobrano a somewhat better view of the area.

Whenever a small film is read by the radiologist as "suspicious" a letter is sent to the person asking him to come in for a large x-ray. If no response is made by the individual, a second letter or a nursing visit is made. The clinic personnel, especially Mrs. Toby Smith, tuberculosis clerk, who handles this correspondence, tries in every way possible to get the person back for a recheck.

THREE PERSONS connected with the chest clinic at the local health unit discuss one tubercular patient's progress since he first began attending the clinic. Dr. James Kelly, tuberculosis consultant, points out a tubercular cavity to Mrs. Jody Bergeron, standing, who is a staff nurse with the health unit, while Mrs. Toby Smith, tuberculosis section clerk, takes dictation. (Staff photos by George McCarty and Richard Greene)



MRS. TOBY SMITH, tuberculosis section clerk with the Regional Chest Clinic at the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, takes dictation from Dr. C. M. Lobrano, radiologist, as he reads a large film on a tuberculosis case. Dr. Lobrano also checks for heart disease and cancer while reading the x-rays.

Examination Notes

Dictation and notes on each patient seen by Dr. Kelly and notes on the x-rays read by Dr. Lobrano are taken by Mrs. Smith. This includes x-ray readings, medical examinations and drug therapy recommendations.

Mrs. Smith is in charge of keeping a check on the anti-tuberculosis drugs which are dispensed by the physician. She also keeps a record in the drug file on the patient which states the date of the visit, patient's weight, medication prescribed and amount.

A file and appointment schedule book is kept on all persons needing large films made. After the second attempt is made to get the person to the clinic, the case is referred to one of the public health nurses for a field follow - up. Letters of inquiry are sent to private physicians, hospitals or wherever the patient is being followed outside the clinic. Each patient has a folder with his name and assigned number which contains all information on his particular case.

Out-Patients

All cases of tuberculosis which have been discharged from one of the TB hospitals, but live in this region, are seen on an outpatient basis at the clinic. A folder is made on them also and a record kept on their progress.

Of the 12 parishes covered by the clinic, x-rays are done only for Ouachita, Jackson and Caldwell Parishes at the clinic, as the other parishes offer this service at their health units. However, the other facilities of the clinic are available for all 12 parishes. No films made of persons with tuberculosis or cancer can be destroyed until after the death of the patient. All films are kept on file in a special record room at the unit.

Another principal step in the examination of a person for tuberculosis is the sputum test which is done by Reggie Parham, lab technician with the Monroe Regional Laboratory.

Sputum, phlegm from the throat passage, is sent to him on suspected cases by doctors, nurses and health units in the 12-parish area.

In his lab set-up he does a direct smear which means a sample of the sputum is placed on a slide and examined under a microscope for evidence of the TB organism. Parham then makes a culture from the sputum, regardless of whether the microscopic examination revealed negative or positive evidence of the disease.

Difficult To See

"It is often hard to see the microbacteria of the disease under a microscope," Parham explained, "because it can be confused with that of another pulmonary disease."

The culture test calls for a chemical treatment of some of the sputum. This treatment will cause particles to form and these sputum sediments are used to inoculate Lowenstein's medium.

Four cultures are made on each sputum, Parham said. One tube is kept in the dark, one tube kept at room temperature and two at body temperaure under light. These tests can be used to determine the type of TB and if the disease is actually present.

The tubes are placed in an incubator at body temperature and held there six weeks. These Parham checks every Monday to see if any growth has formed. If no growth has formed in six weeks, the culture is turned out as negative.

If a growth appears on the medium, some of the growth is taken out and stained and again viewed under the microscope for further tests. These slides are then sent to the central laboratory at New Orleans for confirmation of the findings.

It is necessary for Parham to take certain precautions in dealing with the sputum, because of the highly-contagious make-up of the tubercle bacteria. He wears rubber gloves and works under an exhaust hood beneath glass which has fresh air circulating through it. As soon as he is through with a set of sputums, he washes his hands in alcohol or other treated liquids.

He said that the biggest problem encountered in his work is leakage from the tubes which are often sent through the mail by the various health agencies. The tuberculosis organism stays active a long time, he explained, and is one of the hardest to kill. Whenever one of these test tubes containing the sample is leaking, all persons coming in contact with the slip identifying whose sputum it is, and persons touching the tubes could be contaminated.

As soon as any sputum shows up positive on any of the series of tests done, the patient and agency handling the individual cases are notified.

CULTURES of sputum suspected of tuberculosis are being taken from the incubator at the Monroe Regional Laboratory by Reggie Parham, lab technician, who is in charge of this phase of testing for tuberculosis. The tubes contain Lowenstein's medium into which specially-treated sputum has been inoculated.

The Legislature's Problems In 1966

Someone has said that a strong Legislature is one with which you agree and a weak Legislature is one with which you disagree.

On the contrary, The World has disagreed with some steps by the present Louisiana Legislature — chiefly in individual actions by one branch or the other rather than with the Legislature as a whole — yet we look on Louisiana's current lawmakers as a very strong and capable group as a whole. Their record in three sessions held in a little more than their first year in office probably cannot be surpassed by any previous legislature from the standpoint of overall good for Louisiana as a whole.

To be sure, the House seemed headed out on some bad tangents once or twice, particularly in its premature efforts to change the Constitution and the structure of administration of government at a time when two special groups of unusually high caliber are working on those particular questions and presumably will have carefully thought out recommendations to make to the 1966 regular biennial session.

These groups are the Louisiana Law Institute, which was designated by this same Legislature to conduct a study of the Constitution by areas and reported its recommended changes back to the Legislature, and the Sam Jones Committee, appointed by Governor McKeithen — a group of especially top caliber personnel — to make a complete study and report especially on reorganization of the Executive Branch — the Governor's branch — of state government. Both groups are expected to have their reports ready for the 1966 session of the legislature.

It was not very logical to attempt to take steps on Constitutional or other government reorganization questions without waiting for word from those specifically called on to recommend what the steps should be. Fortunately, these House measures did not pass, although the number of votes cast in their favor on some occasions was surprising — and a bit discouraging.

But, such things happen in lawmaking bodies all the time, whether at the state or federal level. Often they serve merely to demonstrate the value of our form of government, federal and state, as a republic; a government in which one branch of the Legislature serves as a check on the other. Both branches are a check on the Executive Branch; with both subject to check by the Judicial Branch and the latter also serving as a check on the other two.

Two Problems Face The Legislature

The true test of the present Legislature will come in the 1966 biennial session next spring. At that time the lawmakers must face up to two grave problems:

First: The Legislature must recognize that Louisiana cannot be a billion dollar a year state in governmental spending on behalf of the people unless the Legislature matches revenue with that spending. There must be recognition, also, that the fact that we now have a billion-dollar-a-year state government is in itself indication of our growth and thus of the increase in our needs — and that all of this means that systems of revenue which served well at the half-billion dollar point or the three-quarter billion dollar point no longer will be satisfactory.

Governor McKeithen has mentioned the possible necessity of new taxes. If new taxes are a necessity, they should be well thought out and carefully planned between now and the 1966 session. The people themselves should have ample opportunity to express their opinions.

At the same time, efforts toward maximum economy should be redoubled. The Legislature's Economy Committee in two reports has made some excellent recommendations. Some of them have been put into effect. Others that should have been put into effect have not been acted on. But every effort must be made to squeeze out the last drop of waste spending before turning to taxation.

The World recognizes that it is not easy to shut off wasteful spending practices in the innumerable agencies of state government where those practices have existed for decades; it can't all be accomplished at once. But there should be an endless drive toward economy.

One thing is certain: So far as common sense in fiscal fields is concerned, we have about reached the end of the line as to financing by bond issues where other methods of a pay-as-you-go type could be established. Bond issues sometimes are more acceptable to people than direct taxes; the taxpayer sees the direct taxes he pays—he sees the money as he takes it out of his pocketbook and hands it over, but he does not literally see the taxes he pays on bond issues. We recognize that the bond issues of the present Legislature have been essential in the sense of the need for the money, and that it probably was politically impractical to obtain the money in any other way. The Governor himself and many of the legislators have expressed such views.

Need Reorganizing Not Destruction

The other big challenge to the 1966 Legislature will be reorganization of the Executive Branch of the government through both submission of constitutional amendments to the people and statutory enactments by the Legislature.

This is a field filled with pitfalls. The purpose of lessening the Governor's authority to bring compatibility with two successive terms, as already submitted to the people in a constitutional amendment at this session, is not to weaken the office of Governor. On the contrary, it is to strengthen his hand and improve his opportunities for state leadership by removing from his office a raft of present duties which do not belong there.

Under no circumstances should anything be done to make a Governor a mere glorified handshaker and traveling salesman in behalf of the state, or subservient to the Legislature—any more than he should be allowed to dictate to any branch of government. The purpose of the Jones Committee, as we understand it, and our own belief in endorsing the amendment for two successive sessions, is to come out in the end with an administration in which there very decidedly will be a "strong" Governor: not a weakened one. Reorganization — not destruction — is the need.

Thus, the efforts of the House at this session to weaken the Governor's constitutional veto authority were exactly the opposite of the kind of legislation or constitutional amending that should be attempted. Gubernatorial veto power as it now exists is an essential part of government as a republic. So, also, is the Legislature's authority to override a veto. Consequently, while the Legislature should not tamper with the Governor's veto authority, there hardly can be objection to properly conceived and broader use of the power of override by the Legislature itself.

But, if the Legislature in 1966 attempts to cut authority of the office of Governor to pieces under the pretense of "limiting" the authority of the occupant, most certainly the people of Louisiana will find some way to make themselves heard effectively in opposition.

What is needed most of all is a constitutional amendment reducing gubernatorial power over local government — parish and municipal — throughout the state and thus permitting him to concentrate his capabilities on state government leadership. At present, there are 1,100 local level governmental posts to which appointment is or can be made by the Governor. This should be altered.

Other factors that should be considered are giving local elective governments greater authority over special districts in budget taxing and appointive matters; an increase in the authority of local elective governments, especially as to taxation. Also, at the state level there are 240 agencies of state government, each functioning in a limited field, to which the Governor appoints members. There should be a regrouping in this field which will provide greater economy as well as greater efficiency and remove from the office of Governor a lot of detailed functions which clutter up that office now.

If the 1966 legislative session can come up with a common sense and logical program of constitutional amendment and statutory enactment to get state government out of local government and to provide revenue for a billion dollar state, then this 1964-68 Louisiana Legislature may well go down in history as the best the state ever has known.

Somebody's Got To Solve That Problem!

Humphrey's Money Problems

Finds $53,000 Income Not Enough

As so many others, he is finding it hard to live within his government pay — $43,000 salary and $10,000 expense account, both taxable.

The vice - president's salary is the second highest in the government and the same amount paid speaker John McCormack, D-Mass. It is topped only by the President's $100,000 salary and $50,000 expense account.

The vice - president isn't complaining, but his friends are concerned. They report that President Johnson hasn't helped the situation by banning the acceptance of honorariums by the vice - president for speeches.

As a senator, Humphrey supplemented his salary by making frequent talks before private groups, receiving from $1,000 to $3,500 for a single address. In some years the Minnesota Democrat made more from speaking engagements than his Senate pay.

Shortly after taking office, the President suggested that this convenient means for meeting the rising costs of "public living and entertainment in Washington" be dropped by the vice-president. Instead, he proposed that Humphrey do his speaking without fee and at fund-raising affairs for the Democratic party. This was agreed to.

According to the vice - president's political friends, his financial plight is clearly indicated by his (unannounced) plans to entertain President Johnson and the nation's 50 governors in his home state next month.

With the governors' annual meeting scheduled July 26-29 in Minneapolis, Humphrey is inviting the state executives and their main speaker — the President — to his home in Waverly, Minn.

PAY AS YOU GO — Careful planning is going into Humphrey's affair because of its national political significance. Most of the nation's press will be represented and the vice president will have his first opportunity since the 1964 convention to host the politically important Democratic governors.

To do the honors up right, friends working on the preparations have informed the vice president the party will cost "more than $5,000" or more than half his yearly expense fund.

When a Minnesota supporter proposed an "entertainment fund" be set up to take care of this event and others, the vice president and his aides immediately objected. They wanted no repeat of the publicized "Nixon fund" which became a major issue in the 1952 campaign.

As of now, the only thing certain about Humphrey's party for the governors is that it will be held. How he will pay for it is still very much up in the air.

President Johnson, having his own problems with the high cost of White House entertaining, is helping the vice president in other ways.

Whenever possible, the President lets Humphrey travel in his big Air Force jet or sees that he has access to other military planes.

Humphrey also is provided with an official limousine and chauffeur and Secret Service protection. However, no decision has been made on furnishing the vice president an official residence, although the President supports the idea. Humphrey is maintaining two homes — one in Washington, the other in Waverly, Minn. — out of his salary.

A paid - up membership — tribution to the Democratic party — entitles its holder to a special foreign and domestic policy briefing in Washington this summer.

Democratic National Treasurer Richard Maguire is notifying the Club's 4,000 members that upon payment of their 1965 dues an invitation will be sent to attend a White House seminar in August.

According to Maguire, President Johnson, Cabinet members central Intelligence Director Raborn will be on hand to brief the "Club" members. The big contributors will be given first-hand information on all crises — Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, or others that may develop.

Democratic National Committee moguls are beamingly boasting they "cleared more than $500,000" at the recent fund-raising dinner of the New York branch of the $1,000 "Club."

Johnson went to New York to personally attend this Saturday night affair, from which the press and non-contributors were excluded. Party insiders claim "more than 500" were on hand for the President's off-the-record talk.

POLITICAL FLASHES— Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., chairman of the Aeronautical & Space Committee, is indicating he may not run for a fourth term next year. Says the one-time secretary of agriculture in the Truman Cabinet, "I will make an official announcement about my political future on my 70th birthday, October 23rd. The way I am thinking now, I'll probably call it quits when my present term expires. But I could change my mind."

SYLVIA PORTER

Longer Vacations Are Now Common

EVEN IF YOU HAVE been at your job as little as six months, you'll get at least a one-week paid vacation this year — if you're a typical salaried U.S. worker. After 12 months you can count on a two-week holiday and after five to 10 years with your company, on three weeks. Later you'll be entitled to a regular one-month vacation and a highly important minority of you also can anticipate up to six or seven weeks of paid holiday.

What's more, if you're in the majority, you'll get a minimum of seven paid holidays this year — many scheduled for Monday or Friday to give you new stretches of leisure between vacations. If you're average, you still work 40 hours a week, but one out of four of you has a workweek between 32 and 40 hours.

These facts will be revealed by the Chicago-based Dartnell Corp. in a new survey of the vacation practices of 342 U.S. and Canadian companies, to be published soon. They underline today's relentless trend toward less and less time at work, more and more time off from work.

The dramatic proportions of the trend toward liberalized vacations and holidays are illustrated by these points:

AT THE START of World War II, only one in four employes got a paid yearly vacation at all — and most of those who did received only a single week.

As recently as 1960, only one in three salaried workers received a four-week vacation at any time. Now, more than half get this length of vacation at some point in their work careers.

The five or more week vacation was virtually unknown five years ago. Today, it is becoming widespread.

The average number of paid holidays in 1940 was two a year. Now, the average is over seven and nearly half of all union contracts provide for eight or more paid holidays.

Just between 1940 and 1960, the total amount of working time in a year for the average worker dropped 155 hours — the equivalent of four weeks.

In many other ways, vacation and time-off policies are being liberalized. More and more companies are allowing employes to split vacations between winter and summer and to take them whenever they wish. Of the companies reporting to Dartnell, a majority now permit salaried workers to take their vacations whenever they want—against 43 per cent of the companies five years ago.

Wife Of Powell Draws Huge Pay

I AM ADVISED by my conscience that I have not done my duty this season, not until I pay my respects to Adam Clayton Powell Jr. I confess that I need to drag myself to the typewriter to perform the ritual. In days gone by, when the Reverend Powell was a hero to significant members of the liberal community, it was different. I have expanded, in my lifetime, as much first-class indignation on the rascal as on anybody in the world, regardless of race, color, or creed. And it was not, by the way, all that long ago that everyone agreed to hate Adam.

John F. Kennedy couldn't wait, having taken his oath of office as President of the United States, to toss a testimonial dinner for Powell, to which he dispatched no less than two Cabinet members — who arrived drunk, one hopes: as the only way to deaden the shock of travelling from the fresh-blown rhetoric of the New Frontier, to the gall of gourmandizing over the virtues of Adam Clayton Powell Jr. I have tucked away a list of the sponsors of that affair. Charity compels me to keep it under lock and key. But come at me from whatever direction, I shall be immune from the assaults of the highest princes of America: because they were there. Or most of them, anyway. And I can prove it.

THE LATEST effrontery of Adam Powell, which has the New York Times so worked up it quite literally can't stand it, is this. Mr. Powell has what-you-say, a way with women. A couple of years ago he scandalized by taking a couple of Miss America-types to Europe to investigate women's rights or Greek culture or something ("Adam Contemplating the Busts of Venus," National Review entitled its editorial comment). Congress, of course, paid the bill.

Meanwhile, the incumbent Mrs. Powell had been selected from among his pulch-rituditious staff. She had been making $3,074 per annum. A month after their marriage, she demonstrated such superior administrative skills as to warrant a raise to $12,974. Months later, she was raised to a salary of $18,907, a salary approaching that of a Congressman. Prodded by Representative John Ashbrook, who brought up the matter and other related matters involving the Reverend Powell's at-homeness with the Federal Treasury, Congress passed a resolution to the effect that any remuneration of a member of a Congressman's staff may only be for services rendered either in Washington, or in the Congressman's home district.

This resolution disadvantaged Mrs. Powell because she lives blissfully, steadfastly, in Puerto Rico, Rev's home away from home. Congress went to the trouble of reaffirming this resolution in January of this year. Results? Zero. The checks keep going to the lady, who continues to do her duties in Puerto Rico, 1200 miles or so away from the offices of her husband. The Times wants to know why Congress doesn't do something about it. Good point. Begging the superior point, why doesn't Congress do something about the Reverend Powell?

WHAT DOES MR. Powell have that other people don't have, that gives him these numinous prerogatives? I heard a liberal editor ask the editor of the Amsterdam News (New York's Negro paper) the question a year ago. "Adam," said Amsterdam, "has seniority. That's what he has." Indeed. He is head of one of the most important committees of Congress, whence he stalks Washington, dispensing and withholding favors. At home, in Harlem, he has nothing at all to worry about. The fiercer the pressures to exorcise Congress of his presence, the broader his smile.

"You know why 'they' don't like me?" he grins at his audience. "Because I travel first class." It brings down the house. "They" resent "him" — not because he is a demagogue; not because he is a scoundrel; not because he flouts the law. But because he is uppity. And we Negroes have to stick together. The crowd goes wild with loyalty.

Responsible Negroes have tried to depose him. The streets of Harlmen are littered with their bones. Martin Luther King, for all his pretensions, can't, or at least doesn't, resist him. If President Kennedy can back Adam Powell, why can't they? Indeed, why not? It would be interesting to hear Robert Kennedy's view of the matter. Don't call me, I'll call you.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Rights Of Privacy And The Congress

REPRESENTATIVE Cornelius Gallagher, the New Jersey Democrat heading a special investigation on the growing practice of snooping, has sounded off with justifiable indignation at the loss of privacy now being suffered by Americans. Electronic devices and government nosiness are the two widest causes — and the question is, which one is the more pernicious?

With the Federal government taking on more and more functions of private business, it has used its muscle to include in official forms a variety of questions that deal with matters which are no concern of anyone but the persons involved. Some of these questions are included because a bureaucrat with sociological pretensions believes it will be of value to his researchers to have the information. The Census Bureau, which is supposed to count noses, now wants to know some pretty private things about you, and those who have protested are slapped down by the courts.

Electronic snooping is something else again. I know an officer of a large corporation who always takes a portable radio with him on his trips to Washington. When he is discussing confidential business in his hotel room, he turns on the set to talk or music — a good though not fool-proof way of thwarting the recording devices used by snoopers.

ON AT LEAST two occasions, when I was in frequent touch with controversial figures prominent in the news, taps were put on my phones by organizations that loudly proclaim their devotion to civil rights. In one case, the tap was placed there by a wire-tapping company in the pay of the lawyers of a man on trial, at a time when I was in journalistic touch with some of the principals in the litigation.

What Representative Gallagher can do about electronic snooping is problematical. Direction mikes, induction coils, and miniaturized equipment are simple to make and cheap to buy. Many of these devices are already illegal to use, but local police forces and Federal agencies use them frequently. The late Harold Ickes, when he was Interior Secretary, was notorious for bugging the phones of other Cabinet members — or so it was said in Washington.

There is, however, one form of privacy invasion which the Congress should look into. Various corporations have set up central "clearing houses" which gather information of the most intimate nature for their mutual use. If you apply for an insurance policy, you will be checked out — and the chances are that secrets you had thought long buried will turn up on the report made of your past. The "facts" in these files are based on allegation, not systematic investigation, so that you may be falsely charged with vices or habits with no chance to defend yourself.

Credit Bureaus operate in somewhat the same manner. They receive allegations from businesses, then report on the credit rating of an individual without checking the accuracy of the information.

I KNOW OF ONE instance in Washington in which a man with a high credit rating at his bank and no record of defaulted payment of bills was turned down when he tried to buy a piece of equipment on the installment plan. Both puzzled and angered, he demanded to know the reason. He was told that the Credit Bureau report claimed that he was being sued by three companies for non-payment of bills.

In the first case, the company was in error and had so admitted, and in any case the man had never even been served. In the second instance, had paid the bill in question even though it was one he had not incurred himself and might have beaten in court. In the third instance, again a bill he had not incurred, the matter was in litigation, with no determination of his indebtedness.

A phone call by the Credit Bureau would have straightened out the matter. Instead, it had given the impression that a man of some standing in the community was a deadbeat. There is no defense against this except a slander suit, which few people have the time or the inclination to institute.

Astronaut Paces Highway 80

By John Cale

Astronaut Paces

WITH A MIND to accomplish three giant strides a hundred miles up, the U. S. Space Agency launched the Gemini 4 spacecraft on Thursday with astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II aboard.

On the schedule were a weightless walk outside the craft, a rendezvous with the second stage of the booster rocket — following nearby in orbit — and a prolonged flight of perhaps four days' duration.

WHITE

By late Thursday it was obvious that the walk in space was a success, but that the tie-in with another object in space would have to wait for another flight.

BOTH THESE maneuvers are vital to any successful moon flight. On any visit by men to neighboring planets, astronauts will have to leave the protection of their spacecrafts, accustom themselves to whatever environment they may find for a time and perform certain tasks.

The 20-minute "walk in space" accomplished by Astronaut White Thursday succeeded. The attempted rendezvous with the second stage of the Titan 2 rocket booster was another story. But all reports as late as Friday indicated the prolonged flight, with the landing scheduled for Monday in the usual spot off Bermuda, was proceeding according to plan.

FOR ABOUT 20 minutes Thursday, White became a satellite of the earth — a human satellite with a mind of his own. Actually the stroll in space was a little longer than anticipated.

McDIVITT

"Come on back in. You've got three and a half days to go, buddy," was the plea from command pilot James McDivitt to White.

But like Soviet astronaut Alexei Leonov, who had taken such a stroll some months ago, White had trouble handling himself in a weightless, windless, airless and dark region.

The walk in space was also of local interest, having been carried out some 135 miles above a line that paralleled U. S. Highway 80. At one point, pilot McDivitt was heard to say, "That's Houston down there."

DESPITE THE excitement attached to the rendezvous and space excursion maneuvers, the mission director, Christopher C. Kraft Jr., said the main goal of the flight was to determine how well men and spacecraft systems can withstand a long exposure to the space environment.

The flight, if carried to completion, would eclipse the present American record of 34 hours, 20 minutes established in May 1963 by astronaut Gordon Cooper.

A SOVIET cosmonaut, Valeri Bykovsky, holds the record of 119 hours, 6 minutes.

It was the first time that control of a U. S. man in space flight had shifted to the new multi-million dollar center at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston. All future NASA manned flights will be conducted in this manner, although all will start from Cape Kennedy.

Scrub It

THE MISSION CONTROL Center at Houston reported that McDivitt, the command pilot, had used 50 per cent of his fuel capability in attempting to maneuver toward the satellite — the second stage of the Titan 2 booster which hurled the Gemini 4 into orbit.

Initially, McDivitt jockeyed the Spacecraft within 300 feet of the booster and they flew in formation. Late in the first orbit, the Mission Control Center reported McDivitt had been using excessive fuel in this approach.

He was told by the center to conserve his fuel and not try to approach any closer.

McDivitt asked if he should try to approach closer or save fuel. He said he had fired his jet thrusters in maneuvers which totaled 100 feet per second, about 68 miles an hour. That meant he either increased or decreased his speed that much.

Said mission director Kraft, "I think we should save the fuel. I don't think it's worth it. We're more concerned about the lifetime than closing with that booster. Let's scrub it."

Sidelight

APPARENTLY TIMED to coincide with the Gemini 4 flight was a note in Ebony magazine that America's first Negro astronaut has been dropped from the program.

The magazine said in its June issue that the Negro astronaut, Air Force Capt. Edward Dwight Jr., 31, has been rejected by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for additional training.

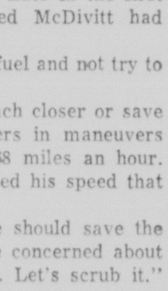
In Washington a spokesman for NASA said it is not the agency's policy to reveal the names of persons who have applied to become astronauts.

In general reference to any applicant, the spokesman said: "If he was not selected as an astronaut, it does not mean he was not qualified. It means that someone more qualified was selected ahead of him."

Mayor Roosevelt

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT, son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, scored a political victory of his own last week by unseating the incumbent candidate, Melvin J. Richard, of Miami Beach, Florida.

The new mayor, who carries an old name in American politics, says his major goal will be to wipe out the city's image as a tourist resort whose permanent residents are all pensioners. He promised federal housing for young families.



E. ROOSEVELT

The 54 - year - old mayor - elect won the office with a 1,400 - vote plurality as a result of Tuesday's polling. It was his second successful venture in politics. In 1964, he was elected a Democratic national committeeman. He has resided in Miami Beach for two years.

Thirst For Adventure

EVER SO SELDOM, those whose intellectual powers seek a higher level for insight and balance come through with some timely observations in tastes and tendencies. In other words, some of those who have time to think are trying to figure out why spy stories and movies are so popular these days.

Jacques Barzun, educator and essayist, has looked into the highly favorable reception enjoyed by Ian Fleming's James Bond books and subsequent movies, also the works of John LeCarre such as "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold."

He concludes that "the soul of the spy is somehow the model of our own; his actions and his trappings fulfill our unsatisfied desires."

Writing in "The American Scholar" magazine, Dr. Barzun finds that the reader identifies with the character who has the right to kill in line of duty.

"The advantage of being a spy as of being a soldier is that there is always a larger reason - a reason of state - for making any little scruple or nastiness shrink into insignificance," he noted.

Dr. Barzun suggests further that our interest in cloak and dagger stories is based on something "older and deeper than our anxieties of the cold war" - the most often heard excuse for enjoying so called "escape literature."

THERE IS NO questioning this observation, especially in regards to the James Bond thrillers and those of John Le Carre where the writer sheds his attempts to be objective.

After all, in this sort of atmosphere, the reader wants to share the feeling of the hunt, the hunter and the hunted.

Marriage At Fate

FROM DALLAS, TEXAS, last week came word that Mrs. Marina Oswald, 23, Russian-born widow of Lee Harvey Oswald — the assassin of President Kennedy — married a 27-year-old Texan, Kenneth Jess Porter. The marriage took place in Fate, Texas. Porter, who served in the U.S. Navy from 1954-58, is employed at Texas Instruments, Inc., a Dallas firm.

The former Mrs. Oswald, according to legal hearings last summer, has assets worth about $60,000 — much of these coming as a result of donations following the assassination of the late President and the subsequent shooting of assassin Oswald.

Prior to her marriage to Porter last week, she had studied English for eight weeks at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, also spent time in Arizona working on her life story for book publication.

Death In Bogalusa

FOLLOWING SEVERAL months of racial agitation and unrest in Bogalusa, Washington Parish, a Negro deputy sheriff was killed and another wounded when gunfire from a pickup truck riddled their patrol car Wednesday.

Deputy O'Neal Moore, a leader in his Baptist church choir, was killed by a high-powered bullet that ripped through his head. His partner, Deputy Creed Rogers, was struck in the shoulder by buckshot.

AN HOUR LATER the town marshal at Tylertown, Miss., who heard of the shooting by police radio, stopped a 1964 pickup truck with a Confederate flag tag on its front bumper.

The truck's white occupant, Ernis R. McElveen, 41, possessed two pistols and one which officers said had been recently fired.

Federal and state authorities, convinced that several persons were involved in the shooting of Washington Parish's first two Negro deputies, began an intensive investigation. FBI agents joined the probe.

IN BATON ROUGE, Governor John McKeithen said the guilty parties "shall be brought to justice and we shall demonstrate to the world that Louisianians are law abiding God-fearing citizens and that our state is no haven for cowards and murderers."

Sworn In

FOLLOWING A LENGTHY counting of ballots and preference cards from the United Steelworkers Union, I. W. Abel, former USW secretary, was sworn in as the organization's president last week. The election for the union's top office was held in February with Abel running against the incumbent chief, David McDonald.

ABEL

The swearing-in took place at ceremonies in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, with Leonard R. Kennedy, president of USW Local 1123 of Canton, Ohio, presiding.

IF THE USW election and the subsequent appeals made for a drawn-out affair, here is an election from one of those newly-independent countries in Africa that was called off before it ever began.

Ghana was supposed to have a single-party balloting during the approaching week. But President Kwame Khrumah called it off.

He simply announced that all 198 candidates of the ruling Convention People's Party had won because no opponents filed nomination papers.

The first task of the new parliament will be to name Nkrumah president again. He has been nominated without opposition.

The presidential election takes place under new rules which say there can be only one candidate, he must be a member of the Convention People's party, and he must have the approval of the party secretary — Nkrumah.

The sudden end to the elections climaxed a campaign that led to a foregone conclusion.

Another One Man Show

UNDER PRESIDENT Charles de Gaulle, it has been said — and only half in jest — that French foreign policy can be summed up in a single phrase: Frankreich Uber Alles.

This is a paraphrase of the old German slogan and can be translated roughly as "France First of All."

This is De Gaulle's creed and it shows in every move the French Foreign Ministry makes. A devotion to the nation-state has long been a hallmark of De Gaulle's character, and in France today foreign policy is strictly a one-man show with DeGaulle in all the roles.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Foy Kohler, cabled to Washington criticism of Voice of America broadcasts as being too one sided.

The report quoted Kohler's cable of last week:

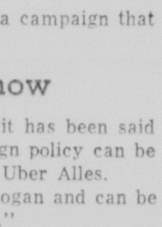
"In almost every case, news citings and comments seemed too obviously selected to bolster the official U.S. government position; correspondingly, there was a notable lack of hard news from either the Caribbean area or Southeast Asia."

Carl T. Rowan, director of the U.S. Information Agency, was explaining his philosophy on propaganda this way:

"I do not think that the Voice of America should be ruled by some vague intellectual notion of 'impartiality.' I think that its news programs should be honest, and they are. But I insist that those people of the Voice realize that its fundamental purpose is the same as the rest of the USIA — to further the foreign policy objectives of the U.S. government."

Navy Color Girl

MISS BETTY BAUER, 22, was selected by Midshipman Andrew W. Fahy as the U.S. Naval Academy's 93rd color girl. Fahy is commander of the 1965 color company. Miss Bauer will serve in the June Week activities at Annapolis by helping transfer the national, Navy and brigade flags to Fahy's 13th company, which will carry them next year at parades and official ceremonies.



MISS BAUER

ELSEWHERE WITH the Navy—and other U.S. fighting men — during the past week, activities ranged far afield from the normal, peacetime schedules.

Near Hanoi, capital of Red Viet Nam, two Navy F8 Crusader jets were lost Tuesday and two more Navy planes were lost Wednesday. Although rescue teams managed to save one pilot, the anti-aircraft fire from North Vietnamese positions was described as "increasingly heavy." The losses were the heaviest in a single 24-hour period since the United States began bombing Red targets on a regular basis four months ago.

Caribbean

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is pulling 2,000 U.S. Marines out of the Dominican Republic, but with the caution that a "very strong and sustained effort" still is needed to bring a measure of peace to that strife-torn land.

The Chief Executive made his announcement of the troop withdrawal during his 43rd formal news conference, a 30-minute affair carried on nationwide television and radio and largely devoted to foreign policy matters.

Twin Cities Week In Review

State-Local Ties Make Top Items

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Last week's boldest headlines dealt frequently with locally-spiced state matters, the responses to which called into play almost every emotion but disinterest.

In Baton Rouge, there were mostly key gains for the Twin City area, though there was at least one loss, or, more exactly, a possible gain that didn't materialize. Interestingly, gain and loss generated heat locally in one way or another.

Be specific, you say? Well:

If you missed Saturday's paper, you may not be cognizant of an announcement Friday that rewarded the efforts of nearly a year of a local band of forward-lookers.

TYLER

A joint statement of state, parish and city officiials (Highway Boardman James W. Moore, Sen. Jamar Adcock, Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood and West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris) that day announced the okay on approximately $885,000 in roadway improvements in west Ouachita.

All to be placed under contract this summer, the projects include the widening to four lanes of Highway 80 from West Monroe's North Seventh Street to Claiborne School ($300,000), the rebuilding of Jonesboro Road from Ring Levee to the Cheniere Dam Road ($550,000) and the reworking and overlaying of 12 blocks of city streets damaged in recent I-20 work.

The projects were among these recommended last year to the Louisiana governor by West Monroe Chamber of Commerce representatives, the city board of aldermen and west Ouachita police jurors, and followed to successful conclusions by the local legislative delegation and Moore himself.

All was in apparent good order for Friday's joint announcement, but it is in the announcement of another gain that the earlier imitations of heat are fulfilled.

The reference is to a week-opening statement by Gibbs criticizing Moore and Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard for breaking the news on forthcoming state assistance in an I-20-U.S. 80 connecting link through Monroe and including an overpass at Five Points.

In a nutshell, the representative charged the announcement should have been left to legislators. For their part, the defendants maintained in the same Morning World story Monday, that their remarks were elicted by newsmen after the governor himself had revealed the project. No more was said.

Thus was one case closed, making way for another Wednesday when a medical school Gibbs had sought for Monroe, in a bill which died in the House, went to Shreveport, with the backing of Adcock.

This, of course, is the loss spoken of. The senator, according to press reports, likened a medical school at Northeast Louisiana State College to "a dog chasing a car — they wouldn't know what to do with it if they got it." He said advisors in Monroe told him hospital facilities weren't sufficient to support such a school.

Adcock's colorful phraseology bent some Northeast alumni out of shape, it's known, but the later announcement Friday gave strength to another of his claims — "I wonder how anyone could complain in Ouachita Parish about the projects the parish has received."

Literal Fire

If the week began with fiery debate, there was literal fire, as well.

Destroyed on the Ouachita River was the two-level houseboat, the O'Henry, of J. E. Tripp of Monroe. Fourteen persons, including a two-year-old child, swam or floated on innertubes to safety after leaking gas ignited in the hull of the craft. The boat was the scene of a graduation party for Tripp's nephew, and had just left the Monroe boat dock when the "explosion" occurred. All aboard escaped serious injury.

Tragedy in the form of violent death came elsewhere when Wayne G. Holder, 35, of 209 Bastrop Dr., died in a highway accident in Richland Parish, 15 miles east of Monroe. Travelling toward Monroe, Mr. Holder's station wagon failed to complete a sharp curve and rolled several times.

Meanwhile, the auto crash of the previous week which claimed the life of Northeast student Mason Henry McEnery Jr., 20, of Oak Ridge, took its second victim, 17-year-old Carolyn Jean Avant of Rayville, a passenger with McEnery. She died in the St. Francis Sunday.

Appointments

Of appointments earned and honors won, there were many. Among them we recall:

The selection of two new elementary school principals — J. R. Akin and Charles W. Kulcke, chosen by the Ouachita Parish and City of Monroe boards, respectively. Akin, a nine-year veteran of local teaching, coaching and administration, moves from his post as assistant principal at Ouachita Parish Junior High to inaugurate the Chauvin Bayou area's new Jack Hayes School. Kulcke, a Neville High School instructor with 10 years in the city system, assumes the principalship at Sherrouse, succeeding the highly-respected Mrs. W. S. Vincent, now retired.

Still viewing the education scene, Mrs. Helen LeFevre, a teacher at West Monroe High School last week was named as one of four Louisianians who will receive a Freedoms Foundation Valley Forge Teachers' Medal. It connotes particular dedication in the teaching of responsible citizenship, personal patriotism and a special understanding of American spiritual and moral values.

Monroe businessman David Agnew received Wednesday night from Salvation Army officials a lifetime membership on the organization's advisory board. Presentation of the appropriate certificate, recognizing 15 years of dedicated service, occurred at a meeting ot the Monroe Kiwanis Club.

Cited Tuesday night for outstanding contributions in city and state to the cause of Lions International was local business manager Frank R. Gaulden, who became the North Monroe Lions Club's "Lion of the Year." The same program saw the installation of Walter Ernst as president, along with other officers. It was the club's 16th annual installation and ladies' night affair.

In its final board meeting before the summer recess, the Monroe Area Guidance Center elected to a second successive term O. L. Harper of Morehouse Parish as chairman. Other Monroyans chosen as officers are Hilton Lytle, vice chairman, Mrs. J. B. Thornhill, treasurer, and Miss Kathryn Douciere, secretary.

Finally, Jerry I. Braud Wednesday night was installed as president of the Ouachita Parish Heart Council, succeeding Dr. August G. Danti. Also at the annual installation and awards night program, Frank McDermott became vice president, Miss Josephine Cascio, secretary, and W. E. Rodden, treasurer. Service citations were presented to 46 individuals and organizations.

Remembering

Items you shouldn't have missed last week include:

The Monroe Optimist Club's fourth annual Zoo Day program at Bernstein Park which last Sunday drew crowds from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. estimated at 10,000 persons. Chairman Sheldon Ray called the event "another success toward the continued development of the city zoo." Modest donations were accepted from visitors and will be used to defray the cost of a Children's Zoo at Bernstein, an area where the small fry can enjoy supervised physical contact with proportionally small animals. As for the rest of the day, there was something for everyone — a magic show for the kids, a hootenanny for slightly older kids, and snake-handling, as well as television personality Jim Fowler ("Wild Kingdom"), for adults.

Elsewhere, the new found freedom which came with the dismissal of regular school terms proved a fleeting thing for hundreds of Twin City student princes. Summer school at all the local prep institutions was going by Tuesday, and college scholars who chose to be so were back at the oarlocks Thursday, following registration Wednesday.

Open house was held Thursday at the Open Door Home, a haven for destitute mothers and children 16 miles southwest of West Monroe. The Rev. Wayne Gentry, founder and president, presided, while Kay Harris, named in a beauty pageant the previous week as Miss West Monroe, acted as hostess.

West Monroe's new Haynes Street utilities complex was nearing completion, with occupancy expected around the middle of this week. The water was reported turned on Thursday, though an inspection by city officials went a-glimmering when a key to the new office building couldn't be secured. Included in the complex are the office building, a workshop - garage and two parking sheds.

Northeast Louisiana State College received notification Thursday from the U.S. Office of Education that a $31,995 grant through the Economic Opportunity Act had been okayed for participation in the school's summer work program. Provided on a 90 - 10 matching basis, the money will help pay on-campus job wages for perhaps 250 students, who are working part-time while they attend.

Northeast will be the scene July 10 of Monroe's first majorette pageant and the first national baton twirling contest in a number of years. Contestants from 15 states are expected to enter a 9 a.m. twirling contest in the Northeast gym, sanctioned by the National Baton Twirling Association. About 30 girls probably will compete in a 7:30 p.m. event in Brown Auditorium to select Miss Majorette of the Twin Cities Area.

Finally, on the highways and streets scene there were two items of interest.

In the first, approaches to the Stella-Mill I-20 interchange in West Monroe again drew comments of "unsatisfactory" from Highway Commissioner James W. Moore. He cited "slow progress," adding that not more than 150 contract days should have been allowed the private contractor on the job. The contract is for 200 days. Moore said inconveniences to residents in the work area should be reported to the highway district office, which, he said, is doing "everything legal" to push the contractor.

Secondly, motorists hoping to save a few minutes by zipping over Biedenharn Dam to reach the Sterlington Road will come a-cropper if they try it. The section from the dam to the Sterlington Road was closed Tuesday, and will remain so for about two weeks during the laying of a water main by the Monroe Utilities Commission.

And remember, you saw it here last.

SUNDAY POEM

The question we each fear the worst
Is listed as the Bible's first
When God asked Adam, "Where art thou?"
When he had sinned and tried somehow
To hide from God, but he could not.
And often we're in such a spot
When we have disobeyed and tried
To cover up our sin and hide
Our guilt, as Adam's way we trod,
And find we cannot hide from God.

HOT WEATHER

Now that June is here along with the hot weather, it might be well to consider the rules of hot weather conduct.

Some of the best we've seen were prescribed by the famous Negro baseball pitcher, Satchel Paige, because Paige was an example of keeping young despite the wear and tear of the years.

1. Avoid fried meats which angry up the blood.
2. If you stomach disputes you, lie down and pacify it with cool thoughts.
3. Keep the juices flowing by jangling around gently as you move.
4. Go light on the vices, such as carrying on in society. The social ramble ain't restful.
5. Don't look back; something may be gaining on you.

AIN'T IT SO?

UNUSUAL VIEW

The fair trial vs. a free press subject which had been much discussed of late received a new point of view recently. It came from an unusual writer, the associate editor of Southern Michigan Prison's newspaper.

In an editorial, Hugh Dillon, the prisoner - journalist, discussed the various bar groups seeking to have police officers, prosecutors and defense attorneys refrain from discussing with newsmen circumstances surrounding a criminal case. And he cited some officials who have instructed their men to disregard any 'gags' and agreed with the argument that "muzzling" the press will not assist in crime prevention.

Dillon wrote: "While in some cases a large amount of publicity does make a 'circus' out of a trial, these instances are very much in the minority. It would be nice if when a person got into trouble there was no embarrassing publicity. The most important factor is the possibilities that could come about from muzzling the press. With no outsiders to answer to, there will always be the possibility of abuse. There are many cases on record where newsmen were the primary cause of such abuse coming to light. As distasteful as the adverse publicity is, it might be better to be spotlighted momentarily than to be abused in darkness."

Dillon's position is simple: "I'd rather be at the mercy of a newspaper than to take the chance on the conscience of a police officer who knew he would not have to account to newsmen for his action."

Of course, one of the hardest theories to understand is the argument by some law enforcement authorities that to disclose the commission of a crime would aid the criminal, or any details surrounding it would aid him.

Sometimes we wonder if it's the remote idea it might help the criminal or something else?

INTERESTING QUOTES

Pulitzer Prize Poet Louis Simpson — "The business of America, as Coolidge said is business. From childhood Americans are urged to get ahead in a practical way. Children fall into the hands of parents and teachers who have a deadly fear of imagination. . . ."

THE NATIONAL Academy of Science, reporting on a special study of space: "Given all evidence now available, we believe it entirely reasonable that Mars is inhabited with living organisms and that life independently originated there." . . .

SENATOR ALLEN J. Ellender of Louisiana: "Leaders who are not satisfactory to us may be suitable for the countries they head. If we continue to look for George Washingtons in every revolutionary uprising in Latin America, we shall continue to be rewarded with Castros." . . .

JOHN R. TUNIS — "We Americans are essentially a friendly people. We want eagerly, almost pathetically, to be liked. This is a kind of national malady.". .

A SOUND IDEA

Memo to traffic judges:

In Turkey, a drunk driver gets a good chance to sober up when the traffic officer nabs him.

The drunk is taken to a spot 15 miles from his car and told to walk back. And to make sure he does, the officer rides behind him all the way.

DID YOU KNOW?

STUDIES HAVE repeatedly shown that the one important trait of juvenile delinquency is that it seldom, if ever, occurs on the part of individuals, that it is almost always a group phenomenon. Youngsters who fail to find a significant role to play in the society at large identify themselves with a gang, a delinquent group that really creates its own world. It has its own values, its own way of life, and, to give itself status, it rebels against the world at large, thus claiming the attention of society. . .

Persuading dropouts to return to school, or requiring potential dropouts to stay in school until they're 18 or 20 won't solve anything; it could even make matters worse, according to Charles E. Silberman. In one sense, he says, the dropouts show better judgment in dropping out than educators do in planning campaigns urging them to return. For the dropouts weren't learning anything when they were in school — nor, for the most part, were the schools terribly eager to keep them. . .

THE OTHER FELLOW

Does this apply to you?

When the other fellow takes a long time, he's slow. But when I take a long time, I'm thorough.

When the other fellow doesn't do it, he's lazy. But when I don't do it, I'm too busy.

When the other fellow does something without being told, he's overstepping his bounds. But when I do it, that's initiative.

When the other fellow takes a stand, he's bullheaded. But when I do it, that's being firm.

When the other fellow overlooks a rule of etiquette, he's rude. But when I skip a few rules, I'm original.

When the other fellow pleases the boss, he's polishing brass. But when I please the boss, that's cooperation.

ON THE BALL

An insurance friend, naturally, told this one:

Seems an insurance claim agent was teaching his wife to drive when the brakes failed on a steep grade.

"I can't stop," she screamed. "What shall I do?"

THE FUNNY SIDE

Often it is better to answer slowly. This minister now wishes he had.

As told to us, on his way out of church a young man stopped for a few words with the minister. "Would it be right," he asked, "for a person to profit from the mistakes of another?"

"Certainly not," replied the minister, emphatically.

"In that case," said the young man, "I wonder if you'd consider returning the 10 dollars I paid you when you married my wife and me last August."

Life On Mars? Here Are Two Views

(EDITOR'S NOTE: That intriguing question — is there life on Mars? — may be near an answer. Mariner 4 will fly by on July 14, taking pictures that may provide clues. In the meantime, here are two experts to give you provacative — and different — views. They are Dr. Robert S. Richardson, associated director of the Griffith Observatory and Planetarium in Los Angeles, and Frank B. Salisbury, professor of plant physiology at Colorado State University.)

The Sterile World of Mars

By Dr. Robert S. Richardson

Written for Associated Press

Scientific papers can be pretty dull. I think this discussion about life on Mars will make easier reading if it is broken up into questions and answers. It is presented here as a conversation between an astronomer who is a skeptic when it comes to life on Mars, and an individual who is all for having life on the red planet.

We will call them A and X.

X: Do you believe there is life on Mars?

A: I consider it very unlikely, especially any high forms of life.

Look at climatic conditions. The whole planet is a desert — a cold desert. Probably something like the plateau of Tibet. Tibet is high-altitude ... empty ... bleak ... bare.

Yet Tibet would be a paradise compared with Mars. At least you can breathe in Tibet. But on Mars you couldn't breathe because there is no oxygen in the atmosphere.

X: But astronomers are always talking about the "maria" of Mars. Maria means "seas," doesn't it?

A: Until around 1890 we believed the gray-green or gray-blue areas in the southern hemisphere were real maria — seas and oceans. Now we're sure they're dry land like the bright reddish brown deserts surrounding them.

X: But there is water on Mars. The polar caps prove that.

A: I'll grant you a little water. But not much. I doubt if there is enough water on the whole planet to fill one of the Great Lakes.

X: If water is so scarce then how do you account for the darkening of the maria in the spring. You don't deny the darkening, do you?

A: No, everybody is agreed that as the polar cap begins to shrink in the southern spring the maria around it grow darker. This darkening spreads across the maria to the equator and even beyond. What it can be is very puzzling.

X: What's puzzling about it? Vegetation has been dead all winter. Comes this spring. Water from the melting polar cap flows down over the dry surface. Under its magic touch plants waken to life.

A: In the first place, it's doubtful if the polar cap melts. Much more likely it sublimes. That is, changes directly from ice to water vapor. Doesn't go through the liquid stage. Even if the ice did melt the water wouldn't flow down over the surface. Not very far at least. To get water from the pole to the equator you'd have to pump it. During the day the ground is fairly warm, say around 50 degrees F at noon on the equator. But the thin dry air has little blanketing effect. The ground loses heat rapidly. By sunset the temperature is down to minus 20 degrees F. And by midnight it must fall to some very low value, maybe minus 100 degrees F. The vegetation would be frozen solid. And it gets cold like this — not once in awhile — but every night!

A: I don't believe you can properly speak of the Martian "air."

As I said, there's no oxygen in it.

X: Not a bit?

A: The only gas that has been identified in the Martian atmosphere is carbon dioxide, the same gas that bubbles out of soda water. The bulk of the atmosphere probably consists of nitrogen with maybe a little argon. These gases are not poisonous. You're breathing them right now. But they won't support life. Plants as well as animals need oxygen for growth.

X: Isn't there any organism that can live without oxygen?

A: Yes, quite a few. Certain bacteria called obligate anaerobes live and grow without oxygen. They're among the ones that cause poisoning by botulism.

X: But why couldn't there be life forms entirely different from ours?

A: It's speculative enough to talk about life on Mars as we know it. It's pure fantasy to talk about life on Mars as we don't know it.

A: Who told you there were canals on Mars?

X: That's their name, isn't it?

A: That's all it is — nothing but a name. When Schiaparelli discovered these curious markings in 1877 he had to call them something. So he named them canali. That was translated into English as "canals."

The idea of real canals on Mars built to carry water from the polar caps over the dry surface is attractive but too far-fetched to be given serious consideration in our present state of ignorance. Many astronomers doubt if they exist at all.

X: So "canals" don't mean canals? And they don't mean there is life on Mars?

A: A few years ago the case for plant life on Mars looked rather good. In 1958 dark bands were discovered in the light reflected from the maria but not the deserts. These bands were attributed to absorption by organic compounds in the maria. But from recent work it appears that the bands can be identified just as well with absorption by inorganic matter. Other analyses of the maria indicate the presence of microscopic plant life. But again the results are inconclusive.

A: Several non-vegetative hypotheses have been proposed. The darkening might be caused from reactions of the surface minerals with moisture from the polar cap. According to the volcanic-aeolian hypothesis, the maria consists of ash from volcanoes deposited in the summer by winds similar to the monsoon winds that swept across India. Possibly the maria are lava flows from asteroids that crashed on the surface and liquefied under the force of impact. During the winter dust settles over the maria making them dim. The strong winds of summer blow the dust away exposing the dark surface beneath.

X: But there still could be life — ?

A: You haven't heard the worst yet. You remember I said the Martian atmosphere consists mostly of nitrogen. But long ago it may have contained water and oxygen. The oxygen and nitrogen would combine to form oxides of nitrogen, mainly nitrogen peroxide. The proponents of this hypothesis believe that practically all the surface phenomena on Mars can be explained as nitrogen peroxide in various forms. Life would be impossible since nitrogen peroxide is poisonous both to plants and animals.

Believe in life on Mars if you like. But when we consider the numbing cold at night, the low atmospheric pressure, the scarcity of water, and especially the absence of oxygen, it is hard to see how any but the lowest forms of life could exist in such a harsh environment.

The Thriving Life Forms On Mars

By Frank B. Salisbury

Written for Associated Press

Dr. Richardson and his skeptical astrnomers have convinced me conditions on Mars are just too severe for our kind of life to flourish there. But I thought we were discussing the life that might already be there! Since Mars is so completely different from earth, it would surely be a bit surprising to find earthly plants and animals there.

The important thing is, those Martian maria look like life. The wave of darkening progresses in these markings from the edge of the receding polar cap towards the equator. Apparently this darkening is dependent upon the moisture being made available, which must move as vapor in the atmosphere.

Can one really explain all this by assuming that spring winds are blowing the dust around? Why should these winds start only at the edge of the polar cap? And why should they move in a regular way towards and finally across the equator? Isn't this a bit forced and unrealistic?

Antoinne Dollfus in France has measured the polarization of light reflected from Mars, and from these measurements he concludes that the texture of the markings changes throughout the season. Furthermore, the maria are occasionally obscured by a layer of the yellow dust that blows across the planet, yet a few days later they reappear. If we are looking at growing things, both of these observations are explained. How else can we explain them?

So even if our plants couldn't account for the martian maria, these markings nevertheless have all the appearance of being alive!

Let's take another look at the toughness of living things. After all, that Tibetian desert isn't completely barren; none of our deserts are. Things manage to grow just about everywhere, even in phenol, that standard bacteria killer! I'm working right now with certain alpine plants that can freeze at night, thaw out the next day, and continue to grow as if nothing had ever happened!

If the maria really do consist of "plant" life, how does it manage on so little water? It's fairly hopeless to try to solve this problem by sheer imagination, but there are some possibilities. Perhaps the Martian organisms save their water by special films which prevent evaporation while allowing passage of gases such as carbon dioxide (such films are being tested on the surfaces of lakes). Or perhaps they use water in different ways so that they require much less of it. Maybe water, to a Martian "plants," is a vitamin instead of a primary solvent (could they synthesize their own special solvent from nitrogen and carbon dioxide?). Since the areas darken, apparently in response to such minute amounts of moisture, this seems likely.

Lack of oxygen is the big problem, but the experiments of Dr. Sanford Seigel (working in White Plains, N.Y., on a NASA-supported project) are illuminating. He grows higher plants for prolonged periods in very exotic atmospheres. Most plants die, but a few individual alpine plants and conifers last 300 days (longer than a Martian summer) at freezing temperatures in a dry atmosphere of nitrogen and carbon dioxide. So our old ideas are changing.

Maybe Mars is a stone-dead machine run by chemical reactions, but so far as we can say for sure, the events on Mars really mean what they seem to mean: That there is life there, recognizable to us by its ability to grow, but strange in many details. Once we admit such a possibility, then the sky is the limit!

The fairly solid color of the maria compared to the surrounding deserts may mean that the ground is fairly well covered with vegetation. Furthermore, the maria have changed somewhat in outline over the past century, and occasionally whole new areas (one of them the size of Texas!) have appeared within four to eight years. All of this implies to me that if the markings really are "plants," they are not the lower, struggling forms which come to mind when we try to think of how our plants might react on Mars, but they are doing fine, even flourishing.

If there are "plants," why shouldn't there be "animals" to eat them? And if we make a jump like that in our thinking, we might just as well jump again: "Why shouldn't some of these animals have developed a high level of intelligence?" Lots of comforting things have been said about the canals, but when you get right down to it, they still haven't really been explained. If one can accept the maps drawn by astronomers such as Schiaparelli and Percival Lowell, one can't help but be impressed by the complexity of the system. Yes, we might find a bunch of earthquake cracks, but from here the patterns look far more complex than the earthquake cracks we know. Those stripes could just as well be an advanced communication system of the Martians, developed perhaps to pump the water (underground, no doubt) from the melting polar caps to the lush agricultural areas near the equator!

The two satellites of Mars are also perplexing. They have a number of features which remind us strongly of our artificial satellites, while virtually nothing about them resembles the natural satellites of the solar system such as the moons of Jupiter. Why should both of them be so small and close to the planet, having almost perfectly circular orbits right in the plane of the Martian equator?

I'm also impressed by the occasional bright flashes of light, sometimes followed by an expanding white cloud, which have been observed on Mars since about 1938. They certainly don't look like volcanoes or anything else in "unintelligent nature."

So if there are Martians who build canals, launch satellites, and flash lights, why haven't they visited us? I'm even willing, for the sheer fun of it, to consider the possibility that they have. Shouldn't we study with the most powerful tools of science the reports of strange objects in our skies? I am far from satisfied by the pat explanations put forth after interviews by Air Force officers. Certainly, many people have misinterpreted things that they have seen in our skies. This is what one would expect. But the stories told by thousands of witnesses often can't be dismissed so easily. They involve detailed sightings of intricate objects, sometimes on the ground. Are these people all telling wild tales to get their names in the paper? Certainly some of them are doing just that, but can we dismiss them all so easily? I don't know, but the idea of the Martians keeps returning!

The future looks exciting. Even if Mars is a dead world, it will be fascinating. The discovery of even the lowliest of plants would be of profound importance. But consider the impact on our philosophies, even our very civilization, if we encounter a highly developed yet strange biology — or the canal builders on the satellite launchers!

Canal Network on Mars Compared to Natural and Artificial Patterns

Did the canals originate through the action of natural forces on the surface of Mars? Or did they result by deliberate planning? If there is a mind behind the canals it should reveal itself.

The Martian canal network is suggestive of a complex large-scale network due to intelligent design, for what purpose we can only guess. (lower right.) This diagram is redrawn from a map of Mars made at the Lick Observatory in 1924. The outlines of the canals have been greatly emphasized.

It is to be emphasized that many astronomers have never been able to see the canals, and doubt their reality.

We should be extremely careful about drawing over-enthusiastic conclusions based upon evidence of such doubtful validity as the canal pattern.

IS THERE LIFE on Mars and if so, what shape will it take? Dr. Robert S. Richardson says he hopes that the planet is crawling with life but doubts that it is. Frank Salisbury thinks that anything is possible, even that Mars men may have already visited earth! The answer may come July 14 when Mariner 4 sends back close up photos of the planet. AP Newsfeatures artist Richard Hodgins Jr. predicts with tongue in cheek, that it will look like this. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Legislation Status Data

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Status of major legislation:

Voting Rights

President Johnson has proposed outlawing literacy and other voter tests and providing for federal registration of Negroes in seven states with low registration or voter turnout. Congress has added machinery to eliminate poll tax and new means to combat voter discrimination in other states. House: Request for floor clearance from Rules Committee has been made. Senate: passed.

Health & Welfare

Hospital care and Social Security—The administration recommended a hospital care program under Social Security for persons over 65 years of age. House has approved, along with a voluntary insurance program to cover doctor bills, and a 7 per cent increase in retirement payments. Senate: public hearings completed.

Regional disease centers—The President has proposed establishment of 32 geographically distributed medical complexes within five years to five - year total estimated at more than $1 billion. Senate welfare subcommittee has completed hearings. House: Nothing scheduled yet.

Pep pills — Administration backing proposal to impose stiff federal controls on manufacture, distribution and sale of amphetamines and barbiturates, commonly known as "pep pills" and "goof balls." House: Approved. Senate: No hearings scheduled yet.

WHILE THIS contemporary ranch has the basic lines of other homes of its type, it gains individuality from a number of exterior features, including a front-and-center chimney that also separates the dining room and living room.

Individuality Is Featured In 3-Bedroom Ranch Style

By ANDY LANG

The long, low, sleek lines of a contemporary ranch get the deluxe treatment in the latest House of the Week.

The basic plan of this house is rectangular, with a minimum of the jobs and offsets that add to building costs. But note the exterior features that provide individuality. There's a decorative chimney that gives character to the front of the house, yet serves the practical purposes of acting as a room divider and permitting a two-way fireplace for the dining room and the sunken living room. There are plastic domes set into the roof over the dining room for a dramatic touch as well as light infiltration. There is an interesting, concrete block grill stretching 20' 8" in front of the bedroom windows to afford effective privacy. And there's a large roof overhang protecting the front entrance with 5' of cover.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-86.

Well Defined

On the inside, three well-defined areas have been laid out by architect Rudolph A. Matern. From the foyer, one can move into any of these sections (the living room-dining room, three-bedroom wing or family room-kitchen-laundry) without crossing either of the other two.

One step down from the foyer is the living room. It has a large bow window and the previously mentioned fireplace set into the visible chimney. The fireplace extends through to the dining room.

Combination

Straight ahead from the foyer is a combination family room-kitchen — 26' of open service and living space. This type of arrangement is becoming more and more popular. All of the women's conferences on housing have uncovered the requirement of having some family living going on during the food-preparation period. Double sliding glass doors at this point lead to a rear terrace and give a full view of the garden or rear lawn. One wall of the family-room portion is covered with cabinets and shelves. On the other side is a breakfast area, then the kitchen appliances and then the excellent service arrangement. Here are a covered porch and a closet, a laundry-mud room with a lavatory, a stairway to the basement and an entry to the garage.

The three bedrooms at the right side of the house have ample closets. The master bedroom has its own bath, while the very large hall bathroom has a linen closet inside of it as well as outside. Ever come out of a tub or shower soaking wet and find no towel in its accustomed place on a rod or rack? That would not be a problem here — IF somebody remembers to keep clean towels in the inside closet. Having the two baths back to back, by the way, redues plumbing costs. And, in this case, the baths act as a sound buffer between the main bedroom and the family room. The foyer and two closets perform the same function between the living room and the other bedrooms.

There is no question that if you want the one-floor conveniences of a long ranch house, with its absence of stair-climbing to the bedrooms, you need a fairly sizable plot. Design H-86 is 75' 2" long if you want a one-car garage, 83' 1" for a two-car garage. A look at the floor plan shows that, either way, there is plenty of storage space and room for a work bench. The living area of the house totals 1510 square feet, not including the garage.

On The House

By Andy Lang

Alkali is an enemy of conventional oil-base paints. It is present in concrete and in the mortar used in the joints of brick and stone construction.

If you're painting the outside of a house with concrete, brick or stone surfaces, therefore, it is important to use coverings which are not affected by alkali. Paints in this category include exterior latex meant for use on masonry; solvent-thinned resins such as are used on swimming pools; portland cements; and what are called reinforced masonry paints. The one time when an oil-base paint may be used is on a surface whose previous coating is in very excellent condition, soundly attached and with no signs of peeling or other visible defects.

CEMENT PAINTS

Portland cement paints not only must be applied to a damp surface, but must be kept wet while curing. But they should not be applied over paints of a different type. Exterior latex can be used on either dry or wet surfaces, according to the directions on most paint cans, but our experience has been that it seems to "take" better when the masonry is dry. (You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 24 cents and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y. 11431.) Solvent thinned resins should be applied to dry surfaces.

Since concrete blocks are porous, they should be given an exterior prime coat before applying the regular paint. Cinder blocks are a special case, as they contain both alkali and acid. The swimming pool paints or solvent-thinned resins mentioned above are recommended for these blocks, as well as far slag blocks.

Phosphate Nandina Aid

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Many home gardeners have called each year regarding nandina plants not producing berries. If you have experienced this trouble, try giving the plants a feeding of fertilizer high in phosphate this month.

Pinch chrysanthemums — remove an inch of new growth at the growing point of the stem. This will encourage leaves to grow lower, and more compact plants with many flowers. You, Mrs. Gardener, may continue to plant rooted cuttings through mid June.

Other garden jobs for June include: Prune climbing roses after they flower — prune out old wood. Next spring's blooms will come on wood which matures during this summer.

Dig and replant bearded iris; keep roses watered but keep water off foliage when watering to help eliminate the spread of black spot diseases; remove the foliage from gladiolus that has browned.

Home, Garden Week

A letter from Neil Odenwald last week gave me a sneak preview of some mighty interesting topics for Home and Garden Week that I must share with you. Make your plans now, Mrs. Ouachita Parish, to attend this year's event, which will be August 17, 18, 19 on the LSU Campus. Be sure to keep these dates open if you, Mrs. Homemaker, want to get up-to-date information.

Neil has an excellent program on gardening. If you are a camellia enthusiast, Mr. Wilson, from the Hammond Experiment Station, is an authority and he will explore all areas of growing camellias. He will discuss new varieties for Louisiana, common problems and the (gibberellic) acid used on camellias to produce extra early flowers and unusually large specimen flowers. Neil says the techniques for using gibberellic acid is quite simple.

Dr. Ken Sanderson, member of LSU Horticulture Department, will discuss basic techniques of propagating plants.

Three full days of gardening with flower arranging included has been scheduled and I will give you more information through my column, but just had to let you know that there's a big program planned for you so that you could begin making plans to attend Home and Garden Week.

News In Foods

For years the recommendation has been to keep orange juice tightly covered in the refrigerator to prevent loss of Vitamin C. U.S.D.A. says that a lid on the orange juice container makes no important difference in retaining Vitamin C. Orange juice, whether freshly squeezed, canned or reconstituted from frozen concentrate, can be held in the refrigeraotr several days before any Vitamin C is lost. A few hours outside the refrigerator does not cause any serious loss in Vitamin C, although it may impair flavor. Orange juice changes flavor before much of its vitamin C is lost.

Sunlight is not necessary to ripen picked green tomatoes. Therefore instead of ripening green tomatoes on a sunny window sill, put them in a cool place 60-70 degrees F.

June Dairy Month

A cup of whole milk supplies the average middle-aged man with six per cent of his needed calories and 37 per cent of his recommended calcium and riboflavin supplies.

To receive the same amount of calcium found in one quart of milk a person would have to consume seven and one-fourth pounds of carrots or 39 eggs, or 28 oranges or 27 pounds of potatoes or 8 ¾ pounds of cabbage. So I'm sure you, Mrs. Homemaker, would say please make mine milk

In this age of "convenience foods" milk and milk products can lay claim to being "nature's own" convenience food.

Grocery Store

One of the major complaints we hear particularly from the masculine is how much is being spent by Mrs. Homemaker on groceries. If you, Mr., will take a look here are some reasons for the big bill at the grocery store. In 1963 more than half the toothpaste used was bought at the grocery store or supermarket. Nearly three fourths of the paper products, and don't forget lightbulbs, razor blades, dishes, even socks and shirts, plus soap, mops, magazines, records and cosmetics. Usually, nearly 20 per cent of the grocery bill is for non-food items.

A Thought

Let me be a little kinder and a little blinder to the faults of those about me.

Garden Center Notes

June Month For Brides

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

June is the month for brides. The Fifth District Garden Center programs on Wednesdays will be dedicated to the June brides. Last Wednesday's program was presented by Mrs. E. M. Baber, member of the College Height's Garden Club of Monroe. The theme was "Containers and Accessories Suitable for the Bride's Gift," and "How to Use Them in Design."

The gift shopper for the bride, as well as the bride, benefited from this program because Mrs. Baber, a true artist in the field of floral design, showed versatile containers and how they could be used for the bride's entertaining in her small apartment and home, especially if she is a working woman or still in college.

Five designs featuring wooden containers for fruit, matching wall plaques, brass scales, candelabras, brass footed bowls with matching candle holders and conversational pieces such as coffee grinders and wooden wheel barrows for fruit or flowers, were featured on the program as ideas for versatile gifts for the bride.

Mrs. Baber arranged each with "quickie" designs using fruit and greenery. The coffee grinder was displayed with a line of fruit and nut clusters flowing from the top on through the drawer and down one side in an informal line.

Fern Background

Fern formed a background throughout the design. Two matching wall plaques were used on the wall behind as accessories. This would certainly be a useful gift that the bride would enjoy in her first home. The lovely wooden fruit bowl, in two tiers, had a candle holder in the top which could be used when the bride entertains for informal luncheon or when friends are at supper. This one had a red candle with matching clusters of strawberries, small apples, and fresh ivy.

The large candelabra (holders for eight candles) was a lovely table centerpiece for permanent use on the dining table.

When entertaining more elaborately the bride was given tips on how to add foliage and fruits at a moment's notice, if necessary, to create an outstanding party design. Mrs. Baber used magnolia leaves and burford holly for the line material. Into this she placed green grapes, clusters of small pears, lemons, and a grouping of small pineapples for focal accent. She explained that any type of fruit could be worked into the line of foliage.

Also, the candle holders come in many colors. Red, blue, and green tones are available in the gift shops. These colors all blend with fruits. Of course, fresh flowers such as roses or glads could be used by simply placing oasis in a bowl beneath the base of the holder, or a needle cup holder could be used for fresh material.

Lasting Value

The magnolia leaves were selected because of their lasting value when out of water. These could be gathered and used without conditioning, or very little preparation beforehand.

Roses in shades of red, from buds to the large open blooms were used with nandina foliage in the lovely brass scales. These scales are so nice to have in the bride's home as part of her interior decorations for the living room or dining room buffet. She will enjoy them for years to come. At a moment's notice she can always use a few flowers or fruits in the two bowls for a party design. These are nice for any season of the year. Her guests will know she has good taste when she has this as her party design.

Very Useful

The brass footed bowl is very useful. Even without flowers it adds a rich touch to the atmosphere when used on the den table or dining room buffet. With matching candle holders this may be transformed into a formal party design. Mrs. Baber made a formal design using the variegated euonymous for line, filling in with the yellow daylilies with the buds. Not really difficult to make, this design would serve on the formal tea table for a small party. The candleholders, trimmed in wood and glass, could be matched to other bowls and used informally wheever needed.

Whether you are a bride or shopping for the useful gift this program was meant for you. Hope you enjoyed it and found it to be helpful.

Wednesday, Mr. W. L. Harker will be a special guest on our Center program. The formal tea table design for the bride will be made by Mr. Harker on the program.

QUESTION: I will be shopping soon for aluminum combination screens and storm windows, as well as doors of the same type. I have never used them before and I would like to know whether there is some way of telling whether I am getting my money's worth?

ANSWER: First, the old but always important advice; make your purchase from a reputable dealer. The Insect Wire Screening Bureau has a five-point check list which it suggests for prospective buyers: (1) examine cut - away sections of the frames in the dealers showroom to be sure construction is sturdy; (2) look out for poor fits, open miters and dirt-catching corners; (3) be sure the glass in the storm panels is sealed tightly all around and be certain the glass is heavy and has no distorting flaws; (4) test display models to make sure the self-storing panels open and close easily; and (5) check to see whether you are getting aluminum screening as well as frames, since this mesh doesn't rust or fade and is made under a U. S. Commerce Department standard for quality. Incidentally, the screening now comes in green and charcoal gray as well as the standard clear finish.

A hard polyeurathane flat varnish has been developed to protect horizontal surfaces of furniture coated with any flat paint that matches or contrasts with wall paint. Designed to protect the surface — such as that of a table, dresser, bookcase or chair — from dust and from dirt that comes with handling, the flat varnish does not glisten like a gloss, but is designed to resist the action of any common household cleaners or staining agents, as does the glossy kind. It sets dustfree in about 30 minutes, the makers say.

Aimed at the apartment or small-home dweller where space is at a premium, a manufacturer who supplies furniture makers has developed a riser device which can lift a table-top without changing the horizontal area which it occupies, or the floor space taken up by the legs. One is developed for single-top tables adjustable to three different levels: 17-18 inches for use as coffee or cocktail tables, 26 inches for the "continental" dining height and 29 inches for the conventional dining height. Another type is designed for use with double, "flip - top" tables, especially those rectangular at the coffee-table height and unfolding to a square or nearly square form at continental or conventional levels.

For the picnicker or motorist who wants to pack a block of ice in the food chest without fear of melting ice spoiling or diluting the contents, a manufacturer has developed a plastic container about the size of a book. It can be filled with water like any ice tray, placed in the freezer compartment of the refrigerator until solid, and then placed in the food chest. Once melted, the container may serve as a reserve supply of cold drinking water.

A Michigan manufacturer has developed an expansible rake for lawn and garden care, designed for use either as a cultivating tool around bushes and plants or as a grass or leaf raker in open lawn areas. It may also be adjusted to other raking or sweeping widths depending upon the surface to be treated. In a narrow position, the 15 tines can be set rigidly in a 7½ inch row, for soil cultivation in confined areas around plants and shrubs. For grass raking, the tines may be extended to a spread of 22½ inches by sliding a bracket which holds them to a point near the end of the handle. A four-foot handle is made of ¾-inch galvanized steel tubing with a plastic hand grip.

An activated charcoal water filter designed to remove some tastes and odors or discolorations from tap water has been introduced by a Cleveland, Ohio, manufacturer. The unit weighs less than three pounds, and is said to be adapted to use either on a counter or on the wall near the kitchen faucet. No electrical or plumbing connections are necessary, according to the maker; it can be hooked up by disconnecting the aerator from the water tap, screwing on the diverter and aerator assembly. Use of diverter button permits passage of the water either through the tap in normal fashion or through the filter.

Southern Gardener

Nourishment For Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In late May and early June, gardens call for fertilizer, fertilizer and more fertilizer. Ravenous plants like crape myrtles and crinum-lilies rarely get enough food for their proper development, and most of us do not quite realize how much fertilizer is really needed to keep gardens growing in June.

In gardens where trees are present with their ever-searching roots, the trees and flowers both must be fed adequately if we are to enjoy both summer shade and flowers. Shade plants like hostas, ajuga, anemones, coral bells, goat's-beard spirea, azaleas, hardy begonias, bleeding - heart, bloodroot, wild iris, the many kinds of shade-loving ferns, cardinal flower, columbine, fumitory, day-lilies — to name a few, need a top-dressing of fertilizer right now. If you take away the leaves every year from your shaded areas, you must also replace the mulch now.

Quick Response

It is probably most rewarding to fertilize annuals because they respond in a few days with greener foliage and a burst of buds in ten days. Your late summer-and fall-blooming perennials will put on a real show in August and September and October if you will feed them now. Cone-flowers, Sedum spectabile, ageratum and late bulbs like cape hyacinths and Formosa lilies can be made to produce a spectacle worth seeing in July and August when we most appreciate it simply by feeding them right now.

While you can still find them, mark the location of daffodils and spider-lilies with little rocks orinconspicuous labels. If you dig these bulbs now, let them dry in the shade in bunches just as they come out of the ground. In a few weeks, they will have cured enough to divide them without injury. Spider - lily roots are perennial. Just leave them on the bulbs and replant as soon as it is convenient.

Can Be Crowded

The big crinum clumps that develop do not need to be divided. They will flower even in terribly crowded condition if you will but feed them weekly or every other week. Just dissolve a big handful of complete fertilizer in a bucket of water, pour it around a clump and water it in with the hose. Old, old clumps can be made to flower by feeding them this way. They are such giant bulbs that they need a great deal of food — more than we can imagine — in order to grow and produce their huge stalks of bloom. It must take a lot of food to grow one of these stalks which are as long as a walking stick.

Howard Off Bench To Power Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard, just off the disabled list, whipped a pinch hit single in the 10th inning that gave the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory Saturday over the Chicago White Sox and their previously unbeaten reliever, Eddie Fisher.

Howard came to bat with no one out after the Yanks had loaded the bases on a walk to Phil Linz, a double by Bobby Richardson and an intentional walk to Roger Maris.

The star catcher, who underwent surgery for removal of bone chips from his right elbow May 4 and returned to the active list only Friday, then hit his single through the drawn-in White Sox infield.

After the Yanks went ahead 3-2, Chicago pulled even in the seventh when Buford walked, stole second and raced in on another single by Robinson.

Stottlemyre's homer in the third was the first Yankee run in 24 innings, and they took the lead in the sixth.

Altman's Single Carries Chicago Over Phils, 9-8

CHICAGO (AP) — George Altman's single following a 35-minute rain delay drove in the winning run in the ninth inning as the Chicago Cubs edged the Philadelphia Phillies 9-8 Saturday.

The rain interruption was the second in the inning. The game was delayed for 27 minutes before the Phillies tied it 8-8 in their half of the ninth on a walk to Rich Allen before the rain and singles by Tony Gonzalez and John Herrnstein after the rain.

Ed Bailey led off the Cubs' ninth with a double against Gary Wagner. Larry Jackson ran for Bailey and moved to third on Jimmy Stewart's ground out. Pinch hitter Don Landrum was walked intentionally, and Harvey Kuenn struck out before the rain fell again.

When play was resumed, pinch hitter Altman rapped Wagner's first pitch for a single to center field.

Winnsboro Head Gets Most Votes For High Post

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mayor W. E. Marioneaux received the highest vote in the recent election of Louisiana national directors of the Dixie Youth Baseball Inc.

This is the sixth term and it will be for three years this time.

Marvin Smith of West Monroe was re-elected to a two-year term and George Perry of Ferriday was re-elected for one year.

J. W. McLemore Jr. of Winnsboro is a lifetime director and deputy national commissioner of the Dixie Youth Baseball, Inc.

Radatz Pitches, Hits Boston To 11 Inning Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pitcher Dick Radatz smashed his first major league home run in the 11th inning, snapping a 3-3 tie, and struck out eight in a scoreless three - inning relief stint, pacing Boston to a 5-3 victory over Kansas City Saturday night.

Radatz homered off Kansas City reliever Jesse Hickman with one out in the 11th. The Red Sox added an insurance run when Lenny Green walked, stole second, took third on an infield out and talled on Felix Mantilla's infield hit.

Marichal Beats Cincinnati 1-0 On Five-Hitter

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Davenport's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning gave San Francisco and Juan Marichal a 1-0 victory over Cincinnati and Jim Maloney Saturday night.

A crowd of 25,262, second largest of the season at Crosley Field, saw Marichal and Maloney in a scoreless duel until the seventh when Jesus Alou doubled, moved to third on a grounder and scored on Davenport's long fly.

Marichal allowed only five hits in bringing his record to 8 - 5. Maloney, removed for a pinch hitter in the eight after allowing five hits, now is 5-2.

The Giants loaded the bases on two singles and a walk in the first with no outs, but Maloney got Willie Mays to foul out, struck out Jim Hart and then got Alou to foul out to Gordy Coleman.

Hail To All Conquers Belmont Race

Tom Rolfe Second, First Family Third

NEW YORK (AP) — Hail to All, a swift-closing Florida-bred colt owned by Mrs. Ben Cohen of Maryland, carried jockey Johnny Sellers back into horse racing's spotlight Saturday with a neck triumph over Preakness winner Tom Rolfe in the $147,900 Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct.

Using to perfection his patented strike-from-behind style of running, Hail to All took the lead in the final strides and edged Tom Rolfe in the stirring four-horse finish.

Lightly-regarded First Family from C. T. Chenery's Meadow Stable was third, one length back, with Ogden Phipps' Dapper Dan trailing by another three-quarters of a length for fourth place.

It was a sweet triumph for the lanky, 27-year-old Sellers. He had failed in four previous Belmonts but the most bitter setback was when Carry Back, another come-from-behind performer, wound up seventh in 1961 following triumphs in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, first two legs of the Triple Crown.

This year, Sellers had been taken off Hail to All in the Kentucky Derby in favor of Manuel Ycaza when trainer Eddie Yowell and Mrs. Cohen thought he had failed to get the most of the powerful stretch-runner in earlier races.

But he was back in Hail to All's saddle in the Preakness and wound up third as Tom Rolfe edged the fast-closing Dapper Dan. Last Monday, he really started the long comeback by winning the Jersey Derby with Hail to All.

Saturday's victory at 10 per cent of the winning purse of $104,150 earned Sellers $10,415.

"He broke real well and I kept him off the early pace about fifth and let them go on," said Sellers. "I figured they'd come back. On the backstretch he worried me a bit as we were coming to the half-mile pole because he took the bit and moved up faster than I wanted. I didn't really set him down until past the quarter pole when Dapper Dan came by on the inside and Tom Rolfe on the outside.

"He just outgamed Tom Rolfe to the wire."

Sellers added:

"We were in the clear all the way and when the real racing started through the lane we had the room we needed," he said. "The winner went by me one time coming to the eighth pole and then little Tom came on again, but he just didn't make it."

"We went by the leaders like they were standing still and then when I thought we had a clear lead, he just pulled himself up," Valenzuela said.

Hail to All, the third choice back of the entry of Dapper Dan and Bold Bidder, and Tom Rolfe, paid $7.30, $4.10 and $3.60. Tom Rolfe, the second choice, paid $3.50 and $2.90. First Family, originally not considered in triple crown class, returned $8.80 to show.

Sellers, born in Los Angeles, reared in Oklahoma and now a resident of Miami, climbed back into the limelight for the first time since he rode to fame aboard another late closer, Carry Back, four years ago.

It was his first victory in the Belmont.

"Everything went perfect today," Sellers said. "I got by Tom Rolfe by a neck and he came on again. My horse really gave it to me then. He ran a terrific race."

Surprisingly La Cima, who had won only one race, wound up the 8-1 fourth choice, because of the presence of the hot-riding Ussery.

Morgan, Mann Are One-Two In NAIA Meet

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Southern University of Louisiana grabbed a commanding lead in the 14th annual National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championships with 11 of 18 events completed Saturday night.

Southern amased 50 points, with the big gain coming in the 440-yard dash, in which it picked up four of the six places and 19 points.

Defending champion Emporia State of Kansas had 16 points and appeared to be out of the running for the team title. Emporia's John Camien won his fourth consecutive NAIA mile title but ran a slow 4:10.1.

Northeast Louisiana State of Monroe recorded a first and second place finish in the 120-yard high hurdles. Roger Morgan repeated his 1964 triumph with a 14 flat time and Roger Mann was second, also with a 14 flat.

Two former NAIA 440 yard dash champions bit the dust in the final, which was won by Southern's Theron Lewis in 46.6, two-tenths of a second off the NAIA record set by Walter Johnson of North Carolina College in 1961.

The only record set was by Dave Price of California Western who tossed the shot 62-9¾ feet to break his own record of 59-4½ set in 1963.

Braves Win Again, 9-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mack Jones, determined to nail down a permanent job in his fifth trial with Milwaukee, cracked his first grand slam homer Saturday in powering the Braves to a 9-1 victory over the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jones' bases-loaded blast came in the first inning off southpaw Johnny Podres and was all Milwaukee right-hander Tony Cloninger needed in hurling the runner-up Braves to within three games of the injury-riddled Dodgers.

Podres, who had won his first three 1965 decisions in rebounding from arm surgery last year, retired the first two batters but surrendered singles to Hank Aaron and Joe Torre.

With the count 2-and-2 on Gene Oliver he unloaded a wild pitch and then gave an intentional pass to load the bases and bring up Jones.

Cloninger worked his way out of jams in each of the first three innings en route to his seventh victory in 11 decisions. The fireballing right-hander lost his shutout bid when Johnny Roseboro led off the sixth with his second homer, a line shot into the right field bleachers.

Milwaukee collected two runs off Podres in the fifth on a single by Cloninger, a bunt single by Felipe Alou, Roseboro's passed ball and sacrifice flies by Eddie Mathews and Aaron.

The victory was the surging Braves' fourth straight and ninth in the last 12 games.

Tony Lema Gets Lead In Buick Open On 69

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Defending champion Tony Lema, in trouble a couple of times but making up for it with razor-sharp putting, shot a 69 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $100,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament.

Julius Boros, a winner here two years ago and the leader at the mid-way point of the 72-hole tournament, stayed tied with Lema until a bogie on the 222-yard 17th hole dropped him one stroke behind.

Johnny Pott and Jack Nicklaus each carded two-under-par 70s over the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills course to tie Boros for second.

Lema, who started the third round two strokes behind Boros, wasted no time getting his first birdie, sinking a 1.2-foot putt on the second hole.

He failed to get out of a trap on his first effort at the fifth hole and took a bogie, but he got that back and more with 15-and 3-foot birdies on the next two holes.

A bunker on the 12th hole and a three-putt green on No. 15 gave him his two bogies on the back side. He picked up birdies on the 13th hole with a 20-foot putt, on the 16th with a good second shot and two putts, and with an eight-foot putt on the last hole.

Boros bogied the first hole and dropped another stroke four holes later before getting a birdie on the sixth. He started a rally on the back nine and was tied with Lema until he missed an eight-foot putt on the 17th.

The fourth hole-in-one in the history of the tourney and a record tying 65 by Don Fairfield also marked the day's play.

Archie Dadian, in his second year on the tour, aced the 204-yard third hole. The feat earned the 31-year-old Milwaukee, Wis., native, a new car from the tournament sponsor.

Fairfield put together cards of 31 and 34 for his 65, which equaled the record set by Cary Middlecoff in 1959.

Brooks Robinson Paves Way For Baltimore's 7-0 Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brooks Robinson rapped four hits, including a homer, and drove in four runs Saturday as Baltimore whipped the Los Angeles Angels 7-0 behind Wally Bunker's five-hit pitching.

Robinson, who also collected two singles and a double, capped the Orioles' 13-hit attack with a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Bob Johnson slugged a bases-empty homer for the Orioles and Sam Bowens had a single and double.

Bunker singled home a run en route to his second victory against two defeats. It was the most impressive performance of the season by the 20-year-old right-hander, who had started his sophomore season in disappointing fashion.

Bunker had a 19-5 record in 1964 and was named Rookie of the Year in the American League.

Bunker walked one, struck out one and went the route for the first time in six starts. The Angels advanced only one runner as far as third base, and that came in the sixth when Al Spangler walked and Willie Smith singled.

Grant-In-Aid Is Awarded Youth From Rayville

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mayor W. E. Marioneaux, national director of the Dixie Youth Baseball, Inc., said that James Letlow of Rayville has been awarded a $500 scholarship to the college of his choice. Mayor Marioneaux said Letlow planned to attend Northeast State.

The mayor presented the award in ceremonies at Rayville High School. The award was one of four scholarships which are awarded annually in eight southern states.

The

GSC Headed By Northeast Professor – Marcus Mapp

Marcus B. Mapp, head of the Department of Geology at Northeast Louisiana State College here, is a former Southeastern Conference athlete. He later served as backfield coach at his alma mater, Mississippi State, under Allyn McKeen. McKeen's' coaching staff included several men who went on to become head coaches at other institutions — Murray Warmath at Minnesota, Bowden Wyatt at Arkansas and Tennessee, Dewitt Weaver at Texas Tech, and Phil Dickens at Indiana. Squad members included two who later joined the big-time coaching ranks, Bill Hildebrand at Wake Forest and Spook Murphy at Memphis State.

The new GSC head is optimistic about the conference's future. "We will be up to seven members during the coming year with the entry of Nicholls State of Thibodaux," Napp said. "And we expect to affiliate with the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) in 1966."

Mapp, prominent as a geologist and head of the Department of Geology at NLSC, said NCAA affiliation will result in only one major change in GSC rules. "We will be prohibited from conducting tryouts of prospective athletes as we now do," he said. Otherwise, the conference's scholarship rules already conform to NCAA regulations.

Chief benefit of the NCAA affiliation will be enhanced national recognition, the new GSC president explained. At the present time conference schools are not eligible to participate in NCAA-sanctioned post-season games.

"We had an undefeated McNeese eleven in 1963 that could have made an excellent showing in a post - season bowl game," he declared.

Recalling the evolution of the GSC from the old Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which had member schools in Mississippi and Alabama as well as Louisiana, Mapp noted that it was only about three years ago that the GSC drew up its present constitution and bylaws.

A highlight of the development of the present conference of all-Louisiana colleges has been emphasis on well-rounded athletic programs at member institutions.

"Our spring sports program, has developed into one of the best in the South," Mapp said. "In this area I think I can confidently say that we are already stronger than the SEC and certainly no pushover for competition from other sections of the nation."

He gives particular credit to the emphasis exerted through the annual presentation of the coveted GSC All-Sports Trophy, won for the past three years by his own college.

The new GSC president got his start in varsity athletics at Mississippi State, where he worked at guard and fullback. "Those were great days," he recalls. "In my four years there we never once lost to our arch rival, Ole Miss."

The jovial Mississippian entered coaching almost by accident —and got out the same way. He directed physical education in the Air Force Officers Training Program at Mississippi State for 18 months during World War II. When this program ended, Coach McKeen asked him to stay on as a member of his coaching staff.

When McKeen moved to Tennessee, Mapp went to East Mississippi Junior College, Scooba, as head coach. While he and his family were out of town on a football trip, the Mapp residence was leveled by fire. It was then that he decided to quit coaching and go into private business.

For four years the former collegiate coach operated a florist business in his home town of Forest. He coached basketball at nearby Lake High School on the side.

In 1954, Mapp decided to return to college work and joined the Northeast State faculty as assistant professor of geology. He became department chairman in 1958.

Since coming to Louisiana, he resumed his interest in intercollegiate athletics and has served several terms on the faculty committee on athletics, of which he is now chairman.

He was elected to the GSC's executive committee for 1963-64 and served during the past year as the conference's vice president.

Serving with him as GSC officers for the coming year will be Dr. Ralph Wilson of Southeastern, vice president, and Dr. W. D. Lewis of Southwestern, secretary-treasurer.

In addition to the officers, members of the executive committee for the upcoming term are B. B. Boyd of Northwestern, Harold J. Smolinski of Louisiana Tech, Frank M. Rolufs of McNeese, Jerry Blakeman of Nicholls and Ned McGehee of Southeastern.

AFL Expected To Get In First Punch Of Pro War

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — The American Football League is expected to get in the first punch in the pro football expansion war Monday or Tuesday, likely unveiling a piggy-back expansion plan that will take the 5-year-old league into Atlanta and territory currently held by the rival National League.

The setting for the first moves that will alter the pro football map will be Monmouth Park Race Track, where the AFL expansion committee is scheduled to report to the full board of eight club owners.

Speculation about the possible moves, which undoubtedly will affect 1967 expansion plans of the older NFL, revolve around three southern cities — Atlanta, Miami and New Orleans — plus five cities where the National League currently has no competition — Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Detroit.

Most observers expect the AFL to announce a two-stage expansion plan with Atlanta and Philadelphia the most likely candidates to put teams on the field in 1966 and two more teams to be taken in and complete a 12-team alignment for 1968.

Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, acknowledged that "it is our hope to add two teams for 1966 and two more in the next couple of years, probably by 1968. We are looking for the big cities, those that can take two teams but where only one teams now exists."

Foss said he will recommend to the assembled club owners that they act to expand but pointed out that it would take a vote of six of the eight owners to actually bring about expansion. Foss, however, added that if he made such a recommendation, he presumed the club owners would agree.

That would give the AFL a one-year head start in a budding expansion battle that could possibly wind up with about 30 pro football teams operating by 1968.

The NFL, acting on a recommendation by Commissioner Pete Roselle, is studying possible cities with an eye toward adding two teams for a 16-team league by 1967.

The National League seemed headed toward Houston, with Boston, Miami and New Orleans heading a list of candidates that Rozelle said does not exclude any city in the United States.

Both Houston and Boston currently have teams in the AFL, but that doesn't seem to bother Rozelle.

"I have not given extensive thought to that," he said. "I have no feelings about those cities in particular."

Foss was even more outspoken when he was asked about bucking NFL competition.

"We are ready to meet them head on in any bids for attractive franchises," he said. "They have a 40-year head start on us but we're strong and healthy and we can hold our own."

From reports still coming in all around the country, there were news items of varying kinds that seemed to point to one city or another as the top candidates.

Atlanta, and the television-rich territory it represets, is considered the prime reason the baseball Braves are leaving Milwaukee.

in Cleveland, Dallas, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Washington, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Geen Bay, Los Angeles, Minnesota and San Francisco.

The AFL has teams in New York, Boston, Buffalo, Kansas City, Houston, Denver San Diego, and Oakland.

Double Main Event Slated At Raceway

Time trials for the drag races begin at 9 a.m. and eliminations follow at 1 p.m.

The first headliner on today's card will be a three way AA-fuel dragster grudge match between George Dyer, Lufkin, Tex., Doug Mead of Sulpher and Ron Sylvester of Baton Rouge.

Dyer will be running with a blown Chevy engine while both Louisiana drivers will be going with Chrysler motors.

Also on the program will be an event of national prominence when Q-Ball Wales of New Orleans and Bobby Langley, the 1964 American Hot Rod Association AA - Fuel dragster champion meet.

Wales won top eliminator at the track last week and immediately challenged Langley to run. But most likely he will have his hands full with the champion.

Last week, at Amarillo, Tex., Langley ran the fastest quarter ever recorded in the class, a 206 mile - per-hour clocking in an elapsed time of 7.75 and local officials predict that he will set an all time track record at the raceway today.

Included in the expected draw of 300 cars are the usual array of stockers, altered, sports cars, gassers and modified productions, according to Mrs. Jean Harmon Bayles, president of the raceway.

McDowell Hurls Four-Hitter To Defeat Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sam McDowell pitched a four-hitter, striking out 15, and Vic Davalillo drove in the winning run with a double in the 10th inning as Cleveland edged Detroit 2-1 Saturday night.

Wildlife Fund Losing Money

With Sam Hanna

Federation Is Opposed

Louisiana's wildlife program will be seriously crippled if Gov. John J. McKeithen's administration goes through with the transfer of $3.5 - million from the conservation fund to the general fund.

This is the consensus of opinion among informed people interested in the programs conducted by the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

McKeithen's administration included the transfer of the $3.5-million in the record $1-billion budget that was approved last week by the Legislature.

Not a single legislator objected to the transfer even though the Louisiana Wildlife Federation publicly called on the governor not to go through with the transfer.

McKeithen, at a press conference, said the administration would not take any more of the money than was needed. In fact, he indicated the funds would not be transferred unless it was necessary. He also said the transfer had been done by previous administrations.

The chairman of the legislative budget committee, Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe, pointed out too that the administration has until December to make up its mind definitely about removing the money.

Previous administrations have used funds from the Rockefeller Refuge sources for the state treasury, but according to Treasurer A. P. Tugwell his office can't find any record of the state ever transferring funds from the conservation fund to the general fund.

Tugwell said, however, he obtained a ruling from Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion that the transfer was legal.

Legal or not, if the funds are removed from the conservation fund the hunters and fishermen of Louisiana are the citizens who will pay the loss.

And, according to Sam Frisby, president of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, 42.6 per cent of the income in the conservation fund — an average of $1.2 million per year, has accrued from licenses and fees paid by hunters, fishermen, trappers and boating enthusiasts.

In other words, money paid out by hunters and fishermen—building up as a surplus — will not be used for the improvement of the state's outdoor resources.

Frisby also points out that federal taxes, paid in by Louisiana sportsmen, may be affected by the transfer of funds. Federal money paid back to the state to conserve fish and wildlife may be withheld if the $3.5-million is transferred to the general fund.

Professionals in the field of wildlife conservation advise us that if the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission loses this money a number of things will happen:

1. With an expanding population and a growing number of hunters, fishermen, water skiers, boaters, campers and outdoors people in general, more money will be needed. Costs of materials are going up to maintain existing facilities.

2. Construction of public boat launching facilities will be curtailed. Public launching facilities are needed for access to the waterways of Louisiana. This program should be continued and expanded for increase in number of boating enthusiasts and fishermen.

3. Development of new public hunting areas throughout the state will be limited. With an increase in population and changing land use, the average citizen soon will not have a place to hunt.

4. Development of existing public hunting areas will be hampered. Improvements have to be made annually on our public areas, like the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area.

5. Coastal research and development is needed. Louisiana has some of the most productive coastal areas in the United States and supports our state as well as sister states in commercial fisheries. Changing land use, drainage, etc. are affecting our coast.

6. Louisiana is lagging behind in fisheries work. Presently the state has two major areas (Ferriday and DeRidder) without fisheries personnel.

In short, Louisiana needs every dime it can muster for wildlife and outdoor conservation. That's why the transfer of $3.5 million is serious.

Not a single legislator pointed this out. The Wild Life & Fisheries Commission didn't voice its objections until the Louisiana Wildlife Federation spoke up — like closing the barn door after the horse got out.

Surely the governor and the legislature will not want to cripple the state's wildlife program, especially since the governor's program is on industrialization, which brings in more people with more time on their hands for outdoor recreation.

Louisiana's outdoor program must be kept abreast of the times — not hobbled by a lack of funds. It goes hand-in-hand with industrial inducement — the goal of the McKeithen administration.

Hearings For Sportsmen

It'll soon be time for sportsmen to express their wishes regarding hunting seasons for consideration by the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

The annual public hearings on seasons and bag limits will be held June 18-19th at the Holiday Inn in Alexandria.

This is where all sportsmen who wish to be heard are given the opportunity. Requests and opinions are taken under consideration, compared with the biologists' recommendations and then the commission reaches it decisions.

In conjunction with the hearings, the Louisiana Wildlife Federation will hold its annual spring meeting of the federation's board. That'll be held at 9:30 a.m., Sunday, June 20th, at the Holiday Inn in Alexandria.

The commission normally announces its hunting seasons and bag limits in late July or early August in time for the hunters to prepare for the September dove season.

Ouachita Wildlife Events

The Ouachita Wildlife Unit is making plans for its annual fishfry June 26th at Area Four on Cheniere Lake. Andy Anders, club president, said the fishfry also will serve as the club's regular June meeting.

A program is being arranged, but a highlight will feature the presentation of the June winners of the club's fishing contest, which is currently underway. The contest will continue through July and August.

Andy emplains for the fishfry at least one member of a family attending must be a club member. This means that memberships will be sold at the fishfry.

Of course, the purpose is to increase the club's membership.

Little Man's Corner

It was summertime and the fishing was good and the little men made news afield.

Large specs were beginning to come in out at Black Bayou where the bream fishing was good also.

Kenneth Eubanks and Bill Rushing of Monroe landed 75 bream, and also a 2-pound spec. James Cook and Barr Taylor caught 60 bream.

Still from Monroe, Bill Hamilton got 90 bream and Ralph Bradley got 65 specs. O. E. Towery Jr. caught three bass, including one that weighed 5¼ pounds.

Black Bayou also paid off for B. Norton, who caught 82 bream. Sam Smith landed 92 white perch and Mr. and Mrs. John T. Nolan caught 60 chinquapins, plus five bream and a 5-pound bass.

Over in Union Parish, Jeff Tidwell tells us the Rebel Hunting Club will have a fishfry June 16th at the club's community center.

Numerous state officials connected with the wildlife program are being invited to attend the Rebel Hunting Club's event.

Since we've been in Baton Rouge covering the Legislature, we don't have too much news about the little men, but we do believe they'll be interested in some of the events taking place around the capital city that are related to the outdoors.

For instance, North Louisianans have been treated to some real Cajun food, including crawfish, shrimp and a dish called sauce piquant.

When Russell Long entertained the Legislature at his farm a few nights ago, he served sauce piquant. A lot of the guests found out later, much to their surprise, that they had eaten turtle. It was turtle sauce piquant.

Frenchie Thibeaux, the Monroe Cajun, tells us sauce piquant can be cooked with other seafood, including shrimp. Frenchie says piquant means hot in the country he came from.

It was our first turtle, and we must admit it was delicious.

Perhaps you saw the story about Rep. James Smith of Farmerville and the effort he made to uphold North Louisiana at a crawfish eating contest between two coonies, Sen. Adrain Duplantier of New Orleans and Sen. Garland Bonin of Lafayette. They were no match for Smith, who probably ate more crawfish than both of them without even trying.

JAKE WOOD of the Detroit Tigers slides into home plate with his eyes closed to give the Tigers a 1-0 lead during the first inning of Saturday night's game with Cleveland. Making a futile dive for Wood is Cleveland's Camilo Carreon. The Indians won 2-1. (AP Wirephoto)

U.S. Davis Cup Team Wins

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The United States Davis Cup tennis team eliminated Canada from American Zone competition Saturday when Chuck McKinley and Marty Reissen combined for a 9-7, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Harry Fauquier and Keith Carpenter.

The win gave the Americans a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series and assured them of a trip to Dallas, Tex., at the end of July to meet the Mexico-New Zealand winner.

The Canadians played their best tennis in the first set when the Americans broke Fauquier's serve in the 15th game to take an 8-7 advantage.

In the final game, Riessen served well and put away the victory with a forehand passing shot down the alley.

They opened the second set by breaking Carpenter's serve. The final point of that game was made on a hard cross-court volley by Riessen.

The Americans held service without difficulty. In the seventh game McKinley gave the U. S. another service break when he drove a forehand service return past Fauquier.

Riessen closed out the second set with an ace, driving his serve past Carpenter and giving the Americans the 6-2 win.

McKinley and Riesson stayed atop the third set as well. They took a commanding position when they broke service against Fauuqier in the third game.

In the final game the score went to advantage U. S., and Carpenter doubled-faulted, ending the match

A pair of singles matches will be played today. Although they will count in the scoring, they are little more than exhibitions because the U. S. now has a lead that can't be headed in the series.

Ouachita Rallies To Down KTVE

Ouachita Bank scored four runs in the final inning to overcome a 7-5 deficit and whip KTVE 9-7 in an Amateur League contest Saturday night at Legion Stadium.

Today's doubleheader, between Rivers Ford and Motor Supply, will be played at Confederate Park in West Monroe instead of Legion Stadium where the games are usually played. Game time is 2 p.m.

Ouachita picked up its four runs in seventh on three walks, a hit by Ralph Malone and a KTVE error.

Malone, who went 3-3, was the winning hurler. He went the final two frames, giving up one run on three hits and striking out three.

Gerald Gates was the losing hurler, going the route and striking out 10 men while being touched for six earned runs.

Dooley Haddad led all hitters for the night. The little KTVE centerfielder went 4-4 and scored three runs. Len Accardo, recently named to the class A all-state team, went 2-4 and had two RBI's for KTVE.

Two Meetings Set At Northside Dixie Youth Park

Two meetings are scheduled for the Northside West Monroe Dixie Youth Baseball Park today, according to Lloyd Williams, director of the West Monroe Boy's Club.

At two o'clock, the West Monroe Dixie Youth Board of Directors will hold its monthly meeting and conduct usual business.

At five o'clock, a parent's meeting will be held at the park, for the parents of sons who sold $40 worth of candy in a recent contest.

The boys will be making a trip to Six Flags over Texas in Dallas and the plans for the trip will be given to the parents.

Every ALLSTATE tire is guaranteed against all failures from road hazards or defects for the life of the original tread. If tire fails, we will—at our option—repair it without cost; or, in exchange for the tire, we will replace it charging only for tread worn (charge will be a pro-rata share of exchange price*).

TREAD WEAR GUARANTEE
We guarantee tread life for the number of months designated. If tread wears out within this period, return it. In exchange, we will replace it charging the current exchange price less a set dollar allowance.*

Hogan To Appear

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Ben Hogan will make one of his infrequent competitive appearances in the $200,000 Carling World Golf championship Aug. 19-22 at Pleasant Valley Country club.

He is exempt from qualifying. He won the U.S. Open four times and the masters and PGA titles twice each.

Local Drivers Invade Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special) — State Fair Speedway will be braced for an invasion from Northeast Louisiana this afternoon when promoter Leo House stages his second auto racing program in the weekly series at the Fair Grounds' half mile track.

While presenting his first card at the speedway last week, House discovered that there weren't enough modifieds and super modifieds to go around for a regular weekly series. So today's lineup will be concentrated on stock models which will exclude West Monroe's Royce Whitlock.

Whitlock won all three super modified races last week. He also set a new track record during time trials of 24.9 seconds.

With competition restricted to only two classes - early stocks from 1936 - 53 and late stocks to 1954 - 60 - Northeast La. will now be represented by such drivers as Harold Zigler, Robert Wainwright, Tom Henry, Raymond Taylor, Bill Smith, Gene Newsome, Floyd Cook, Vester Dean, Burl McGee and Harold Johnson of Monroe; Freddy Cook, Cecil Fontenot and Red Futch from West Monroe and Howard Heeterman and Wayne McGee of Bastrop.

They will compete against drivers from Marshall, Longview, Texarkana and Shreveport. Time trials will be at 1 p. m. and the races begin at 2:00.

Pittsburgh Stops Mets' Win Skein

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell drove in four runs and Jim Pagliaroni three in support of Vernon Law's two-hitter as Pittsburgh snapped the New York Mets' four-game winning streak with a 9-0 victory Saturday.

The only hits off Law were Bobby Klaus' leadoff single in the first inning and Ed Kranepool's single in the fourth following a walk to Joe Christopher. The Mets had only one other base runner, Johnny Lewis who reached first on Donn Clendenon's sixth-inning error.

Law, who lost his first five decisions, now has won three straight.

The Pirates got Law off to a fast start with six runs in the first inning. They loaded the bases with none out on singles by Bob Bailey and Bill Virdon and an error by pitcher Gary Kroll on Roberto Clemente's grounder. Stargell then cleared them with a double to left field.

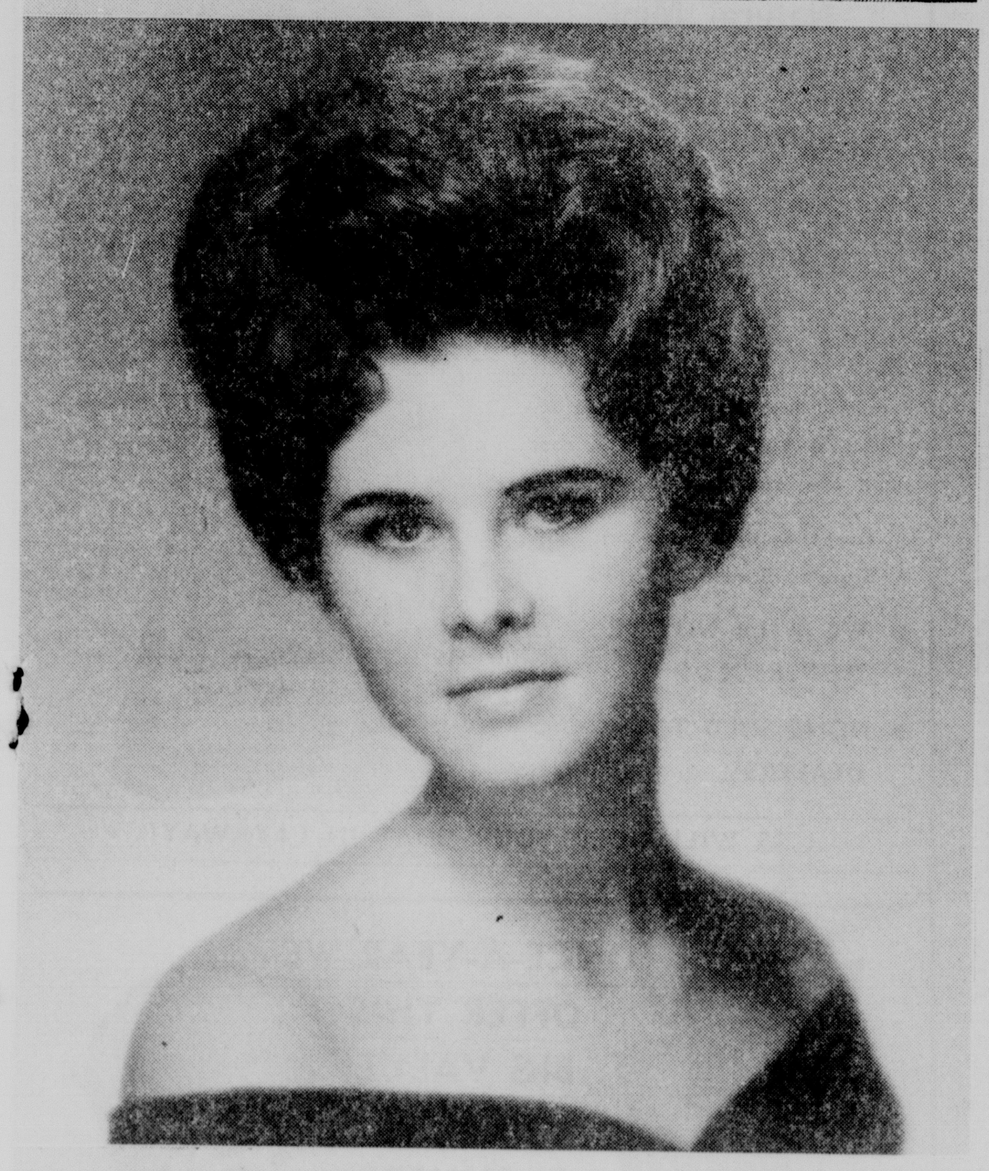
The World For WOMEN

June 6, 1965

At left: Solemnized Saturday, June 5 in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church, Monroe, was the wedding of Miss Louise Magdalen Amman and Bernard Glenn Bryson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Amman, 2700 Pargoud Blvd., Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Glenn Bryson Jr. of Hurst, Texas. The Rev. Dave Dabria performed the 10:30 a.m. ceremony and following a wedding trip the couple will be at home in El Dorado, Arkansas, where Mr. Bryson is a chemical engineer.

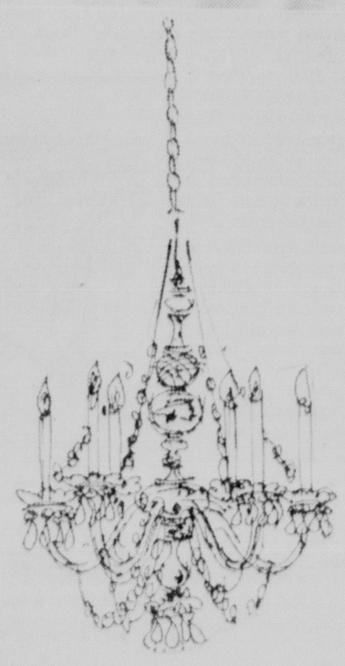
At right: Trinity Episcopal Church in Mobile, Alabama, was scene of the ceremony Saturday, June 5 which united in marriage Miss Rebecca Holt Johnstone, daughter of Mrs. Charles Albert Lesene Johnstone of Mobile and the late Mr. Johnstone, to William Bradley Trimble Jr., lieutenant (j.g.) USNR, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William Bradley Trimble, 501 Erin Avenue, Monroe. Later this month Mr. and Mrs. Trimble will be at home in Panama City, Florida, where he is serving as operations officer aboard the USS Venture.



Above: Engagement of Miss Abby Lucille Shuey and Joe Nolda Averett Jr., is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller Shuey of Shreveport. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nolda Averett Sr., of Shreveport, former residents of Monroe. The wedding is calendared for Saturday, August 28 at 8 p.m. in the First Methodist church of Shreveport.

At left: The wedding of Miss Rosalyn Ann Thames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thames of Mangham to Elwyn Keith Odom, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Odom, of Baskin, was solemnized Saturday, June 5 in the First Baptist Church of Mangham. Baskets of white gladioli and white tapers in branched candelabra, entwined with smilax formed a background setting for the exchange of vows at 7:30 p.m. Both are graduates of Louisiana Tech and will be at home in Ferriday where Mr. Odom is employed.

Below: In a candlelight ceremony at Start Baptist Church on Saturday, May 29, Miss Sue Ellen Joachim, daughter of Mrs. Mayvene Hardwick of Start and William Joachim of Pennsylvania, became the bride of Marshall Delbert Garlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Garlington of Monroe. After a wedding trip in South Louisiana the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge where Mr. Garlington is employed and the bride will continue her studies at L.S.U.



At left: Fan shaped arrangements of white gladioli and carnations against a background of burning cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra formed a setting in First Methodist Church, West Monroe, for the wedding Saturday, June 5 of Miss Rhoda Kay Johnson and Jesse William Harrison. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor P. Johnson, 809 Clayton St., and Mr. Harrison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Harrison, 129 Lomaland Drive, all of West Monroe. Following a reception in the church parlor the couple left for a wedding trip to the Florida Gulf Coast. They will be at home in West Monroe.

Garden Tea Announces Engagement Of Jan Monroe, Bruce E. Brooks Jr.

On Saturday afternoon, June 5, the sisters of Miss Kitty Jan Monroe of West Monroe entertained at the L. M. Frey Jr., home on Auburn Avenue, with a garden tea foretelling her approaching marriage to Bruce E. Brooks Jr.

The bride - elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Monroe, 1528 Jonesboro Road and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Edwin Brooks Sr., 911 Jonesboro Road, all of West Monroe.

The wedding will be an event of August 21 at 7 p.m. in First Baptist Church of West Monroe with Dr. Clifton R. Tennison performing the ceremony.

Topiary trees of pink carnations and ivy adorned with white lovebirds marked the drive and outlined the entrance of the home where classic urns held arrangements of spring flowers. Mrs. L. M. Frey Jr. greeted guests in the foyer where white satin rope entwined with smilax formed graceful swags the length of the staircase.

Forming a background for the receiving line was a lavabo filled with pink candytuft, white daisies and Baker's fern. The honor guest was joined in the receiving line by her mother and the mother of her fiance, and the hostesses. For the occasion Miss Monroe was wearing a trousseau model of white lace, fashioned with a bodice of linen, featuring a jewel neckline, with pink ribbon insertion. The pink ribbon trim was repeated on the loose fitting lace jacket, to which was pinned a shoulder corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

A gold leaf framed mirror in the living room reflected gold and marble candelabrum holding pink tapers and centered with a pouf of pink net, crested with a white love bird from which white satin streamers extended to a mass arrangement of pink snapdragons, white stock and pink carnations. Inscribed in gold on the streamers was "Jan and Bruce — August 21, 1965," foretelling the nuptial event.

A focal point of interest was the white wrought iron birdbath which was centered with a 15-branch white wrought iron candelabra holding pink elegant carnations and Baker's fern. Hanging baskets of colorful spring blossoms and ferns hung between white columns along the walkway to the garden gate.

MISS KITTY JAN MONROE

Mrs. Ralph J. Talbot, aunt of the honoree, presided at the bride's book which was placed beside a burning memory candle, encircled with pink elegant carnations and ferns.

The glass topped tea table was centered with a crystal and silver epergne filled with white stock, pink candytuft, white daisies and Baker's fern. Alternating at the silver punch and coffee services at either end of the table, were Mrs. L. M. Frey Sr., Mrs. Charles Littleton, and Mrs. Mary Ann Moncrief, all of Monroe; Mrs. Fred E. Bennett Jr., West Monroe and Mrs. Louis M. Brand, Mrs. Joseph L. Brumfield and Mrs. Barry Owens, all of Haynesville.

Assisting in the afternoon's courtesies were Miss Nancy Talbot, cousin of the bride-elect; Miss Veronica Ross, both of Monroe; Miss Jeanette Parker, Miss Susan Broomfield, Miss Marguerite Davis, all of West Monroe and Miss Andrea Tilbury of Mer Rouge.

Miss Monroe has chosen her sister, Mrs. Robert L. Moody Jr. as matron of honor, and bridesmaids will be Miss Susan Broomfield, Miss Marguerite Davis, Miss Jeanette Parker, Miss Veronica Ross and Miss Nancy Talbot.

Mr. Brooks will attend his son as best man and chosen as groomsmen-ushers are Larry Blackmon, William F. Dorris Jr., Louis Tyner, all of West Monroe; Richard Brooks, John Emory of Calhoun; Wendell Drost, Sulpher and Ricky Emory, Beaumont, Texas. Ushers will include Bennie Mac Farrar, Baton Rouge; Kenneth Berry, West Monroe; Miller Frey, Haynesville and Robert L. Moody Jr., Bossier City.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clinton Monroe of West Monroe and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walter Crain of Sikes. A graduate of West Monroe high school she will receive her B.A. degree in English Education in July from Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity.

Mr. Brooks is descended from Mrs. Vivian Emory and the late Clarence Emory of Calhoun and Mrs. Pearl Brooks Williams and the late Howard Clarence Brooks, Calhoun. He also graduated from West Monroe high school and is a pre-dentistry student at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home at 304 Marie Drive in West Monroe.

June Blossoms With Galas For Graduates

NEW YORK — June is "busting' out all over" along with the youth of America. During the past year, twenty-five percent of the nation crowded into classrooms — a new record for U. S. schools.

The country's oldest school is New York City's Collegiate School which dates from a Dutch West Indies foundation in 1633. Today, more than 125,000 schools and colleges will award diplomas to nearly 3,000,000 June graduates. What's more, more than 2,000,000 youngsters will also make that one big giant step from kindergarten to first grade.

Whatever their age, June graduates deserve a day to remember, and commencement parties make keepsake memories. Start the festivities with special invitations — handprinted to look like diplomas. Roll the invitations in scroll - fashion, tie with a ribbon and mail them in cardboard tubes.

Old photos are fun for all ages. Contact the families of each party guest and ask to borrow a baby picture from the family album. Use the snapshots as place cards, and award an "absent - minded professor" prize to the last graduate to identify his own photo.

Fresh flowers make a festive table for the graduation party. Perky white and yellow daisies are in tune with the kindergarten set, and roses have become a tradition for high school and college students. Florists suggest placing a bouquet of flowers in an over - turned mortar board, in keeping with the graduation theme. Or, frame the flowers with a circle of brightly colored college pennants.

BEAUTY SECRETS

The beauty secrets of the movie and TV stars are not really secret at all. Stars depend on the same simple rules of soap-and-water cleanliness that will help any girl or woman to better looks.

Louise Magdalen Amman Weds Bernard G. Bryson

Miss Louise Magdalen Amman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josesh S. Amman, 2700 Pargoud Blvd., Monroe, became the bride of Bernard Glenn Bryson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Glenn Bryson Jr., of Hurst, Texas, on Saturday morning, June 5 in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church.

Arrangements of all-white stock, gladioli and Killian daisies were used on the main altar and side altars, which were flanked by branched candelabra, entwined with ivy and holding white cathedral tapers.

The Rev. Dave Dabria officiated at the 10:30 a.m. nuptials, with traditional music provided by Mrs. Robert H. Easterling, organist and Mrs. Robert D. Wood, soloist. Serving as altar boys were Corbin Amman and Ken Breard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white imported silk organza featuring a controlled bell skirt. Re-embroidered Alencon lace embellished the Kabuki sleeves and was repeated on the skirt and detachable watteau chapel train. The empire style of the gown was highlighted by a bias fold and lace which formed scallops at the waistline. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion fell fingertip length from a star shell of silk organza petals, accented with swirls of tiny pearls. The bride carried a trailing cascade bouquet of stephanotis blossoms with a removable white orchid corsage, atop a white prayer book.

Miss Julie Amman attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Margie Bell, Bastrop; Miss Ellen Mahr, Miss Dottie Amman, Monroe and Mrs. Earl Moorer, Shreveport. Their identical gowns of aqua silk organza were fashioned with scoop necklines and elbow sleeves. Bias folds at the waistline topped a controlled bell skirt. Back interest was created by watteau trains falling from the neckline to the hem. They wore self fabric open crown pillbox hats, aqua shoes and short white kid gloves and carried cascade arrangements of white pompon chrysanthemums and English ivy.

Serving as best man for his brother was Jerry Bryson. Groomsmen-ushers were Phil Carpenter, Bastrop; Earl Moorer, Shreveport; Frederic Amman and Tommy Kelly.

Mrs. Amman was wearing for her daughter's wedding an ice blue silk sheath with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother, Mrs. Bryson, chose a pink silk sheath with accessories to match and a white orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Bayou DeSiard Country Club was scene of the reception given by the bride's parents following the ceremony. A mass arrangement of white stock, gladioli and daisies was placed on the entrance hall table and the bride's book table, covered with an embroidered white linen cloth, held an asymmetrical arrangement in a crystal compote.

White urns filled with magnolia foliage banked the corners of the reception room. Draped with a white embroidered organdy cloth the refreshment table, with silver punch bowls at either end, was centered with a mass arrangement of white stock, carnations and pompons in a silver epergne. Garlands of ivy, caught at intervals with clusters of white pompons, adorned the cake table, which was also covered with a white organdy cloth.

The traditional tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. William T. Carpenter, Mrs. Thomas P. Kelly, Mrs. Charles E. Amman and Mrs. Thomas M. Keller. Presiding at the punch table were Mrs. Frederic C. Amman Jr., Miss Magdalen Amman, Mrs. Robert D. Wood and Mrs. Elizabeth Atkinson. Mrs. Frederic C. Amman, grandmother of the bride and Mrs. Ernest T. Oakley were at the bride's book.

Tea girls were Misses Linda Atkinson, Mary Ann Atkinson, Annice Amman, Aprii Austin and Rosemary Carpenter. Rice bags were presented guests by Misses Kathy Amman and Pattie Austin. Background music throughout the reception was rendered by Miss Peggy Windham at the piano.

Others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Mrs. Earl C. Brimberberry, Mrs. H. B. Hargrove, Mrs. Frank F. Smith, Mrs. William A. Austin, Mrs. Edward L. Miller, Mrs. Reneau G. Breard and Mrs. S. Edward Collier.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride changed to a pink linen suit with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Upon their return the couple will establish a home in El Dorado, Arkansas.

A graduate of Neville high school the bride attended Louisiana Tech where she was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity. Mr. Bryson was graduated from Bell high school at Hurst, Texas and from Texas A & M College, Bryan, Texas.

Rebecca Johnstone Weds William B. Trimble Jr. In Late Afternoon Vows

Solemnized Saturday, June 5 was the marriage of Miss Rebecca Holt Johnstone, daughter of Mrs. Charles Albert Lesene Johnstone of Mobile, Alabama and the late Mr. Johnstone to William Bradley Trimble Jr., Lieutenant (j.g.) USNR, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William Bradley Trimble, 501 Erin Avenue, Monroe. Father Trimble is rector of Grace Episcopal Church here.

Trinity Episcopal Church in Mobile provided a setting for the 5 p.m. ceremony, performed by the groom's father assisted by the bride's uncle, the Rev. David Eldred Holt. Stately floor candelabra flanked the altar which was adorned with arrangements of white stock, calla lilies and carnations accented by jade greenery. A program of sacred music was provided by Wallace C. McClanahan, organist.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Charles Albert Lesene Johnstone Jr., who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta, designed with Sabrina neckline and short sleeves. The bodice featured appliques of rosepoint lace enhanced with pearl clusters. The same motifs were scattered over the controlled bell skirt which extended into a chapel train from a bow at the back waistline. Her elbow length veil of imported silk illusion was caught to a regal cluster of organza and lace petals. She carried a colonial bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis. The bride's only ornament was a cameo brooch, a gift of her bridegroom, which has been a family treasure since it was first worn by a Trimble bride in 1864.

Maid of honor, Miss Arvid Lurton Engwall of Mobile, wore a floor length sheath of Bizerta blue linen featuring an embroidered midriff, which matched her embroidered Dior bow headdress. She carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the maid of honor, were Misses Kathryn Louise and Rebecca Jane Trimble of Monroe, sisters of the groom; Miss Marion Constance Marshall of Mobile; Mrs. Brooks Mims Talton of New Orleans and Mrs. James Frederick McDowell of Chapel Hill, N.C.

Joseph Finch Trimble of Monroe was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were William Fields Bailey Jr., Dothan, Alabama; Waller Thomas Burns, Houston, Texas; Dean Foerster Echols, New Orleans; Yerger Inge Johnstone, Mobile and Edgar Adam Uden, Nashville.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a gown of spice pink silk shantung with an overblouse of Chantilly lace. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink phalaenopsis orchids. Mrs. Trimble, mother of the groom, chose a mist green silk brocade afternoon suit with blouson of silk chiffon and matching accessories. Her corsage was of green orchids.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Johnstone entertained at a reception in the main ballroom of the Brookley Officers' Club. Tall white carnations and majestic daisies, laced with candytuft formed the central arrangement of the bride's table, which was covered with a cutwork linen cloth. At opposite ends of the table were the silver punch bowl and the traditional wedding cake.

For travel when the couple left for a wedding trip the bride was wearing a costume suit of heavy silk linen in Dolphine blue, trimmed in satin of matching shade. She wore bone accessories and a corsage of orchids from her wedding bouquet. Later this month Mr. and Mrs. Trimble will be at home in Panama City, Florida, where he is presently serving as operations officer aboard the USS Venture.

The bride finished Murphy high school in Mobile and graduated in May from Sophie Newcomb college in New Orleans. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Trimble graduated from Fair Park high school, Shreveport and from the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. His fraternity is Phi Delta Theta.

Rhoda Kay Johnson Bride Of Jesse W. Harrison

Miss Rhoda Kay Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor P. Johnson, 809 Clayton St., became the bride of Jesse William Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Harrison, 129 Lomaland Drive, all of West Monroe, in a double ring ceremony Saturday, June 5 in First Methodist Church of West Monroe.

Rev. Kenneth McDowell performed the ceremony at 3 p.m. following a program of wedding music by Mrs. Jack White, organist and Miss Wynelle DeCuir, Beaumont, Texas, cousin of the bride. Forming a background setting at the altar was a semicircle of greenery and fan-shaped arrangements of white gladioli and carnations alternated by white cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta, with fitted princess bodice featuring a low scoop neckline and long pointed sleeves. The modified controlled front skirt was accented by deep pleats in the back sweeping into a chapel train. Appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace enriched by tiny seed pearls embellished the gown. Her matching veil of illusion fell fingertip length from a pillbox of silk organza, lace and pearls. She carried a white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Sandy Castleberry, maid of honor, wore a gown of aqua silk organza over taffeta, styled with scoop neckline, elbow sleeves and a modified Empire waist with floating watteau back panel. Matching shoes, short white gloves and an aqua ring headpiece with nose veil and flat front bow completed her costume. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids Misses Beverly Blackmon, Denise Duncan and Peggy Mann. They carried cascade bouquets of white butterfly roses accented with Swedish lace hearts.

Serving as best man for his cousin was Larry Ellis and candlelighters were Richard Johnson, brother of the bride and Allen Harrison, brother of the groom, who also served as groomsmen - ushers with Ken Holt, Bill Duncan and John Green.

Mrs. Johnson chose for her daughter's wedding a two piece bone lace gown with overblouse of crepe. Her hat was of silk flowers in shades of green and other accessories were in bone. She wore a corsage of green cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a green silk sheath with white accessories and a white cymbidium orchid.

The church parlor was scene of the reception which followed. A mass arrangement of white mixed flowers in a silver candelabra, also holding white lighted tapers formed the central decor for the bride's table covered with a linen cutwork cloth. Alternating at the silver punch bowl and the bride's cake were Mrs. E. E. Johnson Jr., Mrs. T. Earle Johnson, Mrs. C. N. Anderson, Mrs. C. E. Feazel, Mrs. James Norris, Mrs. O. E. Ellis and Mrs. Luther Johnson. Groom's cake and coffee were served from another table by Mrs. J. R. Parish, Mrs. Laurence DeCuir, Mrs. J. L. Hogge, Mrs. Theda Patterson, Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Mrs. Richard Riordan, Mrs. William D. Johnson and Mrs. E. E. Johnson III.

Miss Holly Fant registered guests at a small table which held a white memory candle encircled with white roses and ivy. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Alf Jenkins, Mrs. E. F. Caldwell, Mrs. K. E. Holt, Mrs. E. E. Johnson Sr., Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. John Green and Mrs. Berniece Castleberry. Tea girls were Misses Ella Dee Patterson, Sandra Norris, Judy Norris and Karen Huntsman.

For their wedding trip to the Florida Gulf Coast the bride changed into an imported pink linen suit, matching pillbox, white accessories and the white orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in the Andrews Apartments on Gulpha Drive in West Monroe. A graduate of West Monroe high school the bride attended Louisiana Tech and is presently employed in West Monroe. Mr. Harrison was graduated from West Monroe high school and is a senior at Louisiana Tech majoring in electrical engnieering.

MRS. RONALD TRESSNER

Tressner-Martin Vows Read In Trinity Baptist

Trinity Baptist Church in West Monroe was scene of the ceremony Saturday, June 5 which united in marriage Miss Nina Faye Martin of West Monroe and Ronald Tressner, Vicksburg, Mississippi. Rev. Pat Morris, uncle of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bruns Martin, 1509 Bailey Street, West Monroe and Mr. Tressner is the son of Mrs. Rose Tressner, West Monroe and Rudolph L. Tressner, Des Plains, Illinois.

The altar was banked with wrought iron candelabra, entwined with foliage and holding lighted white tapers. Fan shaped arrangements of white gladioli in pedestal baskets flanked the candelabra.

A prenuptial concert was presented by the organist, Wayne Watson, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Nelwyn Hollyfield. Candles were lighted by Jerry Glenn Martin and Gary Lynn Martin, twin nephews of the bride and at conclusion of the ceremony Rev. B. K. Miller sang The Lord's Prayer.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a traditional full length gown, designed with bodice of white lace and gently belled skirt of white satin, falling to a chapel train in back. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. Her cathedral length veil of white illusion was held in place by four white satin and lace rosettes. She carried an arrangement of white feathered carnations and streamers cascading from a white lace fan.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Sue Brown Stevenson of Baton Rouge, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Judy Neeley, Mrs. Suzanne Tressner, Mrs. Carolyn Williams, cousin of the bride and Miss Anita Roach. They wore identical full length gowns of white peau de soie, styled with sleeveless bodices and slim skirts, complemented by white formal length gloves. Small veil circlets, anchored by white velvet bows formed their headpieces and they carried cascade bouquets of white pompon chrysanthemums with white streamers, and mint green foliage.

Tommy N. Stevenson of Baton Rouge served as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Raymond Neeley, Wayne Tressner, brother of the groom; Billy Williams and Randy Dunagan. Michael Garrison of Natchez was ring bearer.

For the occasion Mrs. Martin was wearing a powder blue silk dress, styled with slim skirt and jewel neckline of blue organza and lace florets. Her blue pillbox was of matching organza, with blue accessories and white gloves. Her corsage was of white feathered carnations. The groom's mother chose a bone crystella dress with matching accessories and pillbox of bone silk organza petals. White elbow length gloves completed her costume and she wore a corsage of white carnations.

A reception followed in the youth center, adjoining the church, with background music of traditional wedding selections provided by Wayne Watson. A crystal footed cherub compote filled with white pompons and foliage formed the central decor for the bride's table which was covered with a white satin and net cloth, garlanded with greenery. The groom's table was covered with an imported linen and lace cloth. Mrs. Vernon Martin, sister-in-law of the bride, served the bride's cake and Mrs. Bud Neeley presided at the punch bowl. Groom's cake was served by Miss Marilyn Martin and presiding at the silver coffee service was Miss Virgie Ann Lively. Tea girls were Miss Linda Jones and Miss Laura Jones. Miss Mary Sue Rogers was at the guest book at a table, adorned with a memory candle, garlanded with greenery and pompons.

For a wedding trip to Chicago, Ill., the bride changed into a natural colored double-breasted tweed suit with black veiled circlet hat and black patent accessories, and a corsage from her bouquet. In the fall the couple will be at home in Vicksburg, Miss. The bride was graduated from West Monroe high school and Bish Mathis Institute and attended Northeast Louisiana State College and is presently employed by the Louisiana State Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation at MAVTEC, Selman Field in Monroe. She is a member of Gamma Iota Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

Mr. Tressner was graduated from Neville high school and attended the University of Toledo in Toledo, Ohio. He is presently employed by The Valley in Vicksburg as display and advertising director.

Averett-Shuey Wedding Plans Announced At Tea

An August bride-elect is Miss Abby Lucille Shuey, whose engagement to Joe Nalda Averett Jr. is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller Shuey of Shreveport. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nalda Averett Sr., of Shreveport, formerly of Monroe.

The wedding will be solemnized August 28 at 8 p.m. in First Methodist Church of Shreveport with Dr. D. L. Dykes Jr. officiating.

A graduate of Byrd high school and the University of Arkansas, Miss Shuey is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. She is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Juell Old Clancy and F. A. Thigpen of Jal, New Mexico and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Shuey of Shreveport.

Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Ross Elias McDade Sr. of McDade, La., and the late Mrs. McDade and Mrs. Lannie Herlong Averett of Marble Falls, Texas, formerly of West Monroe, and the late Mr. Averett. He was graduated from Bossier high school and attends Texas A & M College in College Station, Texas.

The approaching marriage was announced at a tea given by Mrs. C. H. Gee at her home in Shreveport on Thursday, June 3, from 3 until 5 p.m. Receiving with Mrs. Gee were the honoree, her mother and mother of her fiance.

Doves in flight holding satin ribbon, inscribed "Joe and Abby" in gold letters, revealed the announcement above the mantel which held white bridal candles, entwined with ivy. A large arrangement of white stock and daisies interspersed with lace bells formed the focal point in the den.

On the serving table in the dining room a silver candle stick, entwined with English ivy held a tall white taper and cluster of daisies. Centerpiece for the bride's table was a nosegay in replica of a bride's bouquet on a mirror reflector.

Alternating at the silver punch bowls were Mrs. A. A. Bernard of Shreveport; Mrs. F. E. Kennon of Minden, Mrs. Charles E. Roemer II of Bossier City; Mrs. Joseph W. Elston of Shreveport and Mrs. W. L. Alexander of Monroe. Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Emily Averett, sister of the future bridegroom; Miss Kathy Gee and Miss Virginia Gee, daughters of the hostess.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Area Couple

Southern smilax, baskets of white gladioli and lighted white tapers in branched candelabra formed a background setting in First Baptist Church of Mangham for the wedding Saturday, June 5, of Miss Rosalyn Ann Thames and Elwyn Keith Odom.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thames of Mangham and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Odom of Baskin. Dr. Kenneth Hiner officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. with traditional music provided by Mrs. C. W. Jones, organist and Miss Wynelle Decuir, Beaumont, Tex., soloist.

A wrought iron prie dieu was placed before an arch of smilax with cluster of white wedding bells, on either side of which were baskets of white gladioli. White tapers with clusters of smilax burned in the windows and pews were marked with white gladioli and white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white satin styled with scoop neckline, elbow sleeves, edged with Alencon lace and a small bow, encrusted with seed pearls. The controlled skirt fell in soft folds, ending in a chapel train. Appliques of the lace accented the waistline and extended full length of the train. Her fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a circlet of Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis with removable corsage of white orchids atop a white Bible.

Wearing long gowns of yellow peau de soie were the bride's attendants, Miss Diane Thames of Baton Rouge, her cousin; and the bridesmaids, Miss Joy Ascol, Beaumont, Texas; Miss Patricia McConnell, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Jimmy Thomas and Mrs. Richard Shovan of Beaumont. Yellow veiled circlets with back bows formed their headdresses and they carried bouquets of large yellow glamellias.

Miss Terri Lynne Shipman, flower girl, was dressed identically to the other attendants and carried a basket of rose petals.

Maurice Herbert served as best man for Mr. Odom and groomsmen-ushers were Jimmy Thomas and Richard Shovan, Beaumont, Texas; Bud Thames of Mangham and James E. Shipman, Lufkin, Texas.

For her daughter's wedding and reception which followed in Fellowship Hall of the church, Mrs. Thames was wearing a beige embroidered organza dress with hat in shades of yellow and green, beige accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a dress of pink silk organza with pink hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was also an orchid.

Large yellow glamellias flanked by white tapers in crystal candelabra centered the bride's table which was covered with white net over satin. Miss Elaine Flint served the bride's cake which was wreathed with smilax and white glamellias, and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Larry Reeves. The groom's table, where Mrs. James E. Shipman served the chocolate cake and Mrs. Kenny Raborn presided at the punch bowl, was covered with a brown linen cloth and centered with a brass candelabra garlanded with smilax. Miss Rita Robbins had charge of the guest book and tea girls were Misses Joy Mitchell, Paula Kuirtz, Diane Heath, Virginia Rivers and Carol Cotton.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride was wearing a three-piece raw linen suit in beige and brown tones with beige accessories. The couple will establish a home in Ferriday. Both are graduates of Louisiana Tech and Mr. Odom is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Modern Women Grow Old Later

LONDON (UPI) — Many women are staying younger longer.

Science documents the development. A British physician, Dr. J. J. Frommer reports that menopause is occurring about four years later than it did 100 years ago.

"There may be a link between later menopause and the decreased rate of aging," he said, in a British Medical Journal report.

Dr. Frommer says that the median age of menopause for 443 women who were patients at London's Royal Free Hospital was 50.1 years.

Patricia Humble Engaged To Daniel E. Bannister

Betrothal of Miss Patricia Ann Humble of Haynesville to Daniel Edward Bannister of this city, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Humble Jr., Haynesville. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Bannister of Monroe.

The wedding is planned for August 7 to be solemnized in Our Lady of Fatima Church, Monroe, at 2 p.m. A reception will follow at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Oliver Road.

Miss Humble is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Boyd of Calhoun and Mrs. Sallie Humble of West Monroe. She attended Louisiana Tech.

Mr. Bannister is the grandson of Mrs. C. N. Bannister of McGee, Arkansas, and has completed three years service with the U. S. Navy.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home in Monroe where Mr. Bannister is an employee of the Vicksburg District Army Corps of Engineers and she will attend Northeast Louisiana State College.

Cotton Voile Favorite Sheer

Cottons of choice for summer include gently, airy sheers — organdy, chiffon, eyelet, dotted swiss, lace. Designer Lee Claire offers a white cotton lace reefer coat, for example.

The best loved sheer of all, however, is cotton voile. There are dark voiles in blacks, browns and navy blues. The light ones come in cool-as-a-cucumber pale shades.

Sue Ellen Joachim Weds Marshall E. Garlington

Vows uniting in marriage Miss Sue Ellen Joachim and Marshall Ewell Garlington were solemnized in the Start Baptist Church on Saturday, May 29 at 5:30 p.m. Rev. Willie Woodard officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mayvene Hardwick of Start and William Barefield Joachim of Pennsylvania. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Delbert Garlington of Monroe.

Vows were exchanged before an altar where the central decor was a pedestal urn overflowing with calla lilies and majestic daisies. Flanking the urn were standards of fern and wrought iron candelabra holding white lighted tapers. White satin bows and ivy marked the pews.

Prior to the ceremony and during the lighting of the candles by T. O. Parker Jr., and Billy Reese Johnston, Mrs. James L. Harrell, of Rayville, rendered an organ medley. She also accompanied the soloist, Rev. Walter Mangham of Monroe.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride was wearing a gown of white peau de soie and lace, featuring a bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace, with bell shaped sleeves. An antique rose-shaped necklace, heirloom of her maternal grandmother's family, accented the scoop neckline. A detachable train swept chapel length from back of the belled peau de soie skirt. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion cascaded from a tulip headpiece embroidered in seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, surrounded by white rosebuds.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Billy Reese Johnston of Start, who wore an A-line gown of oriole pink Italian silk with headpiece of matching nylon tulle pleated to a pillbox of the silk. She wore a single strand of pearls, matching slippers, short white gloves and carried a nosegay of carnations in varied shades of pink, arranged against a jeweled background with deep rose ribbon streamers.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant in gowns of French blue Italian silk were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Ronnie Woodard of Start; Miss Sue Russell of Delhi and Miss Mary Ann Neill of Monroe. They also carried nosegays of pink carnations.

Roy Venable of Monroe served as best man and groomsmen were Jerry Garlington, brother of the groom, Jimmy Womack, both of Monroe and Tommy Parker of Start. Ushers were Billy Reese Johnston and T. O. Parker Jr. of Start.

Mrs. Hardwick selected for her daughter's wedding a dress of mauve lace with floating chiffon side panels, a flowered hat in matching shades and beige accessories. Mrs. Garlington was wearing a blue silk shantung model with lace trim, hat of matching blue straw and other accessories in blue. Both mothers wore white cymbidium orchid corsages.

A reception followed in the recreation room of the church. An organdy skirted cloth covered the table where the guest book was in charge of Miss Judy Garlington, sister of the groom. A memory candle, adorned with a crescent of rose buds was displayed on the table. A massive arrangement of pink roses in an antique footed crystal bowl, flanked by pink tapers in dual teardrop crystal holders, centered the bride's table which was covered with a floor length organdy cloth.

Mrs. Cecil Watts presided at the crystal punch service and Mrs. John E. Pahal served the wedding cake. Tea girls were Miss Sue Nolan and Miss Terry Chambers and rice bags were presented guests by Misses Kathie and Wanda Bennett. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Theo Griffin, Mrs. Willie Woodard, Mrs. Russell Harding, Mrs. P. W. Copeland, Mrs. Shelby Dark, Mrs. G. J. Fleischman, Mrs. E. Hollis Venable and Mrs. T. G. Burch. Mrs. Harrell entertained with piano selections during the reception.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip in South Louisiana the bride changed to a three-piece suit of pink linen, enhanced with Schiffli embroidered jacket. A wide - brimmed hat of white straw lace and other accessories of white completed her ensemble and she wore the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is an honor graduate of Start high school, attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and has just completed her junior year at Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Garlington was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and also attended Northeast. The couple will be at home in Baton Baton Rouge where he is employed and the bride will continue her studies at Louisiana State University.

Schools are closing all over the country releasing young people for summer activities. And a favorite part of the summer is the visit out of town. In Monroe this week were college age young people home for a week or three months; grandchildren who live away, here for a visit with grandparents; former Monroyans visiting "back home".

Arriving Thursday for a two week's stay were SATCHIE NAIDEN's daughters and their children: SATCHIE (Mrs. C. M.) DOLAN of Eagle Pass, Texas, with CHARLES, 11, SATCHIE, 9, CHARLOTTE, 6, and CHRISTINE, 4; and CHARLOTTE (Mrs. James P.) WOOD of Troy, Alabama, with CHARLOTTE, 14, PATRICIA, 12, LISA 11, and ALLAN, 5. They will divide their time between their grandmother's home and the Holiday Inn.

MARY FLOURNOY's visitor is her granddaughter, MARY SIMMONS of Baton Rouge, now mid-way a two-week trip. On Thursday, Mary invited five girls of the high school set for luncheon and a visit with her guest. The girls met at the Flournoy home and proceeded together to the Holiday Inn. They were seated at a round table centered with a mixed spring bouquet and overlooking the swimming pool.

Guests of the EC WHEELERS this week were their daughter-in-law and son, SUSAN and JOE WHEELER. They leave tomorrow to return to Baton Rouge, where Joe is to enroll for the summer session of LSU Law school . . . Susan was hostess at luncheon on Thursday, inviting a few intimate friends for noon at Bayou DeSiard country club. The party was held in the Garden room, where the pink-covered table was centered with pink and red roses and appointed with ruby goblets.

Home again after a year abroad is NANCY SNELLINGS. Nancy returned last week from England, where she was a graduate student at Cambridge this past winter.

A visitor from Allendale, South Carolina, was named guest of honor when JAN TOUCHSTONE was hostess for luncheon Saturday at Bayou DeSiard country club. Honoree SUZANNE OSWALD has been here as the guest of SUSAN SHERROUSE, a classmate at Converse college. For the party in the Garden room, fifteen guests were seated at a table covered with a green cloth. A wrought iron cage overflowing with yellow daisies and daylilies formed the centerpiece.

Due home today are SHIRLEY DEAN and her brother, KENT DEAN, who have been visiting in Pensacola, Florida since Thursday. They were guests of Shirley's roommate at LSU, BRENDA COBB, and her parents.

Here as guests of RUBY and ED CROWLEY are their daughter, MARILYNN LEWIS, and her son BEAU. Captain JAMES LEWIS was here for a ten day visit, has gone on to a new assignment and house-hunting in Albany, Georgia. He is to return in about two weeks to take his familiy to their new home.

Closing ceremonies at Castle Heights Military academy were the occasion for a long week-end trip by VIRGINIA WARNER, her son AMOS, and PAM BURGESS to Lebanon, Tennessee. They went to pick up Virginia's younger son, NELSON, who has completed a year's study there. Amos, a Neville graduate this year, attended the Heights as a junior. En route home, they visited Lookout Mountain in Chattanooga, and drove back along the old Natchez Trace Parkway.

Headed in the other direction were MARIE and CAVITT COOKSTON and their passengers: DOUG COOKSTON, ANN STEPHENSON, JANE SHERROUSE, ELIZABETH COOKSTON. They drove to Bryan, Texas, where eldest son, COOKIE COOKSTON, was graduated from Allen Academy.

Following the ceremonies in Bryan, the station wagon and seven passengers went on to Houston, where they attended two games at the Astrodome; to Dallas, where they visited Six Flags; and to Oklahoma City.

Another group in Houston last weekend were ALLYNE and FRED PETTY, and two of their grandchildren, RICK TAYLOR and VEE MARSHALL. They drove down on Friday, attended two St. Louis-Houston games at the Astrodome, returned Sunday.

Houston was a popular place indeed for Monroyans to be last weekend. Also making this trip were PAT and STAN BAGWELL and their children, JAN and CURRY; JERRY and C. D. OAKLEY, JR., and DAY and CLAY. They went down on Friday, attended two ball games, and returned Sunday night.

Guests of the Bagwells this week have been Stan's parents, MR. and MRS. O. F. BAGWELL of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. They plan to return home tomorrow.

Former Monroyans PAT and JACK MADDEN and their children, BRENDA, CONRAD, DEBORAH, and KAREN, are to arrive in town for a visit this coming week. They passed through Thursday, en route from their home in Brevard, North Carolina, to visit Pat's parents, the H. C. CUMMINGS in Shreveport for the weekend. They plan to return by mid-week and be here for about ten days, dividing their time among their many friends here.

Visiting in Dallas is LYNN LOFLIN, who is the guest of MRS. D. V. LOFLIN, SR. On Thursday, MARY ALICE LOFLIN and PAT RILEY drove to Shreveport, where they delivered Lynn to her grandmother. She plans to be away another week.

Plans are in the works for the annual tea given by Monroe City Panhellenic. At a meeting Monday at Westminister recreation center, the party was set for July 21 from three to five at Breard Hall on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus. Twelve sororities of National Panhellenic council are represented in the local group. Members of these, both active and alumnae, and their invited guests attend the tea which is held each year.

For the first Sunday in June, here are James Russell Lowell's lines on June from "Vision of Sir Launfal":

Earth gets its price for what Earth gives us;
The beggar is taxed for a corner to die in,
The priest hath his fee who comes and shrives us,
We bargain for the graves we lie in:
Each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold;
For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking;
'Tis heaven alone this is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking.
No price is set on the lavish summer;
June may be had by the poorest comer.
And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays;
Now the heart is so full that a drop overfills it,
We are happy now because God wills it.

MRS. MURPHY BRISCOE PRICE

Price-Ensminger Vows Solemnized Saturday

Solemnized Saturday, June 5 in Levy Street Baptist Church, Shreveport, was the wedding of Miss Tommye Jo Ensminger of Shreveport and Murphy Briscoe Price, Missoula, Montana. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Edith W. Ensminger, Shreveport and Joe P. Ensminger, North Miami Beach, Fla. and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Murphy M. Price of Harrisonburg.

Vows were exchanged at 7 p.m. before the altar which was garlanded with English ivy and flanked by sunburst arrangements of white gladioli, fern and Shasta daisies. Two candelabras in the background were also entwined with fern and daisies.

Rev. Newell O. Pugh performed the ceremony and a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. James B. Brooks, pianist and Miss Yvonne Belgard, soloist.

John E. Riner gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of silk peau de soie and handclipped Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Re-embroidered lace medallions enhanced the molded bodice, with scoop neck and elbow sleeves. The chapel train which extended from the belled skirt was bordered with re-embroidered lace insertions. Her veil of pure silk illusion was attached to a Queen's crown of lace and pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of feathered carnations and lily of the valley centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Viola P. Willis served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Linda Malley and Mrs. Marguerite Pollard. They wore gowns of heaven blue imported candy puff over silk taffeta fashioned with portrait necklines, elbow length sleeves and gently shaped short skirts. Matching halo hats complemented their gowns and they carried arm bouquets of pink carnations and white daisies.

Candles were lighted by Miss Denise Davenport and Warren Davenport, niece and nephew of the bride. She wore a dress of heaven blue taffeta with overskirt of the candy puff, a matching hair bow and wrist corsage of pink carnations. Sharon Davenport, also a niece of the bride, was flower girl.

James E. Price served as best man for his brother and groomsmen were John W. Hale and Glenn E. Good. Serving as ushers were Deryl Price and Alvin Swaggart, brother and cousin of the groom.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a slim sheath of mauve Venise lace and silk crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Price, mother of the groom, wore a soft tone on tone jacket ensemble with matching accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Holiday Inn West in Shreveport, where the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of Shasta daisies and maidenhair fern flanked by white candles. The punch bowl and cake were wreathed with fern.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride was wearing a blue linen sheath with Venise lace trim, matching accessories and orchid corsage. They will be at home in New Orleans.

The bride was graduated from Byrd high school and received her B. S. degree June 1 from Northwestern State College, School of Nursing. A graduate of Sicily Island high school, Mr. Price received his B. S. in forestry from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and graduated in May with his M. S. in Forest Recreation from Montana State University at Missoula, Mont. He is a member of Montana Druids, a honorary forestry organization and Xi Sigma Pi, national forestry scholastic honorary fraternity.

Sharing Ails Better Than Sharing Pills

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mom goes to the doctor for help in her battle against a cold. The doctor gives her a prescription. It helps to make her well in a week.

Just about then, dad comes down with the same type of cold. Mom still has some of her medicine left. She suggests he take it, thereby saving the cost of a trip to the doctor, another prescription.

This is dangerous business.

In thousands of households nationwide, families unwittingly invite disaster by sharing prescription drugs. In the name of saving money, they don't discard old drugs.

Other rules concerning use of prescription drugs:

—Be sure you know how often and when to take the medicine; the exact size of the dose; any special instructions of the physician.

—Drugs often deteriorate and become either dangerous or ineffective. Date all medications. When in doubt about a medicine being too old, ask your pharmacist or doctor.

—Any medicine may become poisonous if misused. Be sure to read and understand all directions. Measure doses carefully.

Mr. Teddlie was graduated from Fair Park high school in Shreveport and is presently employed in Shreveport where the couple will reside.

Dish Washing Is Made Easy

For the dishwasher in the family, there's something new on the market. It's a semi-automatic dishwasher — really a stainless steel sink with a regular faucet, plus two spray hoses and an invisible pump beneath. It cleans by stacking dishes in a rack in the sink, running in hot water from the faucet and adding dishwashing detergent. The dishes are then washed with one of the hoses which sprays the hot suds at the dishes under high pressure provided by the pump.

Bruscato-Garrett Vows Read In Fatima Church

Our Lady of Fatima Church in Monroe was scene of the ceremony, Thursday, May 27 which united in marriage Miss Dianne Garrett and Frank N. Bruscato. The Rev. William Allen performed the double ring vows at 11 a.m. in the presence of members of the two families.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Parkerson and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas F. Bruscato, all of Monroe.

Vows were exchanged before the altar which was banked with blue chrysanthemums and foliage and lighted candles in branched candelabra. Nuptial organ music was rendered by Mrs. Larry Shipman who accompanied the soloist, Garland Shell.

The bride, escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a street length dress of white lace fashioned on princess lines. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a white satin bow. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents on Myrtle Street. The table, covered with a white cutwork cloth, was centered with an arrangement of summer flowers. Members of the family and friends assisting at the luncheon were Mrs. J. Carl Parkerson, Mrs. Fred Sanders of Bastrop; Miss Sue Parkerson and Mrs. Garland Shell. The pale yellow tiered wedding cake was served by Miss Becky Parkerson.

Upon return from a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark. the couple will be at home in Monroe. For travel the bride changed into a white silk suit with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Mrs. Bruscato was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College in June, 1964 with a BS degree in physics. She is presently working on her MS in physics. At Northeast she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and the Senior Board.

Mr. Bruscato received his BS degree in Chemistry from Northeast Louisiana State College and his MS in chemistry at the University of Mississippi. He is presently an instructor of chemistry at Northeast.

Candlelight Vows Unite Area Couple

In a candlelight ceremony Friday, May 28 in Fish Bayou Baptist Church near Winnsboro, Miss Janice Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collins of Winnsboro, became the bride of Kelly Wayne Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Clark of Crowville.

Pink and orchid carnations flanked an arch entwined with ivy to form a background setting for the ceremony at 8 p.m. performed by Rev. Charles Chapman. A cluster of white wedding bells was suspended from the center arch and white candelabra with white candles and ivy completed the setting.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie with basque bodice of hand clipped Chantilly lace, scalloped Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapered over the hands. Her veil of double illusion fell from a Queen's crown of pearls. She carried a bouquet composed of an orchid and stephanotis with white streamers.

Jeanna Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Andrews, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of orchid lace and a corsage of pink carnations and carried a basket of pink rose petals and distributed orchid rice bags.

Serving as best man was Norval Walters and ushers were Jerry Sutherlin and Dennis Clark. Candlelighter was Kenneth Wayne Phillips, cousin of the bride.

A reception followed in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with a cut glass bowl of pink roses. Mrs. Sadie Shipp presided at the crystal punch bowl and Mrs. Jack Carpenter served the tiered wedding cake. Assisting with the courtesies was Mrs. Lucy Drexler of Bastrop. Mrs. Milford Andrews presided at the guest book table which held a memory candle, wreathed with pink roses and greenery.

MR. AND MRS. MARION NOBLE BARR

Barr-Lee Vows Exchanged By Candlelight

Baskets of gladioli flanked an arch of greenery and branched candelabra holding white tapers to form a setting in Liberty Grove Church of God for the wedding of Miss Margie Diane Lee and Marion Noble Barr on Friday May 28 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lee Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barr, all of West Monroe.

Mr. Lee gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white linen dress in afternoon length, styled with lace sleeves and her veil was a Spanish lace mantilla. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The pink and white theme was carried out in the reception which followed in the social room of the church. Covered with a pink linen cloth the bride's table held a central arrangement of pink carnations and white candytuft, at opposite ends of which were the wedding cake and cut glass punch bowl.

Among the guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lee of Greenville, Ohio.

Longhairs New In Fake Furs

More copycat fur fabrics than ever will appear next fall. Having succeeded in producing excellent imitations of such flat furs as Persian, broadtail and leopard, the furlike fabrics are now coming up with longhair looks.

The concentration is on kit fox, Norwegian and red fox, raccoon, otter, beaver and even mink. All these have been tried in the past with indifferent results, but this time they look real enough to take collars of the real fur. The appeal is to the young crowd who like the look of offbeat furs, but often can't stand their prices.

James Bond Inspires '007' Clothes Fad

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The strange ways of fashion fads never cease to fascinate. One year it's Davy Crockett coonskin caps on every small boy. The next year it's madly ruffled Liz Taylor blouses on every teen-age girl.

This year the fad is for "007" clothes. In case you're the only one who hasn't heard, 007 is the Secret Service number of Ian Fleming's espionage hero, James Bond. The numbers are turning up on everything from sweatshirts to a new kind of foundation (honest!), so it's no surprise that there is a group of 007 pajamas.

That is, they're not really pajamas, but they're made by the Weldon pajama people. The 007's are sleep coats in iridescent cotton, complete with epaulets, shoulder gun patch and an embroidered 007 on the secret cuff pocket.

There's a top-stitched version for men and women, a short-sleeved shirt-length with a bloomer and a coat for boys. The small boy's sizes carry an 003½ emblem, but I'm betting the smaller the boy the more he'll want to be a full-fledged 007. He'll also have a new excuse for going to bed with his favorite pop gun — as if he needed one.

The late Ian Fleming wouldn't have minded this strange fad for his hero one bit. He was a highly cultured man who wrote the stories as a form of amusement for himself and never dreamed they would become so popular. In fact, they were a kind of sneak success, and even now, movies and all, there are lots of people who say "who's that?" when you speak of James Bond. The chances are good that more poeple will wear 007 clothes than will ever read the books, or perhaps even see the movies.

STELLA SUE BASS

SARAH JANE AUTREY

June Weddings Planned

Sasser-Bass

Miss Stella Sue Bass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Bass of Wisner, will become the bride of Morris Wayne Sasser, son of Mrs. L. M. Sasser and the late Mr. Sasser of Pineville, on June 19. The wedding will be solemnized in the Central Baptist Church of Wisner at 8 p.m. with Rev. Pearl Bass, uncle of the bride-elect, performing the ceremony.

Miss Bass is descended from the late Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ensminger and Mrs. Robert Huston Bass and the late Mr. Bass. A graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College she is presently teaching at Buckeye high school at Buckeye.

Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Mrs. Fannie Humbles and the late Mr. Humbles and Mr. and Mrs R. J. Sasser Sr.

The bride-elect has chosen Miss Susie Kelly to serve as maid of honor and Misses Gayle Bass and Patricia Bass, her sisters, as bridesmaids. Donald Sasser will attend his brother as best man. Ernest Sasser, also his brother and David H. Bass, brother of the bride-elect, will serve as ushers and candlelighters.

Following a brief wedding trip the couple will be at home in Pineville.

Allen-Autrey

A June 26 wedding is planned by Miss Sarah Jane Autrey and Jerry Lee Allen of Shreveport, whose forthcoming marriage is announced by her mother, Mrs. R. B. Autrey of Bernice. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ernest Thornhill of West Monroe and Oscar Allen of Lake Charles.

The ceremony will take place in the First Methodist Church at Bernice at 6 p.m. Officiating will be Rev. F. M. Durham.

Mrs. Tommy Neal of West Monroe, will attend her sister as matron of honor and Ernest Thornhill will act as best man for his stepson.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bernice high school. Mr. Allen has served with the United States Navy and is now employed in Shreveport where the couple will be at home.

Harper-Willis

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold L. Willis, Shreveport, formerly of Jonesboro announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Lynetta to Dale Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harper, Shreveport.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, June 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Temple Baptist Church, Shreveport.

Miss Barbara Burnley will serve as maid of honor and Miss Linda Daniel will be bridesmaid. Paxton Webb will serve his cousin as best man and groomsman will be Frank Willis, brother of the bride-elect. Named as ushers are Ronnie Welch and Jackie Rhymes and candlelighters will be Misses Sharon Kay and Jeannie Harper, sisters of the future bridegroom.

The couple will reside in Shreveport.

Seasonal Rules Of Dress Are All But Dead

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

A: Hat should be in a deeper pink, or mingled shades of pink or pink with white. Shoes would be best in plain bone kid pumps. Gloves must be white, but bag can match shoes. In jewelry, pearls would look well.

Q: What is the correct season for daytime wear of white shoes for a northern area such as Michigan?

A: Hard and fast season rules are all but dead. However, a good starting point to take would be the first of June, with Labor Day the time to stop wearing white shoes.

PATTI CHANDLER

Star Slates Monroe Area Appearance

Patti Chandler, one of the stars of the motion picture "Beach Blanket Bingo", will be in Monroe Monday and Tuesday in one of the stops of a personal appearance tour for the picture.

Miss Chandler, a product of Culver City, Calif., almost under the shadows of Hollywood, will be at the Jim Theatre Monday afternoon signing autographs and will make appearances later in the day. Tuesday she will be available for a press conference, Cecil White, manager of the Jim Theatre, announced.

Showing Here

"Beach Blanket Bingo" will start at the Jim Theatre Wednesday. Also starring in the picture are Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello.

Born Patricia Anne Lauderback, she attended elementary and high schools in Culver City, then one year each at Pepperdine and San Diego Colleges before going to Hawaii to work as a hostess and water sports instructor at a large beach resort hotel.

One week after the seasonal job ended, she returned home and answered a "Bikini Girl" ad and was selected from among more than 100 contestants.

She has also appeared in "Pajama Party," "Ski Party," "How to Stuff a Wild Bikini," "Sergeant Deadhead," and "Bikini Beach."

Actor Soupy Sales Produces Laughter, Big Following

EDITOR'S NOTE — When Philco Kvetch meets the hobo who lives in a phone booth, what happens? "It's a madhouse, naturally, same as the Easter riots at the Paramount. But don't worry, it's just Soupy Sales and his gang, engaging in a little "good, clean violence."

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — If life can be a machine-gun burst of feelings, sights and sounds, if you like visiting at wit's end, if you are young and wild at heart, you'll probably love a little guy named Soupy Sales.

Who is Soupy Sales?

Well, he's a kinky-haired charmer of children, teen-agers and young-at-mind adults. He's a fast movie of a man, a fantastic creation of youthful passions, and a believer in them.

His six-days-a-week local television show — an hour of horseplay, wild creatures and wild songs — has a devoted following from kindergarten to business office.

But what shocked television officials — and may bring national syndication of the show — was what the police are probably calling the "provocation at the Paramount."

Theater Jammed

For 10 days, Soup's mostly teen-age fans jammed the New York Times Square theater — more than 12,000 a day — to see him cavort across the stage, do the "Mouse" satire on rock 'n' roll, and deliver "words of wisdom."

So, let's make the scene — and see the heroics at work. He's playing Philo Kvetch for his Saturday television show. Philo is a world-famous detective on the trail of that arch-criminal, The Mask, who is also wanted by the police. To even the odds, The Mask is aided by a breathy henchman named Onions Oregano who eats onions.

There is no rehearsal, no script, only the barest of plot. Philo, last week, was in a laundry hamper tossed overboard from a ship by a mad gorilla. This week's chapter, entitled "Deep Six for Philo," reveals that our hero escaped the laundry hamper just before the gorilla made the scene.

Doesn't Wonder

This week there is also a guest star, actor Jose Ferrer. You may wonder what a great actor is doing in a slapstick sketch. But Ferrer doesn't wonder. Soupy doesn't wonder. The television crew doesn't wonder.

No one knows just how Ferrer will work into the scene.

There's a skeleton of an idea in Soupy's mind. "Let's dress him as a bum. Then he and I will throw each other a few lines at the telephone booth as I go to call the police. It ought to be funny."

That's not much to go on, but the television crew has already gathered around to see what is probably one of the weirdest brain-storming sessions in history.

They trade one-line gags that might fit in. The enthusiasm begins to grow. Ferrer contributes an old gag: "I'll ask you for 20 cents for a cup of coffee. You say a cup of coffee only costs a dime. I say, sure, but I don't like to drink alone."

More ideas from Soupy, and others. They begin to come fast now. Ferrer, the hobo, will be living in the phone booth. Has the prop man got a pajama top? What else is in the prop box? Someone fishes out some false teeth. Great, he'll brush his teeth. No toothbrush. Okay, a paint brush will do.

Less than 15 minutes later — in make-up and costume — they're playing it in front of the recording cameras. Soupy, harried as Philo, rushes to the phone booth to make an emergency call to the police. There, the sleeping Ferrer.

Unimpressed by the emergency, he fishes out his teeth from a pocket, brushes them, installs them, shly turning his back, requires Philo's assistance getting his coat on, refuses to leave the phone booth, keeps trying to hit Philo for a quarter.

Finally Philo throws a dime to the ground and, as Ferrer dives for it, takes over the phone booth. The rest is a four-way conversation between Philo, the chief of police who is presiding over a party at the station, the chief's wife Mary, and the bum, Ferrer. In desperation, Philo finally gives the bum a quarter to rid himself of the nuisance, but the bum immediately returns asking for a quarter.

"But I just gave you a quarter," says Philo.

"Oh, it was 'you,'" says Ferrer, takes a paint brush and marks a black X on Soupy's forehead.

By this time the entire television crew is broken up. The control room is broken up — and the Philo Kvetch segment is on its way.

It Goes On

And so it goes on, as do the five shows done "live" each week, a strange blend of little planning, a lot of spontaneity, satire and, if possible, no significance.

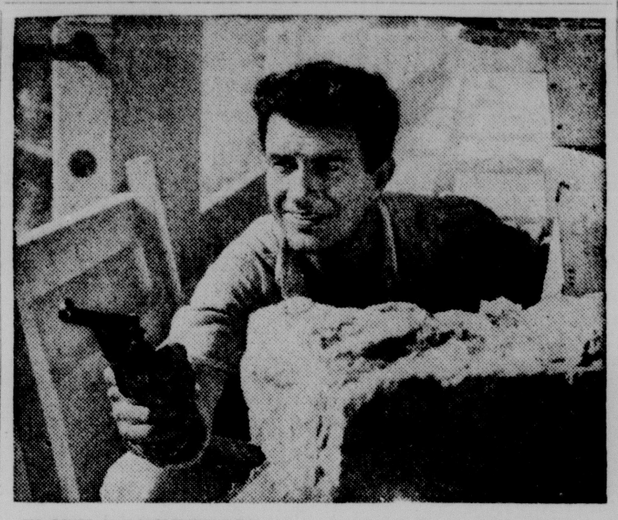
Whatever it is, it works. Soupy's frenetic image of youth has won the affections and unswerving loyalties of thousands of kids from kindergarten to the college set.

In Detroit, he was once reportedly the highest paid local television performer in the nation, with a late night show for adults, and a noontime show in which he ate lunch with youngsters, to Momma's delight.

In Los Angeles, his local fans bought his records by the tens of thousands, and movie stars rallied to his shows to make brief walk-ons and get a custard pie in the face.

But none of his prior local successes matched his explosion in New York. He came here after an abortive attempt to go national from Los Angeles. Executives were skeptical. He debuted live Sept. 7 of last year. By New Year's Day, he said, "I knew that the show was hot."

That's where he made what some people thought was a mistake. He told his audience to go to Mommy and Daddy's room when they were asleep, and get those green pieces of paper with the pictures of the presidents. If you send them to me, said Soupy playfully, "I'll send you a post card from Puerto Rico."



CLIFF ROBERTSON plays it straight in the Michael Relph and Basil Dearden's thriller-comedy "Masquerade," which opens Wednesday at the Rialto Theatre in West Monroe. Also starring in the Eastmancolor United Artists release are Jack Hawkins and Marisa Mell.

RELAY IN A PIPE

MELBOURNE (AP) — Workmen wanted to run a public address system wire through a small culvert under a road at Franklinford, 70 miles north of Melbourne.

They did what has been done before — tied the wire to a cat, pushed it into the pipe and called from the other end. But this time the cat stopped half-way.

So they put in a dog to flush out the cat, but the dog stayed there with the cat. So they called the fire brigade which hosed the dog which crowded the cat which took the wire through.

Rebuilding Is Depicted In Adhesive

To celebrate "Twenty Years of Reconstruction," Austria has issued a new 1.80 schilling stamp in red-violet. The stamp depicts bombed buildings in the foreground and new, modern edifices in the background. The theme symbolizes the progress made since the conclusion of World War II especially in economic development and growth. Another building stamp was also issued by Austria showing a residential building. The value is 1.50 schilling. At the same time, Austria's special stamp to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the International Telecommunications Union was placed on sale.

Japan has issued a new 10-yen stamp showing the Japanese Postal Museum. It was issued in honor of the inauguration of the museum and for the World Stamp Exhibition taking place in connection with the grand opening. At the exhibition nearly 10,000 stamps were on display from more than 190 countries.

Laos has paid tribute to those nations that have been assisting with economic aid. The 25 kip honors aid from France, 45 kip aid from Japan and 75 kip aid Great Britain and 75 kid aid from United States. The face value on each stamp represents the air mail rate to each of the four charitable countries.

Sports car fans will be interested to know that East Africa has issued four new stamps commemorating the 13th East Africa Safari Rally, one of the most difficult of all road races. For some 3,000 miles over a variety of terrain ranging from bad to terrible, the demands on cars and crews is so great that less than half the starters usually finish. The starting point is in Nairobi. Each stamp in this new set has the official emblem of the East Africa Safari Rally.

Norway honors the 20th anniversary of peace and liberation from the Nazi yoke by issuing two new stamps, reports the Norwegian Post Office. There is a surcharge on each stamp with the additional values going to Norway's war handicapped. The 30 ore plus 10 depicts a broken chain and a dove of peace. The ore plus 10 shows Norwegian flags.

Malaysia reports it will issue three stamps commemorating and depicting the National Mosque being built in Kuala Lumpur, its capital. Also soon to be issued by Malaysia are triangular stamps showing monuments built to hail their fight against communism and one stamp for the new international airport which will accommodate the world's largest jets.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Summer has started and so has Little Theater's annual bonus of summer productions.

This week will find the first of these non-membership plays opening to a traditionally delighted juvenile audience. "The Panda and The Spy" will open on Wednesday afternoon, for a matinee at 2:30. There will be matinees each day through Saturday, June 12. On Friday, June 11, there will be a single evening performance at 7:30 p.m.

"The Panda and The Spy" is the story of a typical American family who manage to get involved in the intrigue of enemy agents and a panda from a nearby circus.

In Cast

Included in the cast are Mary Ann Atkinson, Carole Cooper, Ashley Easterling, Ken Garrision, Julia Hoodemakee, Sunny Meriwether, Charlotte Meriwether, Vee Marshall, Susan Stone, Rick Taylor and Nancy Thomas.

This is the type story to captivate children through junior high school age, so be sure your youngster is in the audience for at least one performance. The box office will open on Tuesday. Hours will be 12 noon through 4 p.m. for the run of the show except on Friday when it will remain open until 7:30.

You may phone 323-1235 for tickets, or come by the box office at Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane. Prices for tickets are 75 cents for children and $1 for adults.

Sell-Outs

Little Theater's children's plays have been sell-out affairs for several seasons, now, so we urge you to be sure your child has a ticket well in advance of curtain time on the day he plans to attend. No seats are reserved, it's first come, first served.

We must ask, too, that parents not leave children at the theater until they have made sure the child has a ticket and seat.

As always, there will be punch and cookies served to everyone during intermission.

Today's big news is that try-outs will be held this afternoon, at Strauss Playhouse for the second children's play, "Mr. Popper's Penguins." Hours are 3 to 5 p.m. This is the only date on which tryouts will be held, so don't miss it if you are interested in children's theater.

Dr. George Brian of the Northeast drama department will direct the play and he wants people of all ages to tryout. There will be parts for small children, teen-agers, college age and adults.

Casting Needs

In all, he needs, two women, eight men and 16 children. The parts of the penguins will go to the smaller children, which offers a chance for real participation in the play without having to memorize lines.

"Mr. Popper's Penguins" concerns a travel minded family who somehow manage to acquire two real live penguins. Eventually they end up with such a menagerie of them that it looks as though they will be eaten right out of house and home. Finally, after some exciting developments, the penguins themselves solve the problem.

Performance dates will be announced at tryouts, and in a later Curtain Call.

"Who's going to play Yul Brenner and Anna?" has been the question we've all asked ever since the decision was finally made to produce the enchanging "The King And I." as this summer's musical.

Role Assigned

It was announced last week that the demanding part of the King, played so well by Yul Brunner in the movie version of "The King and I," had gone to Ed Beakey, who is already in rehearsal.

Today, we are happy to announce that Dawn Gandy will play Anna. Her blond beauty and magnificent voice will be perfect in the part of the regal governess.

We are all going to miss our Executive Director Lonny Fraze, who will soon be busy with the demanding 'Richard III" in summer stock in Pennsylvania. His patience and understanding made working with him a joy.

Lonny especially liked working with children, a somewhat rare quality among directors. He seemed to sense just how much "directorship," for lack of a better word, it took to corral a roomful of disorganized youngsters and work them into a fine production such as "Greensleeves Magic," our winter children's show, which played to capacity houses every day.

We wish him, Pat, and their little charmer, Denise, the best of everything.

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities . . .

So we are ambassadors for Christ.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

Baptist Children's Home Move Here In '25 Recalled

It was June 9, 1925 and 121 children and their matrons from the Louisiana Baptist Orphanage in Lake Charles detrained after an all night ride. They were on the way to their new campus on Highway 80, five miles east of Monroe.

Local church members met the train and transported the big family by private cars to the First Baptist Church where a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, rolls, milk, coffee and fruit juice was waiting, prepared by Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Pettit and several ladies of the church. Pettit was later to become a Home trustee and retired in 1964 after serving for many years as board president.

After breakfast the group was carried by cars to the new campus. Five cottages had been made possible by W. E. Compere J. E. Smitherman, Guy Oakes, the Mary Goss Charities and citizens of Monroe.

Lots of Packing

Frank J. Stevens, now superintendent of the Masonic Children's Home at Alexandria, and several other older boys who were residents of the Home had been on the new campus earlier getting things ready for the big move. Recalling the move, Mrs. Alice Hurst, now 83, and who was a matron (cottage mother) at that time, commented: "That was some packing up to come on that train."

Since moving to Monroe 40 years ago, five more cottages have been erected as well as the Daddy Flowers Chapel, the Lallage Feazel Administration Building, a dining hall, laundry, repair shop, several barns and cattle sheds, superintendent's home, gymnasium, storehouse and clinic.

State Baptists began their program of child care in 1899 with the enrollment of four children in the Protestant Orphanage in Baton Rouge following action taken the previous year by the Louisiana Baptist Convention meeting in Monroe.

First Move

In 1903, after being temporarily located at Keatchie, the Home was moved to Lake Charles. Land area was found inadequate there for expansion so the Monroe site was purchased. Much of the property was required some years later in the establishment of Selman Field. The trustees then purchased several hundred acres of land for farming operations six miles east of the campus.

F. C. Flowers was superintendent of the Home when it moved to Monroe. Others who have held this position since include M. E. Weaver, L. M. Cole, R. C. Buckner, B. F. Wallace, T. W. Gayer, D. C. Black and Wade B. East, who has served since August, 1962.

Now known as the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, the agency is licensed for institutional services and boarding home care. Homemaker and family aid services are being added this year. During the past year the Home has served a larger number of children than in any previous year. Since its beginning, more than 2,700 children in need of a home have been helped. Many of these will attend a homecoming scheduled here July 3.

Fund Sources

Louisiana Baptist churches, through the denomination's Cooperative Program, provide more than half the operating needs of the Home. A food drive is conducted each autumn to assist in making balanced meals possible throughout the year. Gifts from individuals are solicited and persons are encouraged to include the child care agency in their wills.

The Home is faced with increasing demands for services to children in need, officials report. Operating costs continue to be affected by inflation. Much of the furniture needs to be replaced. There are needs for funds for capital improvements as new cottages must be built to replace those which have served their day. One of the original buildings has been completely condemned by the state fire marshal as unsafe so that it can not be used by children and the second floors of the four other original cottages have also been condemned.

Rev. A. Thurston Brice, pastor of Parkview Baptist Church, Alexandria, is president of the Board of Trustees. Other trustees, elected by the Louisiana Baptist Convention, include Rev. Don E. Wainwright and Delma Carter, both of West Monroe; Dr. Clyde E. Fant, Jr., Ruston; Rev. W. D. Stogner, Bossier City; L. M. George Shreveport; Rev. Dan Blake, Jena; Rev. C. Roger Johnson, Monroe; Leon Walker, Taylor; Rupert Scott, Wisner; A. C. Kirkpatrick, Lake Charles; Rev. Sollie I. Smith, Bogalusa; Robert C. Dawkins, Farmerville, and George Bolton, Rayville.

Church Division To Decentralize

The national Methodist women's organization has started a limited decentralization of its headquarters operation with the appointment of four women executives to key interpretative-leadership training posts in four major cities.

The organization is the Woman's Division of the Methodist Board of Missions, which has its national headquarters at the Interchurch Center in New York City. The Woman's Division is the national body repreesenting 1,700,000 Methodist women in 36,000 local Woman's Societies of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guilds throughout America.

In its limited decentralization, the Woman's Division is placing staff executives, called regional secretaries, in Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas and San Francisco. Each will be responsible for interpreting the program of the Woman's Division (including missions, Christian social relations, spiritual life, etc.) and for helping to train leaders of the Woman's Society and Guild in a region covering several states. The major part of the Division's headquarters staff will remain in New York.

Appointments Announced

The appointments of the regional secretaries have been announced by Mrs. Glenn E. Laskey, Ruston, president of the Woman's Division, and Miss Dorothy McConnell, New York, associate general secretary of the Board of Missions with administrative responsibility for the Woman's Division. The appointments become effective September 1. They are:

Miss Gene Maxwell of Williamsport, Pa., to be regional secretary for the Chicago region, which will include Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Iowa and Ohio.

Mrs. W. B. Landrum of Little Rock, Ark., to be regional secretary for the Atlanta region, which will include Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, North Carolina and southwestern Virginia.

Louisiana

Miss Maryruth Nickels of Beech Grove, Ind., to be regional secretary for the Dallas region, which will include Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Miss Ann Eaton of Princeton, W. Va., to be regional secretary for the Western region, with headquarters in San Francisco. It will include Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, California, Arizona, Alaska and Hawaii.

So far as is known, the regional secretaries will be the first executives of a national Methodist agency to have their permanent headquarters in Atlanta and Dallas.

Miss McConnell said the Woman's Division will have three additional regional secretaries, making a total of seven. The three others probably will be named in September. They will serve the following regions: Denver, Philadelphia, and Northern New York-New England (with headquarters in either Boston or Portland, Maine).

The assignment of the regional secretaries is a complex one, including interpretation, leadership training, promotion, program implementation and liaison work. Though they will work within the organizational framework of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild, they will also have working relationships with bishops, district superintendents and other Methodist leaders. They will cooperate in interdenominational and interfaith programs where possible.

Part Of Job

One big part of their job will be to interpret (principally through speaking) to Societies and Guilds on the jurisdiction, annual conference, district and local church levels the multiphased program of the Woman's Division and its parent body, the Board of Missions. That program includes missions in the United States and 48 other countries; Christian social relations (with emphasis in such areas as race and support of the United Nations); spiritual life; work with college students, and missionary education.

REV. JAMES A. MITCHELL

Rev. J. Mitchell Guest Speaker At Church Here

The executive secretary of Ouachita Presbytery, the Rev. James A. Mitchell, Hot Springs, Ark., will be guest speaker at the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe at the 11 a.m. service today.

Rev. Mitchell originally decided to make the army his career. He served in the Pacific area during World War Two and was discharged as a master sergeant. Later he attended Austin College and from there went to Columbia Theological Seminary where he received a B. D. degree.

He has had wide experience in the ministry and has served on many of the various church boards.

Feature Length Graham Film At College Place

A new Billy Graham feature length sound-color motion picture, "Lucia," will be shown Friday at College Place Baptist Church, 301 Sherrouse Ave., it was announced by the Rev. T. Earl Ogg, pastor.

It will be shown at 6:15 p.m. for those in the age range of 15 through 24 who are single, and at 8 p.m. for adults.

The story in a Latin setting, shows the spiritual needs that are common to every culture and area around the world. Filmed entirely in Buenos Aires, it deals with romantic triangle and domestic discord, and what the Bible has to say in resolving emotional problems that are the hallmark of 20th century living.

Claiborne Baptist In Homecoming

The annual homecoming of Claiborne Baptist Church, Highway 80 west, will be held today starting with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., followed by worship services at 11 a.m., and dinner on the grounds at noon.

There will be a guest speaker for the occasion, and there will be singing following the dinner. The Rev. A. H. Johnson is pastor of the church, and Billy Joe Hodnett is minister of music.

Homecoming Is Postponed

The annual homecoming at the Providence Baptist Church in Point has been postponed indefinitely, the Rev. Bill Carter, pastor, has announced.

The new date for the homecoming will be announced at a later date.

Seigle Assembly of God Church, Smith and Washington, West Monroe.

Seigle Assembly Of God Started As Mission Work

The Seigle Assembly of God Church in West Monroe started in 1943 as a mission work. It was sponsored by the First Assembly of God, West Monroe, under the supervision of Pastor E. L. Tanner, and the district superintendent, the Rev. W. S. Ramby.

A tent was used until the First Assembly erected a frame building on the present location at the corner of Smith and Washington streets.

The church was organized and the Rev. C. H. Reed named as pastor. He pastored five years. He was followed by the Rev. Troy Tisdale, and then by the Rev. A. S. Davis who resigned in 1960. The church then called the present pastor, the Rev. B. O. Smith in June of that year.

Rev. Smith, 58, is a native of Louisiana. He grew up in Jackson Parish, and moved to West Monroe in 1936, where he became a member of the First Assembly of God.

Four Children

Rev. and Mrs. Smith are the parents of four children. A son, Kerry Von Smith, 13, resides at home. The others, who are married, are Mrs. Marie Patterson, Holdenville, Okla.; Mrs. Sybil Rogers, Hugo, Okla., and Harold Smith, who is stationed with the Army military police at Fort Benning, Ga.

In 1941 the Smiths moved to Texarkana, Texas, and entered the ministry there in 1945. They built a new church in Dekalb, Texas and pastored there for fourteen and one half years. Rev. Smith served the Texas District as a sectional presbyter for 10 years. In addition to his pastoral duties, he is serving as Presbyter of the Ruston section.

Shortly after coming to Seigle Assembly, Rev. Smith and the congregation felt the need of erecting a new church building. On February, 1961 the foundation was poured. Soon the congregation saw the completion of a beautiful brick building with 6,300 square feet of floor space, providing ample room for the auditorium and educational department.

It is air conditioned and centrally heated. The church furniture is of oak. The value of the property, including the parsonage on an adjoining lot, is estimated at $75,000. The new church was dedicated May 6, 1962 by the Rev. Lowell Ashbrook, superintendent of the Louisiana District.

"Since then we have seen a growth each year in the church in attendance, membership and finances, and feel there is another good year ahead for us," said Rev. Smith.

"The remarkable rise and spread of the Assemblies of God from the beginning of the twentieth century to the present time is one of the most amazing phenomena of the times. Fervent revival meetings were breaking out among all denominations during the 1890's and early 1900's. This revival spirit also broke out among union groups and people of no denominations, and among totally unrelated assemblies of worshippers in various places throughout the United States.

"There was a deep hunger for a personal knowledge of and relationship with God, and a longing for the spiritual gifts from God. Missionary zeal ran high, founded on a profound conviction of the imminent return of the Lord Jesus Christ and of the responsibilities of Christians to the world.

Gave Impetus

"This revival spirit gave impetus to many new denominations, and many of the older ones were revived. As a result, not only was Christianity strengthened everywhere, but likewise science, education, medical progress, and business were impelled into vigorous channels. Later came a letdown, a spirit of skepticism, modernism, and materialism, to chill this religious zeal. But the Assemblies of God have continued on in the manner of those fundamental warriors of the Cross of Christ.

"No one man can be credited with the founding of the denomination. Converts from various parts of the United States were gathered into the General Council of the Assemblies of God. The first General Council convened April 2-12, 1914, at Hot Springs, Arkansas. Today, the Assemblies of God are a powerful force in the world. Its membership exceeds 850,000 in the United States, with over one million enrolled in Sunday School. Eight hundred and twenty six missionaries under appointment are serving in 73 countries. Twenty-five military chaplains serve our service men. Home missionaries number 352. Revival Time world-wide broadcast, is heard over 434 stations on A.B.C. network. The Gospel Publishing House located in Springfield, Missouri, sends out more than 10 tons of gospel literature daily. The denomination's headquarters is in Springfield, Missouri."

News Briefs In Religion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Spanish embassy says that its government has approved the conduct of worship at 16 additional Protestant churches in Spain, eight of them Adventist, five Baptist, two Plymouth Brethren and one Evangelical.

Catholics See Danger

NEW YORK (AP)—With population in Latin America and Asia expected to double in the next 35 years, "such overwhelming growth will virtually wipe out efforts for socio - economic progress in the poorer nations and will generate pressures that breed human despair," say a group of Roman Catholic experts in a new book, "Population Growth — Threat to Peace?", published by P. J. Kenedy & Sons.

Missionaries Missing

JERUSALEM, Jordan (AP)—Numerous Lutheran mission agencies are experiencing a serious shortage of missionary candidates, reports to the Lutheran World Federation's Commission on World Mission here disclosed.

Ecumenical Experiment

EDINBURGH (AP) — The Presbyterian Church of Scotland is studying a proposal for designating the new Scottish town of Livingston near Edinburgh as an area of ecumenical experiment.

The first step would be to share Church of Scotland buildings in the area with the Episcopal Church.

"It is suggested that an ecumenical center be set up in Livingston — that herein all the churches share common work such as trainng of youth leaders, share in common service to the community, share in worship together," the Rev. Donald F. MacDonald told the recent meeting of the Church of Scotland General Assembly.

GOD'S SERVANTS ARE COMMISSIONED

Moses My servant is dead; now therefore arise — Joshua 1:1-9

In verse two the Lord spoke to Joshua and said, "Moses My servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan.—" Let us notice the key words of the Lord to Joshua, "Arise and go over." A commission was given to Joshua as he becomes the successor to the great leader Moses, the servant of God. For the redemption of Israel out of Egypt, we notice two parts, "out" and "into." Deut. 6:23 "And He brought us out from thence, that He might bring us in, to give us the land which He sware unto our Fathers."

We realize that being a successor to someone else, taking the place of someone before you, taking upon you the responsibility of others, places a great task upon one. But Joshua received the same promise that God gave Moses in verse 3, "Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses." Our obligations are to carry on that we may obtain the inheritance that God has promised. He has entrusted us with a sacred trust.

Commands To Us

There are commands to us today. In Deut. 19:14 — The Lord said to the Israelites, "Thou shalt not remove thy neighbor's landmark, which they of old time have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land that the Lord God giveth thee to possess it." May I say again, there comes a greater responsibility upon us because we live in such an advanced age. This age, marked by unusual enlightment, advanced educational achievement, man's venture into outer space, and the constant threat of war in this atomic and missile age, increases our responsibility to be true to the commands of God. The Word of God has a promise for us as it did for the Israelites and their leaders, Moses and Joshua. God told Joshua to "Arise and go over." Verse 8 declares, "and then thou shalt have good success." This promise is followed by the command, "Be strong and of a good courage: be not afraid—" There must be a willingness to follow the commands of the Lord.

God's Creation

We are His creation, created to do a work for God. Let us take courage and be strong in the faith of our God.

The early church, in the power of Pentecost, went out with boldness, faith, and courage to carry the Gospel to the uttermost parts of the world. Even though trials, tests, persecutions and threats confronted them on every side, they were victorious through the power of the risen Christ.

The message that challenges us today is — "Now therefore arise and go over," go over into deeper experiences in God. As the Israelites looked for a canaan land, we are looking for a City whose builder and maker is God. He will call us out of world of sin into a land of rest and joy.

Huge Safety Nets Await Astronauts

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A huge safety net of men and machines stretches out beneath American's daring young men in the spacecraft Gemini 4, waiting to catch them when they fall.

And fall they must to return to earth on Monday.

The net is woven of some 15,000 people, 83 airplanes and 22 ships, most of them provided by the Department of Defense.

Prime recovery ship is the carrier Wasp in the Atlantic Ocean. Its weather office Saturday forecast continued favorable weather in this general recovery area. Water and air temperatures will be between 75 and 80 degrees, wave heights only two to four feet, and half to two-thirds of the sky should be clear when the astronauts make their descent.

The people standing by for the recovery include nurses ready to check astronauts' pulses, pararescue men prepared to jump into the ocean from low-flying planes, and officers reploying ships from one orbital path to another as the flight proceeds.

The planes include helicopters, propellor - driven amphibains, and the supersonic Phanton jet fighters; the ships, an amphibious landing craft, the tiny but quick minesweeper Nimble, and the carrier Wasp.

The electronic eyes of the Gemini tracking network — 18 land stations and four ships — keep constant watch on astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H White II. They also maintain voice contact with the astronauts.

The bulk of the recovery fleet is concentrated in the Atlantic Ocean where the flight of the Gemini 4 is programmed to end 97 hours, 50 minutes after it began. The Wasp will be standing by about 400 miles south of Bermuda to pick up the space buddies and their craft.

A smaller fleet, Task Force 130, is scattered across the Pacific where the only landing would be an emergency landing-it is commanded by Rear Adm. H. S. Persons at Kunia, Hawaii.

The ships move continually. The fleet oiler Ponchatoula, for example, plies the mid-Pacific, its assignments to take up stations on the paths of orbits.

Pararescuemen of the Air Rescue Service stand by their planes at airstrips along the orbital tracks around the world, a lineal distance of 1,575,000 miles. They are ready to fly from many corners of the globe: the Azores, the Canaries, Pago Pago, Johnnesburg, Mauritius, Singapore, Lima, Rio de Janeiro, Asencion.

Fourteen of this aircraft are concentrated in the Bermuda area, the planned landing area. These planes will be in the air when the Gemini 4 parachutes to a watery landing. They will home in on the spacecraft after it hits the water, and a crew of pararescuemen will jump into the water near it. They will attach and place a collar around the capsule to prevent it from sinking, then give the crew any aid they require.

The other pararescue crews scattered round the world are ready to do the same job should an emergency landing be necessary.

Also standing by in the worldwide net are 89 doctors, nurses and technicians. They provide boastronautic support as needed. They can include any medical thing from a radio warning that suit temperatures are getting a little high, to emergency surgery once the Gemini crew has returned to earth.

Whites Deplore Press Reporting Of Racial Issue

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — A rally staged by Americans for Preservation of the White Race Saturday heard speakers attack press coverage of the racial issue and declare that Communists were behind racial and peace demonstrations.

Police estimated the crowd in Liberty Park at 2,500. They waved Confederate flags and gave rebel yells.

Fred Ross of Jackson, state welfare commissioner under the Barnett administration, said Negroes get more tax benefits and whites pay more taxes, but the picture of race relations has been distorted by the press.

The press, Ross said, was guilty of "systematic misrepresentation of the race question in Mississippi and the peddling of propaganda in which it is represented that the white people of Mississippi are purposely persecuting and discriminating against the black people."

Ross proposed that Mississippi create a commission of resettlement and rehabilitation to send Negro mothers and children to join fathers who had deserted them.

Under the plan, he said, Negroes would be advanced funds for transportation to join deserting husbands on condition they remain out of the state for 10 years.

"The state of Mississippi would benefit by it," he said, "if they were granted welfare checks for one year after they moved."

Other speakers included Kent Courtney of New Orleans, publisher of The Independent chairman of the Conservative Society of America and a John Birch society member; and Dist. Judge John R. Rarick of St. Francisville, La.

Courtney said there was need "for strong members of Congress who will support the Constitution and states rights, instead of the Communist conspiracy."

Racial and peace demonstrations, he said, apparently were linked to the Communists because the racial demonstrations slowed when peace demonstrations began over bombing of North Viet Nam.

"The Communists are calling the shots on these demonstrations," he said.

Turning to racial troubles, he said, "thoughtless people who use bullets could lose our battle for us. "What we need is brains and ballots, not bullets and bodies."

Sheriff James Clark of Selma, Ala., did not appear as scheduled. Speakers announced a rally would be held next month in Jackson or Brandon. No date was set.

Monroe Police Book Negro On Several Counts

Monroe police booked a Monroe Negro, Joseph Taylor Jr., 29, on charges ranging from speeding to felony theft following an incident in the early morning hours Saturday.

Taylor, of 101½ S. 19th St., Monroe, was stopped by officers for speeding on Ouachita Avenue shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday but escaped after a scuffle. After a search, Taylor was recaptured in the 2300 block of DeSiard Avenue at 9:30 a.m.

He is charged with speeding, negligent driving, driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, resisting arrest, simple escape, felony theft and aggravated battery. Police said the theft charge stemmed from what was described as a "stolen pistol" found in Taylor's possession when arrested.

In other action, Paul Gullette of 407 Joffre St., Monroe, reported to police that his late model convertible, license number 23F113, was stolen from his home between midnight and 6:20 a.m. Saturday.

Jame J. Thomas, 37, of Rt. 4, Box 59S, Monroe, was booked on two counts of theft by check following his arrest on warrant Saturday.

Booked with DWI and negligent driving Saturday at 10:30 a.m. was George L. White, 31, of General Delivery, Monroe. White was apprehended in the 500 block of Pine Street.

Officials of the Conway Memorial Hospital reported to West Monroe authorities that Cora Mae Jackson, 44, Negro, of 108 Cherry St., West Monroe, was admitted for treatment of stab wounds at about 10 p.m. The Jackson woman told officers that her assailant was an unidentified Negro woman.

In other action, West Monroe police booked Thomas J. Reagen, 54, of 109 N. 8th St., West Monroe, with resisting arrest, simple battery and disturbing the peace. Reagen was arrested on Park Avenue at 9:30 p.m.

Peter Rabbit's Creator Is Dead

HAMPDEN, Mass. (AP) — Thornton W. Burgess, who wrote thousands of stories about Peter Rabbit and his friends in the old briar patch, died late Saturday night. He was 91.

Burgess wrote 15,000 stories for children and books which sold 7½ million copies.

"Old Mother West Wind," his first collection of children's stories, was published more than 50 years ago. Since then Burgess became a national institution known to generations of American children.

Born at Sandwich, Mass., on Cape Cod, Burgess began telling his son bedtime stories about what he had seen in the meadows and woods. When the boy went to visit a cousin in Chicago and missed the stories, his father sent him one each day, so that he could keep up with the doings of Peter Rabbit and Reddy Fox and all the inhabitants of old Briar Patch.

Burgess sent 14 stories and from these came "Old Mother West Wind," published in 1910.

Islands Windy

CANEEL BAY PLANTATION, Virgin Islands (AP) — Brisk winds, overcast skies and choppy water kept Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson close to her vacation cottage Saturday.

The President's wife did manage to get in some time with snorkel and mask to look at underwater vegetation and the fish of the Caribbean.

Otto Passman Guest Speaker At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — Congressman Otto E. Passman of Monroe was among guest speakers at the annual meeting of the Northeast Louisiana Power Co-Op in Winnsboro Saturday night.

The congressman gave a rundown on the "Great Society" plans and said these could result in a socialistic form of government for the United States.

Other guest speakers at the meeting were John Hunt, chairman of the Public Service Commission and Ernest Clements, Public Service Commissioner for the Second District.

Commissioner Hunt explained the operations of the public service commission and promised as long as he is a commissioner public telephone calls would never cost more than five cents.

Saigon Catholics Attack Officers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Several hundred Roman Catholic rioters clashed Saturday night with Saigon police, who fired shots in the air while the mob overturned and burned an official car.

One policeman was hurt by a flying object in the scuffle, but according to spokesmen of both the police and the rioters, there were no other casualties.

The situation remained tense, with club-wielding youths and children holding several blocks in the outskirts of the city and police waiting just outside the area.

After the burning of the car police did not try to force their way back into the area even to tow out the burning and demolished car.

Crossett Wife Held In Slaying

CROSSETT (Special) — Almetter Foreman, Negro, was in the Crossett jail charged with murder in the slaying of her husband, Willie, Saturday night, according to Ashley County Sheriff B. A. Courson.

Sheriff Courson said the man was stabbed with a paring knife. He said the woman related the slaying occurred after her husband got drunk and beat her and their 14-year-old daughter, who witnessed the murder at the Foreman home at 8:45 p.m.

Dear John,

YOU are wise to think of investing in a home upon moving here. The rent situation is almost impossible.

On analyzing your case I have the perfect home for you 3 blocks from Highland elementary. This home has 3 bedrooms, on large shady lot. It is designed for Mary too — nice cabinets, built-in oven and range. $400. is the down payment and payments cheaper than rent.

Also have a darling 3 bedroom, 1½ bath brick, 104 Linden Dr., W.M. near Fairpark Baptist church with built-ins, that can be assumed for small down and $94. month. I could have you in this home by the 15th.

Have 2 other good assumptions I could show you.

You mention Marys mother. I have the perfect answer to her situation. A duplex, close in West Monroe. She could live in one side and rent out the other.

If you don't have definite plans in time to let me know — just come on as I have 3 courteous sales persons who could assist you — Paul, Zara, Edna.

P. S. We have many others.

Very cordially Yours

If you're considering an investment in office buildings, apartment houses, shopping centers, or even undeveloped land, consult a Realtor. Years of training and experience qualify him to analyze property values, construction costs, and land potential.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
I have just solved a problem which in the past has given me trouble. My family and I love outdoor cooking and, weather permitting, we do a great deal of it.

Recently we had to purchase another new grill, our third! So . . . I purchased an inexpensive rectangular cookie sheet (because that was the shape of our grill), covered it with foil and

After the coals are completely burned out and the cookie sheet has cooled, I lift it out, foil and all, then roll the foil up tightly and dispose of it.

Mrs. Thomas Zehnder

FESTIVE ICE CUBES

DEAR HELOISE:

To add a touch of color to the soft drinks at children's parties, I freeze red or green maraschino cherries, grapes, or pineapple chunks in the ice cubes.

They are very attractive and the children love them.

Ella

THE PIEMAN COMETH

DEAR HELOISE:

When you are taking a pie to a picnic or potluck supper and you can't keep the waxed paper around and over the pie . . . simply cover it with the waxed paper, fold the paper under the pie plate, and set it in another pie plate!

Jean Gödsey

SHIP AHOY!

DEAR HELOISE:

My boat keys used to fall out of my pocket into the water.

Now I take a large cork, put a hole through it and fasten my key chain through the hole.

If the keys drop from my pocket into the water, they float! No more lost keys for this boater.

F. J. Lynch

STICKY ENVELOPES

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you know that you can un-stick envelopes that have glued themselves shut in the hot weather, by freezing them a few hours in your freezer and then sliding a table knife under the flap?

The glue will still be good and you've saved all your ruined envelopes.

Annetta

GARDEN-HOSE TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

I accidentally parked our car on a plastic garden hose—it really flattened the hose like a pancake for a space of at least twelve inches.

I thought sure the hose was ruined, but I came up with the idea of putting the flattened section in a tub of hot water. This did the trick in about two minutes, and was I ever relieved!

Almost every family has a plastic garden hose for watering the lawn and washing the car, so I thought I should pass this idea along. Sure saved us the expense of a new garden hose.

Colla Lily

ROAST WIENERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When my husband and I go fishing, we fill a throw-away aluminum-foil cake pan with charcoal. When we are ready for lunch, we roast wieners or shish-ka-bab over the pan.

A very small amount of water or sand will put out any remaining coals.

Alice Kinney

TIDY BIRD FEEDER

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found that a pie pan or any type cake pan nailed to a tree stump or fence post (with a roofing nail) makes an ideal and inexpensive bird feeder . . .

The higher the sides of the pan, the better it will keep the bird food in place even in the windiest of weather. . . .

The nail, if placed in the center of the pan, will hold it very steady and support the biggest birds . . .

THAT NYLON NET!

DEAR HELOISE:

A thickness or two of nylon net can be used to mend screens by sewing on a patch with a needle and thread.

PAINTING WINDOWPANES?

DEAR HELOISE:

Every two years I paint the framework on our house. What a messy job it is when the paint gets stuck on the windows.

I took an old paint brush and painted the edges of the windowpanes with undiluted liquid detergent, let it dry a day, and then did my paint job.

All the globs of paint that I accidentally smeared and spattered on the windows came off beautifully when the windows were washed a week later!

CLEAR GENIUS

DEAR HELOISE:

A fruit-picking pole is a right simple tool for picking any kind of ripened fruit which grows a little too high to reach — and without having to use a ladder or climb the tree itself.

To make one of these, just take any old cane fishing pole about 12 feet long and cut off the last few inches of the small end. This leaves a deep, open

Fasten a bag or sack to the end of the pole (a small gunny sack, orange sack, etc., will do). Straighten out an old wire clothes hanger. Bend this into a circle to fit around the top of the sack . . . then feed the wire in and around the top of the edge of the sack. Bend the other part of the wire coat hanger straight down and stick it into the open hollow end of the pole. That's all there is to it!

To pick the fruit . . . simply raise the pole and ease the bag gently under the fruit that is out of reach. Wiggle the wire rim of the bag back and forth against the stem of the fruit. If the fruit is ripe it will fall easily into the bag.

Sure saves broken legs and arms—and lots of good fruit that would ordinarily go to waste . . .

"ONE OF THOSE HAPPY SOULS WHICH ARE THE SALT OF THE EARTH, AND WITHOUT WHOM THIS WORLD WOULD SMELL LIKE WHAT IT IS — A TOMB." — SHELLEY.

BUT, FATHAH! WARBUCKS IS BROKE! HE HAS NO CHOICE BUT TO DEED THE PROPERTY TO US! WE WILL ALLOW HIM TO MANAGE THE MINE; PAY HIM TWENTY PER CENT! WE'D MAKE BILLIONS! ISN'T THAT GOOD BUSINESS?

BAH! ON THE INTERCOM I HEARD YOU TELL HIM THAT! YOUNG IMBECILE! YOU? AN INTERNATIONAL BANKER? A CLERK! A BANDIT, MAYBE! BUT A BANKER? BAH!

OH, FATHAH! TO LET SUCH A CHANCE ESCAPE! YOU ALWAYS HAVE BEEN CARELESS!

CARELESS? HAH! EVERY TIME I LOOK AT YOU I AM REMINDED!

OLIVER! WAIT! IT IS I, JOEL! YOU NEED MONEY? YOU COME BACK!

RETIRED? WHO RETIRES, WHEN A FRIEND CALLS? HOW MUCH YOU NEED? FIFTY MILLION? FIVE-HUNDRED MILLION?

HARD TO SAY EXACTLY, JOEL..... ...BUT...

NO "BUTS", OLIVER! REMEMBER WHEN MY LITTLE BUSINESS WAS FAILING? HA! YOU DIDN'T ASK; YOU GAVE! ALL I HAVE, YOU MADE POSSIBLE!

YOU PAID IT ALL BACK! ANYWAY, THAT WAS A LONG TIME AGO!

YES! A LONG TIME, BUT NEVER ONCE HAVE YOU MENTIONED IT! SO, NOW, MAYBE I CAN HELP A LITTLE!

WELL, I SURE NEED HELP!

NO-NO! SIGN NO PAPERS! YOUR CHARACTER IS YOUR BOND! TAKE THESE BLANK CHECKS! DRAW WHAT YOU NEED: ANY AMOUNT! THE CLASP OF YOUR HAND BINDS THE BARGAIN!

NO ONE EVER DESERVED ANY GREATER FRIEND THAN YOU, JOEL!

WHAT? ARE YOU SURE? A HUNDRED BILLION? INCREDIBLE!

YOU KNOW WHY THAT OLD PIRATE LET US GET AWAY SO EASY? HE WAS SITTING ON A HUNDRED-BILLION-DOLLAR MINE!

NO MINE'S WORTH THAT MUCH!

IT IS, IF HALF OF WHAT I JUST HEARD IS TRUE. BUT IT WILL TAKE MILLIONS TO GET IT WORKING, AND HE'S FLAT BROKE! WE'VE GOT HIM!

YEAH? AND THIS TIME LET'S MAKE SURE!
